Q. Is there any cure for diabetes?

A. Diabetes is generally caused by a failure of the body to produce or use insulin correctly. Although it has no known cure, it can be adequately controlled through a combination of proper diet, exercise and medication.

If you have diabetes, your doctor can prescribe a program best suited to your needs to help you continue an active, normal, healthy lifestyle.

Co-chaired by Joyce Bishoff, McHenry, and Mary Lou Stemple, Oakland, the Committee's objective is "to provide accurate information to the citizens of Garrett County about the proposed renovations at Northern High School and Southern High School in order to promote passage of the referendum to authorize the sale of bonds to fund those projects."

Garrett Vacation Guide Available

The 1989-90 Deep Creek Lake-Garrett County Vacation Guide, which lists attractions, historic sites, accommodations, restaurants, events, campgrounds, state parks, and a wide variety of other information about Deep Creek Lake and Garrett County, is now available.

This 96-page booklet is published annually and is available free of charge by writing or calling the Deep Creek Lake-Garrett County Promotion Council, Courthouse, Oakland, 21550, telephone (301) 334-1948.

"WE CARE" was the theme used by employees of the local Bausch & Lomb facility and they proved that statement by announcing this week that they have pledged $50,000 to the Capital Campaign of the Garrett County Memorial Hospital Foundation. The B&L Corporation then matched that pledge by the employees to make an overall pledge of $100,000. The employees in the photo are holding their individual pledge cards which they have signed and which will permit the company to make payroll deductions until their pledges are satisfied. The B&L contribution pushed the total pledges and donations to the Capital Campaign to over $1.25 million.

Senate Wraps Up '89 Session With Action On Local Coal Bills

Two coal bills were the last two pieces of legislation to clear the Maryland Senate before adjournment of the 1989 General Assembly. Both of the bills were the product of House-Senate conference committees.

The first bill to receive approval was to extend the sunset for legislation permitting a tax credit for utilities which burn Maryland coal.

Legislators extended the sunset provision from June 30, 1991, to June 30, 2001. This is to be an incentive for Maryland based public service companies to purchase additional Maryland coal.

The other bill, which was requested by the Maryland Bureau of Mines, the Maryland Coal Association, and the commissioners for Garrett and Allegany counties, establishes a mine reclamation fund.

The original versions of this bill, introduced by Delegate George Edwards and Senator John Bambacus, proposed a $300,000 fund that would ensure that surface mined land is reclaimed even if a coal company defaults on its reclamation bond.

The reclamation reserve fund would be funded by creating a 10 cent tax on each ton of coal mined. Garrett and Allegany counties are the only counties in Maryland in which coal is mined.

According to the original bills, the two counties would forego their six cents per ton share of the surcharge until the $300,000 is obtained.

The bill also proposed that the state should provide two cents for each ton of coal mined and the coal industry an additional two cents to reach the 10 cents a ton surcharge.

Delegate Edwards' bill cleared the House as originally proposed, but the Senate Economic and Environmental Affairs (EEA) Committee, paying no attention to the testimony of Senator Bambacus (a

Takeover Of Am. HV Test Completed

The takeover of American HV Test Systems Inc., by Phenix Technologies was completed on Monday, according to Tom Jones, director of Garrett County Economic Development. The company is located at the Central Garrett Industrial Park in Accident.

According to Jones, American HV Test Systems Inc. was a wholly owned subsidiary of Emil Hafely & Cie, a Swiss company. Jones said that the small European firm "decided that it couldn't forcefully be a player in the American market", and offered the company for sale.

Jones reported that the Garrett County Development Corporation also owned part of the complex since 1975, and also sold out to Phenix Technologies.

The president of the new company is Jim DeCarlo, and the secretary/production manager is Frank Vitez. Jones noted that Vitez was the production manager of American HV Test, and DeCarlo was also previously employed by that company.

According to Vitez, all employees of American HV Test were terminated with the exception of two or three to close the account. He noted that the termination was necessary in order to make the separation complete. Approximately 50

Bausch & Lomb And Employees Pledge $100,000 To Foundation

The Garrett County Memorial Hospital Foundation's Capital Fund received another major boost this week when it was announced that Bausch & Lomb, Inc., and the employees of the local B&L facility have pledged $100,000 to the Foundation.

In a unique partnership, the Bausch & Lomb corporation agreed to donate $50,000 to match $50,000 that has been pledged by the employees of the Mtn. Lake Park facility.

Richard Schick, plant manager, and several B&L employees made the presentation this week to Rob Sharps, general chairman of the Capital Campaign, and Larry Beck, hospital administrator.

"As the county's largest employer, and as primary users of our hospital's services, we have a large role to play in supporting the pursuit of the highest quality health care possible for our community," Schick said. "It is our hope that the step taken by our employees sets the stage for a second wave of donations, as individual contributors come forward to pledge their support."

Sharps, who is also chairman of the hospital, Foundation, responded, "This extremely generous contribution by Bausch & Lomb certainly demonstrates once again their commitment to the Mountaintop Community. The pledge by Bausch & Lomb employees has added a very special dimension to the campaign and shows that the employees take their statement 'We Care' very seriously. The Foundation is extremely grateful for both pledges and we thank Bausch & Lomb and all the employees at the Oakland facility for responding so positively to our campaign."

The B&L pledge brings the Foundation's Capital Campaign total in donations and pledges to approximately $1.25 million. The funds are controlled and invested by the Foundation and proceeds are extended to the hospital for the purchase of needed equipment.

Slip Of Tongue By Gov. Schaefer Upsets Residents

A slight slip of the tongue by Governor William Donald Schaefer this past week caused quite a stir in Garrett County for a few days and the Garrett County commissioners were quick to point out that the statement made by the governor was not accurate.

In commenting about the proposed construction of a federal prison at Fort Meade in Anne Arundel County, the governor said Monday that the prison should be built in Western Maryland "because the people there want it."

Schaefer said that he will recommend that the federal government choose a site in Allegany or Garrett counties. The mistake he made, and one which he has since acknowledged, was including Garrett County in his statement when, in fact, he meant to say just Allegany County was being considered.

Commissioner John Braskey told The Republican yesterday that, since the governor's statement Monday, the commissioners' office has been receiving a number of inquiries from "concerned" residents.

"We were even getting calls from out-of-town folks who own property here and who were very upset about the proposal that a federal prison be built in Garrett County," Braskey said.

Braskey noted that the Baltimore Sun and Cumberland Times/News were among the publications that carried the governor's remarks.

"We really want to make it perfectly clear that there are no plans whatsoever to build a prison in Garrett County," he added.

Paul W. Ferrell Sentenced To Life In Prison

Paul William Ferrell received a sentence of life imprisonment in Grant County Circuit Court on Monday for the kidnapping of Catherine Denise Ford.

Besides the life term for the kidnapping charge, Ferrell was sentenced to five to 18 years for second-degree murder and one to three years for arson.

Judge C. Reeves Taylor ruled that the sentences would run consecutively in the West Virginia State Penitentiary in Moundsville.

Judge Taylor noted that Ferrell would be eligible for parole on the kidnapping charge after 10 years. If paroled, he would begin serving five to 18 years for the second-degree murder charge. Upon the completion of that sentence, he would serve one to three years for third-degree arson.

Judge Taylor denied post-trial motions which were filed by defense attorneys Ross Maruka and Dan James.

James requested that Ferrell be incarcerated in the Grant County Detention Center so he could easily consult with him to prepare an appeal. Taylor ordered that Ferrell be held in that facility until June.

The appeal would be filed with West Virginia Supreme Court, which convenes in September.

West Virginia Man Arrested After Chase

Deputies from the Garrett County Sheriff's Department arrested a West Virginia man and charged him with concealing a deadly weapon after a high speed chase early Sunday morning.

Deputy J.D. Murphy attempted to stop Robin D. Lewis, 22, Corinth, W.Va., for a routine traffic violation on the old Crellin Road, when Lewis apparently took off in his vehicle, forcing Deputy Murphy to chase him. Deputies from the sheriff's department set up a road block on the Turner Douglas Road and apprehended Lewis.

Lewis was then charged with attempting to elude a police officer by failing to stop. After the arrest Lewis was patted down and a concealed "butterfly" knife was found on him. He was charged with concealing a deadly weapon, reckless driving, failure to stop at a stop sign, speed greater than reasonable and failure to stay right of center.

Lewis was held in the Garrett County Jail until Tuesday when he was released on $250 bond.

A Deer Park juvenile was arrested by Deputy J.D. Murphy on April 2 for driving while intoxicated. The juvenile was released into his parents' custody.

Thomas Bowers, 23, Mt. Lake Park, was arrested on April 6 on a bench warrant from Garrett County District Court and an arrest warrant for assault on Deputy D.L. Crossland. Detective-Sergeant D.W. Tucker, and

Edwards Reports Good Year In 1989 Session For Garrett County

As the 1989 General Assembly came to an end on Monday, Western Maryland lawmakers sat back and examined the number of successes for their counties.

Delegate George Edwards, R-Garrett-Allegany, said that Garrett County had a "very good year in the legislature." He reported that the county received a substantial amount of money out of the budget and a number of local issues went through successfully.

The assembly approved HB-728, which creates a state debt of $250,000, with a matching fund requirement, for a grant to the County Commissioners of Garrett County to renovate the Center Street School in Oakland into a multi-service center.

This $1.5 million project will involve providing space for senior citizen health programs, senior citizens center, day care center, Head Start offices, and offices for Community Action, according to Delegate Edwards.

The assembly also approved a bill to permit a special referendum election in Garrett County to allow the voters to decide whether or not the county will float a $6.9 million bond to pay for the proposed renovations at the Southern and Northern High Schools.

This will become a law as soon as Governor William Donald Schaefer signs the bill. Ninety days after the bill receives the governor's signature, the referendum election must be held. The date of the election has been set for May 23.

Edwards said he was relieved to find that the linked deposit bill passed in the assembly before the close.

HB-1181, introduced by the delegate on February 6, will help to stimulate the business climate in rural counties like Garrett County.

The bill will establish the Maryland Enterprise Incentive Deposit Fund within the Maryland Department of Economic and Employment Development (DEED).

Edwards said that the bill will promote economic development in rural areas by making the process easier to obtain money to start a business. The bill states that the money is offered to qualified potential business persons at no risk to the state.

Money is to be borrowed from federally insured lending institutions, which are not allowed to charge more than one point.

Garrett County, which meets the two qualifications of having a population of less than 200,000 and a jobless rate of at least 130 percent of the state's unemployment rate, will be eligible for this program.

Edwards said, "The bill puts in place a very simple economic development program at no risk to the state. If a person wants to start a business, that person would go to a bank and go through the normal process to get a loan to start the business. If the bank approves the loan, the state would come into the picture. DEED would review the loan application and, if approved, would take out a certificate of deposit (CD) at that lending institution for the Southern Faculty Conducting Tours

The faculty and staff of Southern High School are conducting tours of the school at 7 p.m. every Tuesday and Thursday from April 6 to May 18.

The purpose of the tours is to show the public the conditions at Southern High School and to encourage voters to cast a positive ballot in the special school renovation referendum next month. The election will determine whether or not the county commissioners will float a bond to cover the costs of renovating Southern High School and making improvements and additions at Northern High School.

The festival will also include a ceilidh (Scottish party with entertainment) at 8 p.m. Saturday evening at the McHenry House at Wisp Resort, sponsored by Ski Wisp (admission $3.00), and Kirkin' O' the Tartans Sunday, June 4, at 10:30 a.m. at St. John's Episcopal Church, Route 135, Deer Park.

The festival is being sponsored by the Promotion Council, the Royal Oaks Inn and Villages of Wisp at Deep Creek Lake, and is funded in part by a grant from the State of Maryland Department of Economic and Employment Development.

For more information, a free festival brochure, or advance tickets, persons should contact the McHenry Highland Festival, Courthouse, Oakland, MD 21550; telephone (301) 334-1948.

A MAJOR CONTRIBUTION to the Garrett County Memorial Hospital Foundation was announced this week by the Foundation, as Bausch & Lomb and the employees of the local B&L plant pledged a total of $100,000 to the Foundation's Capital Campaign. The employees pledged over $50,000 to the campaign and the corporation agreed to match that figure. The contribution brings the total pledges and donations of the campaign to $1.25 million. Pictured left to right are Rob Sharps, campaign chairman; Jack King, of the B&L management staff; Richard Schick, plant manager; and Denise Rinker, a member of the executive committee of the Foundation.

A TWO-VEHICLE ACCIDENT which occurred Saturday on alternate U.S. Route 40 resulted in one driver being charged with driving while under the influence of alcohol. Donald W. Fazenbaker, of Grantsville, who was driving the vehicle pictured above, was charged after he struck a pickup truck driven by Harrison F. Rounds, of Accident. Fazenbaker's car traveled out of control and overturned following the impact. Both Fazenbaker and Rounds were taken to Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, by the Northern Rescue Squad following the mishap, where they were treated and released. Photo by Craig Speicher

Big Brothers/ Big Sisters Slates Meeting

The second organizational meeting of the Garrett County sub-committee of Big Brothers/Big Sisters will meet on Tuesday, April 18, at 7:00 p.m. in room 154, building B, at Garrett Community College in McHenry.

Karen Johnson, executive director of the Big Brothers/Big Sisters, said that the agenda includes discussion of the extent of community support for the organization, an itemized outline of start-up expenses, solicitation of donated office space, volunteer recruitment and community fund-raising.

Current pledges and contributions for the April 1 Bowl For Kid's Sake in Allegany County total over $24,000. Anna Bishop's bowling team received pledges of more than $650 in the recent Big Brothers/Big Sisters bowlathon.

Al Coviello, Garrett County Board of Education, presented the results of an informal survey of Garrett County schools at the March 21 meeting. The survey was done to determine if there is a need for Big Brothers/Big Sisters services in the area. Thirteen schools responded to the survey, with 11 of the schools feeling that the services are needed. The survey also indicated that 420 students, 14 percent of the total number of students enrolled, currently live in single parent homes. The actual number of students may be higher as two county schools did not participate in the survey. A total of eight child and seven volunteer applications have been sent to Garrett County residents.

The Big Brothers/Big Sisters child-volunteer match service is targeted primarily for boys and girls, age 6-16, who come from single parent homes.

The first organizational meeting of the Garrett County subcommittee held at the college on March 21 was attended by: Carl Winters, board chairman for Big Brothers/Big Sisters of the Alleghanies, Inc.; Karen Johnson, executive director of the organization; Lucia Ayers, Frostburg State University social-work intern; Albert Coviello and Anna Bishop of the Garrett County Board of Education; Robert M. Ulino, Department of Parole and Probation; Elmer H. Maust and Paul H. Yoder, members of the Mennonite clergy; Dr. Brenda McCartney, principle of Kitzmiller school; and Frank Robinette and Anna M. Bishop.

ANNUAL COMMUNITY FEUD — Representatives of GOBA (Greater Oakland Business Association) survived seven rounds of the Junior Woman's Civic Club Annual Community Feud to win first place. One question that led to success was: "Out of 100 local Garrett Countians surveyed name a business or organization that participated in Christmas community activities?" The number one answer was GOBA. Pictured above are members of the GOBA team: (back row, left to right) Cindy Bloschies, representing the Wisp Convention Center; Cathy Gibson, the Small Pedlar; Tracy Jones, the Vision Center; Bindy Shark, Sandy's; all surround Jack Jones, Marvin's Men's Wear.

Man Arrested On CDS Charge

Maryland State Police at the McHenry detachment this week reported the arrest of a 21-year-old man on controlled dangerous substance charges.

According to police, Ronald Alan Marty was stopped for a routine traffic violation. Suspected marijuana and a pipe were found in the car.

The arrest was made by Tfc. P.R. Brown.

A destruction of property incident was reported last weekend by James D. Wagner.

According to reports, both doors on Wagner's 1981 Pontiac Firebird were damaged while it was parked at the Grantsville American Legion.

Several Injured In Two-Vehicle Mishap Saturday

Several persons were injured in a two-vehicle accident which occurred Saturday on Maryland Route 39.

According to reports filed by the Maryland State Police, Steven J. Bowman, 24, of Terra Alta, W.Va., was driving a 1989 Ford pickup truck and was being followed by an unidentified vehicle.

Bowman had reportedly slowed to make a left turn into a private driveway when Kenneth C. Pomeroy, 16, also of Terra Alta, attempted to pass both vehicles in a 1984 Ford pickup and struck the Bowman vehicle.

Injured persons were taken to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad.

Both Bowman and a passenger in his vehicle, Howard D. Boldman, 50, also of Terra Alta, were admitted to the hospital with concussions and later discharged, according to a spokesman. Also admitted and later discharged was a passenger in the Pomeroy vehicle, Brandon Armstrong, 16, of Corinth, W.Va.

Treated and released following the accident were Pomeroy and two passengers in his vehicle, Annette Sisler, 14, and Barbara Sypolt, 13, both of Terra Alta.

The mishap was investigated by Tfc. R.J. Resh.

A two-vehicle accident occurred Saturday on alternate U.S. Route 40.

Police said Harrison F. Rounds, 26, Accident, was traveling west in a 1985 Dodge Ram Truck, and was followed by a 1977 Chevrolet Monte Carlo driven by Donald W. Fazenbaker, 32, Grantsville.

Fazenbaker struck Rounds' vehicle in the rear, causing the truck to strike a curb and come to rest at a 45-degree angle in the westbound lane.

After the initial impact, the Fazenbaker vehicle went out of control, skidding sideways and striking a curb before overturning on its top.

The incident was investigated by Tfc. T.J. Farrell, who charged Fazenbaker with driving while under the influence of alcohol. Rounds was charged with not giving required information following an accident.

Treated and released at Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, following the mishap were Fazenbaker, Rounds, and a passenger in the Fazenbaker vehicle, Havard Fazenbaker, 42, of Grantsville.

A Pittsburgh, Pa., man was charged with driving while under the influence of alcohol following a single-vehicle accident Saturday on U.S. Route 219.

Police said John M. Mlinac, 70, was traveling north in a 1985 Ford truck when he ran off the right side of the road and struck a guardrail. The truck ran down a steep embankment and overturned.

He was taken to Garrett Memorial by the Northern Rescue Squad, where he was treated and released.

Besides the DWI charge, Mlinac was charged with negligent driving.

The mishap was investigated by Tfc. G.R. Chaney.

A single vehicle accident Saturday also resulted in the DWI charge.

Police said Renita D. Sherwood, 26, of McHenry, was traveling north on U.S. Route 219 in a 1985 Lincoln Town Car. The vehicle left the right side of the road and struck a mailbox, then went into a culvert and struck a concrete storm drain before bouncing out and coming to rest in a driveway.

Tpr. R.T. Wilson, who investigated the accident, reported that Sherwood was charged with driving while under the influence of alcohol and negligent driving.

She was taken to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by a private vehicle, where a spokesman reported that she was treated and released.

A two-vehicle accident occurred last Wednesday on Route 38.

According to police reports, Nedra M. Keener, 21, of Kitzmiller, was traveling east on Center Street in a 1988 Chevrolet Beretta, and was attempting to turn left onto Route 38.

Gary A. Kuhn Jr., 20, of Elk Garden, W.Va., was southbound on Route 38 in a 1988 Chevrolet pickup truck. Keener reportedly pulled into Kuhn's path, causing a collision.

Tpr. P.R. Brown investigated, charging Keener with failing to yield the right of way at the entrance to a highway.

Both Keener and Kuhn were taken to Garrett Memorial by the Elk Garden Rescue Squad, where they were both treated and released.

A Kitzmiller woman was injured last Thursday in an accident on Route 135.

According to police, Ramona A. Anderson, 33, was traveling west in a 1973 Chevrolet Malibu. As she neared the intersection of Sand Flat Road, A 1983 Ford truck driven by Stacy A. Martin, of Westernport, pulled out into her path.

Anderson swerved to the right to avoid a collision and struck a guardrail, then crossed both lanes of traffic and struck a guardrail on the eastbound shoulder.

Martin was charged with failing to yield the right of way at the entrance to a highway.

A single-vehicle accident Saturday on Route 219 resulted in the DWI charge.

John C. Ferrell, 25, of Westernport, was driving a 1981 Toyota truck, and was traveling north. The operator lost control of the vehicle in a curve, causing it to cross the center of the road and slide off the right side. The truck hit a road sign before coming to rest in a ditch.

Tpr. J.K. Moore investigated the incident, charging Ferrell with driving while under the influence of alcohol and failing to keep to the right of the center line.

Blaze Destroys Mobile Home

An apparent accidental fire destroyed a mobile home located on Hoyes Run Road, near Cranesville last Wednesday afternoon, according to Danny Layton Jr., chief of the Terra Alta Fire Department.

Damage was estimated at $18,500 to the trailer occupied by Robert Triplett and Ruth Frantz. No one was home at the time of the fire, Layton said.

Terra Alta firemen responded to the blaze shortly before 4 p.m. with 24 men and three pieces of equipment. Oakland firemen also responded to the scene with a tanker.

Firefighters experienced some difficulty traveling to the fire scene because of icy road conditions in the area, Layton added.

Thanks, B&L . . .

When the new Foundation of the Garrett County Memorial Hospital began its Capital Campaign over a year ago, many were skeptical that the $1 million goal set for the campaign could be attained. Even some of the campaign volunteers thought such a level was a bit idealistic for such a rural area. However, not only was the $1 million goal attained, but it has been surpassed by another quarter of a million dollars and it continues to grow.

There are several reasons for the success of the campaign. One is the high quality of medical care that is provided at Garrett Memorial, thanks to the competency and dedication of the administration, staff, board of governors, and physicians. Another is the outstanding effort by the Foundation members and scores of campaign volunteers who worked long and hard "selling" the hospital and the campaign to the general public.

A third, and perhaps primary, reason for the campaign's success is simply the recognition of excellence, the foresight, and the generosity of our citizens. Garrett County and surrounding West Virginia residents who are in Garrett Memorial's service area are not, in general, a wealthy group of people, but they obviously recognize how fortunate we are to have such a fine facility and how important a high standard of medical care is to a community, not only for us today, but also for future generations.

While there have been a number of large individual donations to the campaign, we wish to single out and commend Bausch & Lomb and the employees of the local B&L plant for their combined pledge of $100,000 to the campaign that was announced this week. What a tremendous show of support by so many people! The corporation issued a challenge to the employees, informing them it would match their pledges up to $50,000. The employees took that challenge and actually exceeded $50,000 in their pledges. For the Foundation and the campaign workers, the B&L contribution was "easy money," because the local plant's administration did all of the campaigning among the employees. The campaign presentation was made one time to Rich Schick, plant manager, and Jack King, also on the administrative staff, and they took the ball and ran with it, coordinating and conducting meetings about the campaign with the employees. The enthusiasm of all involved has been overwhelming.

So, to those of you at B&L and to all who have contributed to the hospital's campaign, we thank you on behalf of the entire community. You should be experiencing a sense of great pride for doing your part in helping to ensure continued first-rate hospital care for all of us.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

While visiting Garrett County recently, I noticed many changes had taken place during my absence. New construction along the lake and throughout Garrett County was apparent. Several new businesses have started also. There seems to be new generations living in Garrett County and doing well.

Another change I noticed was in retail sales. When I went shopping in Oakland I was surprised how sales personnel treat their customers. I went to three different stores and was treated the same way in all three stores. I needed to find a particular item. No one was willing to help me. Sales clerks would walk right by me not saying anything and when I would ask them questions, they acted like I was bothering them. They were too busy to help. If they would only realize that the customers are the reason the sales clerks are employed, maybe the attitudes of the sales clerks would change. If it were not for the customers, sales clerks would not receive pay checks.

The next time I visit Garrett County I will not shop in Oakland. It is not that much further to Cumberland, Uniontown or Morgantown to shop. Maybe sales personnel feel they do not need to be courteous to the customers because there is no other place to shop, so customers will have to put up with rudeness. Maybe sales personnel should think again.

Sincerely,
Cheryl E. Bonnell

To the Editor:

I read your article in last week's Republican about Steve McClintock with much interest. Mrs. Ruggiero did an excellent job of capturing the family's involvement in Steve's hobby.

I also inwardly beamed when my eyes met the photo taken by Craig Phillips of Steve and Ricky Nice. What most people probably saw was one teenager with a gawdy hairstyle and another teenager with no hair at all; but what I saw was true friendship and happiness between two young men.

I happened on another article about this 14 year old boy with liver cancer while reading a late summer 1988 issue of The Republican. My husband had also quietly read the same article and without telling each other, something told us both that we needed to visit this boy. One day in Morgantown we just blurted out to each other that we wanted to stop at Ruby Memorial Hospital. Neither of us could even remember the boy's full name; but the person at the information station was quite helpful and with the words Mountain Lake Park, pediatrics and cancer, we soon made our way to Ricky's room. One look at Ricky and both our hearts melted and we had wormed our way into the Nice family's lives as adopted grandparents.

One need this grandma saw was the lack of young people in Ricky's life. He gets bored and lonely much of the time between chemotherapy treatments. He has the needs of any 14 year old to remain as normal as possible in a difficult time of his life. When I learned of his fascination with motor bikes, one phone call brought Steve McClintock to Ricky's home.

I knew Steve could give what Ricky needed; because he had reached out before when my family needed caring. Steve and his family came almost daily in my son's Hospice situation; bringing gifts and laughter to another 15 year old boy.

I would advise your readers to retrieve their April 6 issue of The Republican from the trash bin and take another look at Craig Phillips' photograph. If they still can't see anything deeper beneath the hair in Steve's eyes and the scalp on Ricky's head, I challenge them to get involved in some other way.

April is cancer crusade month. Ricky's family is getting some monetary help from the Garrett County Unit of the American Cancer Society. Also, Hospice of Garrett County can always use volunteers. Stop and look around you. Ricky needs you as do dozens of others in Garrett County.

You know, it really isn't difficult to become a Good Samaritan and it feels wonderful!

To the Editor:

It seems that nearly every person I speak to has or knows someone who has arthritis. Ask people, you'll see I am right. I am often amazed by this phenomenon. But when I think more about it, it seems perfectly natural. After all, an estimated 37 million Americans are affected by arthritis. That's one in seven people — nearly 625,000 in the Maryland area alone.

May is National Arthritis Month. And during this past year progress has been made through arthritis research to help unlock the mysteries surrounding arthritis.

Some of the more noteworthy advances include: discovery of a substance in joint fluid that can help in the early detection of osteoarthritis; the finding of a genetic link among people who develop chronic arthritis as a symptom of Lyme disease; further evidence to support that rheumatoid arthritis may be triggered by specific infections in people who are genetically predisposed to develop this disease; new advances in drug therapy with discovery and approval of several new arthritis medications; and many more new insights.

Last year the Arthritis Foundation provided $8 million nationwide in arthritis research grants. Locally, the Maryland Chapter supports research into rheumatoid arthritis at Johns Hopkins University and lupus at the University of Maryland. The results of this research have meant not only new knowledge about the disease process, but also new treatment methods and programs designed to help people with arthritis live happier, healthier lives. And with continued public support, we will make even further advances in the future.

I urge people to contact the Arthritis Foundation's Western Maryland Branch to learn about the programs and services available to help people with arthritis cope with the disease. Learn about the latest in arthritis research through a new brochure called "Arthritis Research: What's New." Arthritis doesn't have to take control of a person's life. The Arthritis Foundation can help. Please call us at 759-9411 to learn more about the disease and how we can help.

Sincerely,
Bruce Alexander

We, the students of SHS Ski Club, would like to know why the ski area has closed a week earlier than previously advertised by the Wisp ski area. Supposedly the area was to be open through Easter weekend.

Is this change due to the fact that the director of mountain operations is out of town? Can the ski area not run without his supervision? How can the owner or operator of this recreational area allow this to happen? Is it not even possible to run one lift and operate the front side only, or is that too much to ask? Did they not take into consideration the way the owners of the various condominiums would react to such a decision? Does this interfere with their rental or usage based on the ski area operating?

To the Editor:

The teachers and students of Southern Middle School would like to express our gratitude to the 12 community volunteers and six teachers from Southern Middle School who devoted their time and expertise on Friday, March 31, 1989, in our annual Colonial Crafts Workshop. As part of our eighth grade students' American history study, they spend the day learning a craft from colonial times. We feel so fortunate to have had such a positive response from our community and the staff who were willing to spend a day with us and share their special craft talents.

The time and skills brought to us from the community and the extra effort on the part of our talented teachers was a wonderful lesson in community involvement for our students.

A special thanks to each of the following craftsmen who shared with us: Miss Dianne Dean, Scherenschnitte; Mr. and Mrs. Milton Naylor, Weaving; Mrs. Linda Bentley, Stenciling; Mr. John Watson, Wooden Folk Toys; Mr. Jim Raley, Wooden Folk Toys; Miss Marcette Danner, Pottery; Mrs. Sandy Carlson, Primitive Dolls; Mrs. Barbara Rush, Counted Cross-Stitch; Mrs. Barbara Leber, Needlepoint; Miss Irmgard Koscielniak, Cluny Lace; Mrs. Alanna Jones, Candlemaking; Mrs. Jean Grose, Butter Making and Taffy Making; Mrs. Sandy Scofield, Butter Making and Taffy Making; Mr. Wes Lovelace, Woodcarving; Mr. Milton Proudfoot, Scrimshaw; Mrs. Alison Geroski, Tole Painting; Mrs. Amy Rudy, Stamping; Mrs. Loretta Wotring, Marbleized Paper; Mrs. Kathy Newman, Stained Glass.

In addition, the Garrett County Arts Council generously supported us with a financial donation.

The spirit of cooperation and fun and the special craft skills taught us on that day were a true gift for the future.

In appreciation,

To the Editor:

Here we go again! From those same swell folks who brought us Three Mile Island and the Colossal Yellowstone Barbeque, we now have the Great Alaskan Oil Spill. This one is unique, however, because, unless we wake up to assure otherwise, we'll get to pay for this royal government SNAFU at the gas pump — forever! This week's ten cent bump at the pump tells us that EXXON's predatory competitors have already begun their pricing shenanigans.

Make no mistake; these corporate rascals know for sure that the same old scenario has already begun to unravel. First, the disaster occurs; then the feds try to sit this one out; finally they enter a day late and a dollar short; the environment gets trashed; while the oil companies bump pump prices and generally have their way with a snoozing buying public.

Well, snoozers, how about considering a different outcome — in two parts.

First, the EPA (shouldn't this apellation become Environmental Disaster Administration?) — the EPA should take immediate charge of the clean-up operations, using EXXON funds. Upon completion, a fine in the magnitude of last year's profits should be levied, immediately due and payable, regardless of legal appeal.

Second, we should give EXXON a break by exempting them from an industry-wide, year-long price rollback to the date of the disaster.

EXXON would be faced with two options: they could operate for many quarters at a loss with blood-thirsty shareholders searching for a responsible management team, OR they could try to collect at the pump, OR a combination of both.

Indeed, it is true that these may be crippling, if not fatal, blows. If fatal, however, EXXON's assets, including most operating personnel, would be swiftly absorbed by the competition, who would be served notice that to trash the environment is a form of corporate suicide. Never again, would the public trust under which these environmental-connected industries operate be treated with such arrogance and mindless disdain! The public has spoken!

Speaking out, however, may be easier said than done. We can bet that right now there is another massive oil industry spill taking place in the nation's capital, right on Capitol Hill. This spill is in the form of Big Texas Bucks being sent to minimize the Congressional backlash from the Alaskan Spill.

To counter and mop up this oil muck, we must spread many letters among our Senators and Representatives, and, as in the recent Congressional Pay Raise Caper, our will shall prevail.

Today is the day to wake up or wimp out at the gas pump.

Happy motoring!

R.W. Hicks,
Friendsville

Houston Man Incarcerated For Area Thefts

An 18-year-old Houston, Texas man is incarcerated in the Garrett County Jail in lieu of $50,000 bond in connection with the theft of two vehicles and other items in the area last November.

Rocky James Green Jr. has been charged with two counts of auto theft, breaking and entering, destruction of property and theft, according to Maryland State Police at McHenry.

Green was reportedly apprehended in December by Amite City Police in Amite, La. He waived extradition, and was brought to Oakland by Maryland State Police last Friday.

A 17-year-old male juvenile was also allegedly involved in the crimes, which occurred on November 29 and 30.

According to police reports, Green and the juvenile allegedly broke into the Youghiogheny Overlook Information Center in Friendsville and removed a television set and a video cassette recorder.

The suspects reportedly left the scene in a vehicle stolen from Wheeling, W.Va., then abandoned it at the Holiday Inn in Grantsville, stealing another vehicle there. The second vehicle was abandoned in Salem, Va., where police recovered some of the property stolen from the overlook.

Other charges are reportedly pending against Green in the case.

Wynne's Way

SPRING IS EXPENSIVE

Spring is colorful. Spring is romantic. Spring is expensive.

In springs past I always managed to squander the family vacation funds on wimpy marigolds, scrawny trees and self-destructing shrubbery. I just couldn't resist the urge to become one with nature by plowing, piddling and purchasing.

This spring, however, my husband is the one who is going to deprive us of Disneyland. He came home the other evening with a bouquet of daffodils and one of those "just because you're you" cards.

"For me?" I asked taking the flowers hesitantly, "What's the catch?"

"No catch!" he replied defensively, "Sit down on the couch, I have something I want to tell you."

As I sat down beside him paranoia struck and I miserably blurted out the first thing that came to mind, "You're in love with a spicy redhead whose father died and left her a fortune and your leaving tonight with her to live on some deserted island in the Caribbean!"

"No!" he shouted, giving me a very dirty look, "I've decided we need a riding mower."

"A riding mower!" I shouted back, somewhat relieved, "Those things cost a fortune!"

"I don't want a new one," he said, "as a matter of fact there's a guy at work that's selling his old one...cheap."

After supper that evening we decided to drive by the house where the mower "lived". When we approached the house we were both pleasantly surprised to find the man selling the mower cruising around his yard on what seemed to be a very attractive, well kept riding mower.

"Hey!" my husband exclaimed as we pulled into the driveway, "She's a beauty!"

It was all over. Man had met machine and given it a female gender. And, in all honesty, the riding mower we were admiring did look good. Too bad it was not the mower the man was selling.

The man raised his garage door and pointed to a pile of battered camping equipment.

"She's under there," he said, using the female gender as well.

My husband walked to the unsightly pile and proceeded to remove torn tents and dented cook stoves from the heap. As he tossed aside the last ripped backpack the unexpected was unveiled and, I'm sorry to say, it was love at first sight.

As my husband gently stroked the hood of the mower, his eyes grew wide as saucers and he began rolling off adjectives I had only heard him use on two occassions — our wedding day and the day our son was born.

I, on the other hand, had only two words to describe the "thing" in front of me: "scrap metal". If Stephen King were to set sights on the mower he'd surely be inspired to write a best-seller about an abused riding mower that took revenge on its owners and the town they lived in. The book would end with a local sheriff blowing the murderous mower to smithereens. After the mower had coughed out its last puff of exhaust, it would go to riding mower hell and spend the rest of eternity mowing down the Devil's dandelions.

Before I could speak my piece, my husband had written the man a check and the new object of his affection had been loaded into the back of our pickup.

As we were driving home, a State Trooper pulled us over. He got out of the car, took our license number and slowly strolled up to my husband's window.

"Was I speeding, Officer?" my husband asked.

"No, Sir," replied the officer, "you were littering!"

We got out of the truck and looked at the road behind us. For as far as the eye could see, nuts, bolts, wheels, gears, and seat stuffing littered the road behind us. Everything that was not welded to the mower had apparently hopped on a gust of wind in a last chance at peace.

The officer decided not to write us a ticket if we picked up the "remains" and we did.

We took what was left of the mower to a repair shop. The owner helped my husband unload the mower "carcass" and I handed him a trash bag containing the salvaged "road kill".

On the way home I asked my husband when the repair man might be finished performing his miracle. He said the repair man was laughing so hard he couldn't understand him, but he thought he'd said next spring.

The mower and its repairs will probably cost more than I could ever imagine. We're also going to need a new weed eater, a new garden hose, lawn sprinklers and grass seed.

Maybe next year Disneyland. Spring is colorful. Spring is romantic. Spring is expensive.

Dr. Philip Allen To Present Next GLAF Lecture

"Theatre Without Frontiers" is the topic of a lecture/slide presentation to be given by Dr. Philip Allen, Dean of Arts and Humanities at Frostburg State University, on Wednesday, April 19, at 7:30 p.m. in the art gallery of Garrett Community College. General Assembly Update

On Monday the 1989 General Assembly began its 90th and final day.

During this year's session legislators dealt with legislation ranging from horse racing to taxes and insurance, but among the more significant actions the legislators took during the 90 days was to put an end to a battle that has lasted a quarter of a century when they voted to require truck drivers to cover loose loads with tarps.

This measure was originally introduced into legislation in 1964, so it has been in existence for 25 years.

The reason for the introduction of the bill was drivers' complaints about broken windshields and chipped paint that they claimed were caused by loose material flying from truck beds.

Calm Session

This year the session remained relatively calm and some say it was because of the improvement in the relationship between Governor William Donald Schaefer and the legislature.

During the first weeks of the session, the governor avoided a political fight over the budget. For months prior to the session the governor tried to avoid the legislature's "spending affordability limits," as he wanted more freedom when it came to spending.

But when his $10.9 billion budget arrived on the House's first floor, lawmakers were both suprised and relieved to find that the governor had proposed only $23 million in new spending above the legislature's self-imposed limit.

After this happened there seemed to be little left for the legislature and administration to fight about. The lack of controversy provided for an orderly session.

There were no marathon floor sessions that lasted into the early morning hours, and the only weekend session was on the last Saturday of the 1989 General Assembly.

The information following provides an overview of some of the actions taken by the legislators during the 1989 General Assembly session.

Alcohol and Drug Abuse

Permitted was the immediate suspension of the driver's license of anyone who, when stopped for drunken driving, fails or refuses to take an alcohol test.

Approved bills that will permit courts to seize property obtained with the proceeds from drug sales; impose tougher penalties on drug "kingpins"; create stiffer penalties for dealers operating near schools; and will permit prosecutors to grant a type of immunity to witnesses in criminal cases.

Crime and Punishment

Enacted limits on the kind of convict who may be sent to Patuxent Institution, prohibiting first-degree murderers and rapists to be sent to this prison, except by the recommendation of sentencing judges.

Exempted individuals deemed mentally retarded from the death penalty.

Subjecting purchasers of assault rifles to a seven-day waiting period.

Economic Development

Passed bills that will help to protect Maryland companies from hostile takeovers.

Rejected a measure that would have allowed Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Company to set its own rates for experimental periods.

Education

Approved a Schaefer administration's budget appropriations of $93 million for new school construction around the state.

Approved a Schaefer request to increase the size of the State Board of Education from nine to 11 members and reduced its terms from five to four years.

Environment

Approved the protection of non-tidal wetlands by imposing regulations on their development in counties that have adopted no controls of their own.

Killed a bill that would have banned the use of granular carbofuran, a pesticide associated with the death of wildlife.

Health

Approved a bill that gives doctors the right to alert sexual and needle-sharing partners of a patient who test positive for the AIDS virus.

Racing

Postponed off-track betting in Maryland, sending the issue to summer study.

Transportation

A measure that requires certain trucks to cover loads of dirt, sand, gravel, woodchips, or other loose material that can blow or fall from the truck.

Killed a bill that would have raised the speed limit from 55 to 65 on rural interstate highways.

Corrections Noted

In the cutline with the picture of Conrad James in last week's edition of The Republican, it was incorrectly stated that a total of eight people received war memorial medals from China during the ceremony. In fact, James was the only recipient. We regret the error.

The name of Eddie Kovach was omitted from the list of those who helped the Deep Creek Lake Lioness Club at the recent Winterfest.

A cutline in the April 7th edition of The Republican with the picture of the Board of Directors of the Mountain Top Crisis Pregnancy Center incorrectly reported that Harry Biggs is the executive director of The Baltimore Crisis Pregnancy Center. In fact, Cindy Philkill is the executive director and Harry Biggs was the other guest speaker at the meeting.

In the accident reports in last week's edition of The Republican, information about the Martin accident was incorrectly reported. Carole Maxon and Irene Martin were taken to the hospital by the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad rather than Northern. A hospital spokesman reported that the two were not seen there. However, Maxon reported that they were treated and released at that hospital. Maxon reported the error, noting that Southern Rescue should be given credit for their excellent care.

Debra Friend Is Local BPW Rep In State Contest

Debra Friend, representing the Garrett County Business and Professional Women's Club, participated in the first round of the Young Career Women program state competition at Solomon's Island Holiday Inn in February. The event is sponsored by the Maryland Federation of Business and Professional Women's Club, Inc.

The first phase of the competition consisted of a speak-off and written biographical application. A reception followed the judging. Attending the reception were local club president Mildred Wucik and Young Career Woman chairperson, Lisa Thayer.

The concluding two events of the competition, personal interviews and group interaction, will be held during the Maryland State BPW Convention to be held at the Greenbelt Marriott in May. Six semi-finalists will be announced at the luncheon and from these a winner and first runnerup will be selected. The winner will represent Maryland at the 25th anniversary of the YCW Program to be held during the BPW/USA National Convention in Detroit later this year.

Debra recently obtained her PhD in administration and supervision and is employed by the Garrett County Board of Education as a speech-language pathologist. She is the daughter of Ellen Friend, Swanton and the late Wilmer Friend.

KING OF THE LOCAL JUNGLE.

NOW FORDIFIED WITH BIG SAVINGS AND BEDLINER AT NO EXTRA COST

Let's face it. Sometimes driving around here is like fighting through a jungle.

Maybe that's why Ford trucks are so popular in Pittsburgh and the Tri-State. And why, for the 12th straight year, the lion's share of truck sales again goes to Ford.

Full-sized, compact champs

One very big reason F-Series and Ranger lead the full-sized and compact truck categories nationwide* is their massive, high-strength Twin-I-Beam and Twin-traction Beam independent front suspensions.

Offered exclusively by Ford and exclusively for trucks, these systems allow each front wheel to step over obstacles independently. This reduces pitch and roll, and increases wheel control and traction off-road.

Another reason is that inside, outside and under the hood, F-Series and Ranger have a "big" edge on the competition.

The F-Series V-8s are the largest available in the light truck category. And it's the payload leader in most cases, with a longer, bigger cargo box than Chevy.

Ranger now comes with a more powerful 2.3L Dual Plug engine. And the STX sport rider, winner of the rough Baja 500 4x4 competition last year, features a 2.9 V-6 and specially engineered suspension. And Ranger offers the widest cab and extended cab of any compact truck.

Plus, while supplies last you get a $300 bedliner, with limited life-time warranty, at no extra cost if you purchase a Ranger or F-Series truck by April 15.

*Up to $750 cash back on '89 Ford Ranger. $500 cash back on '88 and '89 Bronco II and '88-'89 F-Series with manual transmission. 4.9% 24-month APR financing available through participating dealers from Ford Credit for qualified retail buyers on all Ranger models. Other rates available; rates vary with length of term. For low APR financing, or cash back you must take delivery from dealer stock by May 2, 1989.

Governor, General Assembly Given Housing Study

The Maryland Housing Policy Commission on Monday presented to Governor William Donald Schaefer and members of the Maryland General Assembly copies of a study pinpointing the problems low- and moderate-income families have in finding safe, decent and affordable housing.

The report also makes 22 specific recommendations to solve the problem.

Among the commissioner's findings were:

— In 1988, 40,000 Maryland households needed to use emergency shelters, compared to only 19,000 households in 1983.

— Nearly 75 percent of Maryland's single-parent families earn less than $20,000 per year.

— Housing costs continue to outpace most first-time buyers' incomes.

— Rising rents and stagnant renter incomes prevent many families from saving enough money to make downpayments on a home.

— Any loss of federally-subsidized low-income rental housing would exacerbate an already serious problem.

"There is little doubt Maryland is facing a critical housing problem for low- and moderate-income families," commission chairman Tom Hobbs said.

"The low- and moderate-income families are being squeezed out of the homebuying market, and in some cases, they're being pushed out of rental housing right onto the street," he said.

To improve housing opportunities for low- and moderate-income households, the commission said there needs to be additional support from all levels of government combined with assistance from the nonprofit and private sectors.

To increase the supply of affordable housing, the report lists 22 recommendations covering four broad areas of concern: Preserve and increase affordable rental housing; Leverage private and local resources; Improve the coordination among levels of government, and; Improve the Department of Housing and Community Development's internal operations.

The Maryland Housing Policy Commission is a 17-member body appointed by the governor and is composed of financial and real estate development executives, elected officials, private citizens, housing advocates and government and community leaders. The commission was formed in 1983 to advise the governor and secretary of DHCD on how to best provide affordable housing. The 1989 report represents 24 months of research by the commission and its staff.

For a complete copy of the report, persons may contact Rob Zimmer, Office of Research and Information Services, DHCD, 45 Calvert Street, Annapolis, Md. 21401, or call (301) 974-2132.

AMONG THOSE HONORED by the Garrett County Business and Professional Women's Club in its first printed history of local women of note were, left to right, Barbara Flinn, Mary Jones, Martha Glotfelty, and Polly Hanst. Mistress of ceremonies was Rosetta Rodeheaver, far right, who gave excerpts from the book about the 12 women honored, and their accomplishments. Others honored during the March 9 meeting of the BPW at Will O' the Wisp were Thekla F. Weeks, Alta Schrock, Ethel Grove, Dr. Lorilla Tower, Grace Jones, Mary L. Browning, Cara Weber, and Norma Bolding. Copies of the book are available from any branch of the Ruth Enlow Library, or by contacting Mildred Wucik, club president, at Northern High School or by phoning 826-8434. A grant from the Maryland Humanities Council helped with printing costs. Committee members were Helen Harman, Patricia White, and Mildred Wucik.

Lakers Give Up Several Leads In Losing Six Consecutive Contests

It has been a disastrous week for the Garrett Community College baseball team, as the Lakers had victory within their grasp several times, but saw it slip away every time. The Lakers dropped both ends of three doubleheaders, falling to host Marietta, Ohio, last Thursday, 17-8 and 4-3, to visiting Allegany Community College on Tuesday, 5-0 and 7-5, and to host Hagerstown Junior College yesterday, 4-3 and 6-5.

Coach Lawrence Nesselrodt's squad had leads of 6-0 and 3-0 in the games against Marietta before losing in the late innings.

Home runs by Dwayne Woodring and Eric Diehl in the first game led the Lakers to their 6-0 led after four and one-half innings of the first game, but Marietta took advantage of sudden rainy conditions in the bottom of the fifth to knot the score at 6-6.

Five walks and three errors in the sixth inning led to 11 more Marietta runs to put the contest out of reach. Four GCC pitchers yielded a total of 16 walks.

The Lakers built a 3-0 lead by the top of the fourth in the second game, but again Marietta responded with two runs in the bottom of the fourth and two more in the bottom of the seventh to win.

Garrett scored one run in the third when Woodring hit a two-out triple and came home on a single by Mike Harbaugh. The other Laker runs both came in the fourth when Tony Warner tripled home Bucky Riggleman and Scooter Browning followed with a single to score Warner.

Paul Wilson threw every pitch but one for the Lakers and pitched well until the bottom of the seventh when he allowed two hits and the tying run. Nesselrodt replaced him with Carmen Moon, but Moon's first pitch was wild, which allowed the winning run to score.

Harbaugh led the Lakers' hitting on the day, finishing with three singles and a double, while Riggleman recorded two doubles and a home run, Eric Diehl homered and singled, Darryl Dupert tripled and singled, and Browning rapped a double and a single.

Scott Johnson was the thorn in the Lakers' side in their games against ACC on Tuesday, as Johnson went six for seven on the day, including a solo homer and a three-run blast.

The Trojans ran their record to 16-1 with 13 straight wins. Again, the Lakers held a 5-3 lead in the second contest, only to see it disappear.

Gavin Osteen recorded a five-hit shutout in the first game as he struck out 12 batters.

ACC went on top 3-0 in the first inning, although two of the runs were unearned.

A sacrifice fly by Brian Sankovich that scored Johnson made it 4-0 in the third inning and Johnson's solo home run in the fifth completed the scoring.ing.

Cajetan Stepanic paced Garrett's hitting with a double and a single.

The Trojans again moved out to a 3-0 lead in the first inning of the nightcap when Johnson rapped his three-run homer, but the Lakers responded with two runs in the bottom of that inning on a two-run double by John Smith. Garrett added three more runs in the fifth on an RBI double by Stepanic and a two-run blast by Harbaugh to give the Lakers a 5-3 advantage.

However, four walks and run-scoring singles to Jim Krevokuch and Dennis Sweeney in the sixth knotted the score at 5-5. Dimmick then singled in Gingrich to make it 6-5 and Takitch drew a bases-loaded walk for the final run.

Pacing the Lakers' hitting were Harbaugh, who homered, Dupert, who had two doubles and a single, and Diehl, Smith, and Stepanic, who each doubled.

Against Hagerstown yesterday the Lakers out-hit the Hawks by a 21-11 margin on the afternoon, but were still unable to record a win. The losses left the Lakers with an 8-13 overall record and 2-5 in the Maryland JUCO Western Division.

An RBI double by Dupert that scored Tony Warner gave the Lakers a 1-0 lead in the opener against the Hawks, but a pair of walks and a sacrifice fly by Hagerstown tied the score in the bottom of the inning.

Woodring, Warner, and Diehl all singled in the third to make it 2-1 in favor of Garrett, but Hagerstown recorded three runs in the bottom of the fifth on a double by Boblez and an errant throw to second base by Garrett catcher, Brian Dillon.

Stepanic doubled and came home on a Chris Miller single in the top of the sixth to narrow the gap to 4-3, but that was as close as the Lakers could get.

The Lakers held a 3-0 lead in the top of the second inning in the second game, picking up two runs in the first inning on a two-run single by Harbaugh and an RBI by Woodring in the second. But the Hawks responded with five runs in the bottom of the third behind a bases-loaded double by Ben Gay and an RBI single by Flowers.

The Lakers fought back to tie the score at 5-5 in the sixth on a two-run single by Warner, but a single run by Hagerstown in the bottom of the sixth concluded the scoring.

The Lakers are slated to play a doubleheader at Catonsville CC this Friday and then host twinbills this weekend against Dundalk (Saturday) and Rockville (Sunday).

Huskies Fall To 1-3 With Loss To Meyersdale

Continued poor hitting and costly defensive mistakes paved the way for a 7-2 loss for the Northern High Huskies yesterday at the hands of Meyersdale, dropping Northern's record to 1-3. The contest was considered Meyersdale's home game, although it was played at the Cove because of poor field conditions at Meyersdale.

Coach John Helmick's team managed just three hits on the afternoon, two of which were by John Sherbin who smacked a home run and a double. Todd Wagner recorded a seventh inning single for the other Northern hit.

After taking a 1-0 lead in the first inning, the Huskies fell behind in the third when Meyersdale scored three runs. The Huskies picked up another score in the third, but the visitors responded with four runs in the bottom of that frame to put the game away.

Meyersdale finished with eight hits, as four players each recorded a pair. Josh Kinsinger led the way with a double and a single for two RBIs and also scored twice, while Brandon Eberly recorded a double and a single and Dave Boyce and Scott Logue each hit two singles.

Kerry Lowery, who struck out five and walked five, went the distance to record the win and a three hitter. John Sherbin, who allowed four earned runs, was tagged with the loss. Kevin Selby, who relieved Sherbin in the fourth, did not allow any Meyersdale runs.

"Our biggest problems are a lack of hitting and three-plus errors per game," Coach Helmick said this morning, noting that the Huskies committed five errors in the Meyersdale game. "We have scored only 10 runs in four games, and you just can't win many high school games with an average like that."

The Huskies are slated to travel to Berlin tomorrow for a single game, which will begin at 4:15 p.m.

NHS Girls Top Beall In Tennis

The Northern High girls' tennis team opened its season with a 4-3 win over host Beall last Friday afternoon.

Pam Brenneman and Kristin Edwards each won their singles matches and then recorded doubles victories, Pam with her sister Tammy and Edwards with Patrina Jones.

Pam Brenneman topped Beall's Brenda Anderson in straight sets, 6-3, 6-3, while Edwards rolled over Kristen Hann, 6-1, 6-2.

The Brenneman sisters then topped Tosha Layton and Brenda Anderson, 8-4, in doubles, while Edwards and Jones defeated Jennifer Dreef and Angie Bennett, 6-2, 2-6, and 6-1.

Layton, Holley Ralston, and Jenny Snyder won singles matches for the Mountaineers, with Layton edging Tammy Brenneman, 1-6, 6-3, and 6-4, Ralston defeating Jones, 6-2, 6-4, and Snyder topping Valerie Hamilton, 6-2, 6-3.

Top Scorer At East Preston To Play For Lakers

Marcia DeBerry, the East Preston Lady Eagles' second all-time leading scorer with a career total of 1,042 ponts, has signed a letter of intent to play basketball for Garrett Community College.

As a senior, DeBerry averaged 17 points and was selected to the Region III, Section I All-Star team for the third consecutive year.

She also recorded 689 career rebounds and sported a 71% free throw percentage. She was awarded second team All-State honors, Class A, after leading the Lady Eagles team to their second straight State Tournament appearance in Charleston.

"Marcia will be a great addition for us to build around" stated Laker Basketball Coach Dennis Gibson. "She is an excellent scorer and has a great attitude toward the hard work necessary to be successful at the college level. A lot of that can be attributed to the excellent girl's program that former Coach Messenger and Coach Bowman have developed at East Preston."

DeBerry plans to pursue a degree in business management.

Correction: It was reported last week that Jeff Smith was the fifth overall finisher in the recent Epilepsy Association 5-K Race. It should have stated that Jeff Gosnell, McHenry, was the fifth overall finisher with a time of 17:51.

THE NAME YOU NEED TO KNOW!

Jenny Hillen Concludes Outstanding Career With Lady Mountaineers

Jenny Hillen recently concluded an outstanding four-year career as a member of the West Virginia University women's basketball team, having led the Mountaineers this season to an Atlantic 10 championship and their first appearance in the NCAA tournament.

The former Southern High School standout, who holds all of the Rams' scoring records, was named WVU's Most Valuable Player for the second time, having led the team in scoring with 507 points for an average of just under 16 points per game. The 5-7 guard reached double figures 27 times this year and led the team in scoring 17 times.

She finished with a four-year total of 1,504 points, which places her third on the all-time WVU scoring list. She also holds the university's records in career steals with 350, single-season steals with 114, career foul shooting effectiveness with 81.9 percent, and single-season foul shooting record with 85.7 percent.

The Mountaineers finished with a 24-8 record, having earned their NCAA tournament bid by winning the Atlantic 10 title. Hillen was named the MVP in the Atlantic 10 tournament as she scored a total of 62 points in WVU wins over Penn State, top-seeded St. Joseph's, and Temple. She was also a second team All-Atlantic 10 selection for her play during the 1988-89 season.

The Mountaineers won their NCAA tourney opener by defeating Western Kentucky, but were then eliminated by Virginia, despite a 21-point effort by Hillen.

Other honors received by Hillen include MVP and All-Tourney selection in the Florida State Classic last season, and MVP and All-Tourney pick at the Arizona State Classic this season. She was also named the Atlantic 10 player of the week twice this year and the West Virginia University Athlete of the Week twice.

The daughter of Paul and Sue Shockey, Broadford Road, Jenny will complete her studies this year at WVU and receive a bachelor's degree in fashion merchandising. Although she loves basketball and athletics, Mrs. Shockey says she is ready to move on to other things after her graduation.

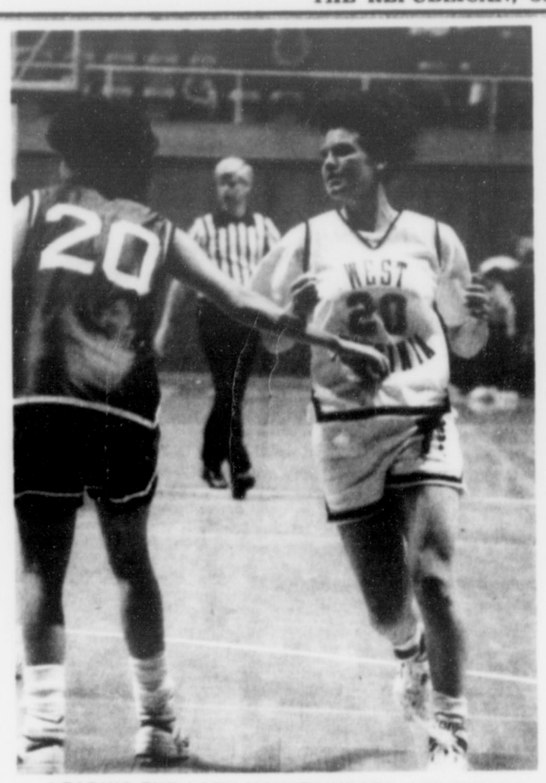

"We are very proud of Jenny," Mrs. Shockey said, "If I were asked to describe what a good daughter is, Jenny fits the description perfectly. Basketball is secondary to her when it comes to family and her studies."

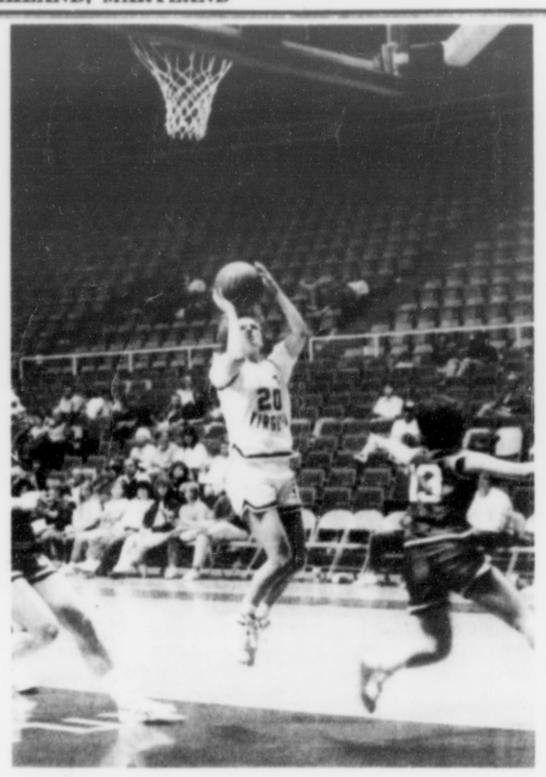

Mr. Shockey added, "Jenny has worked extremely hard to be where she is. Her philosophy is not to try to prove how good she is, but to always try as hard as she can. With a work ethic like that, there is no way that she can fail in life."

The Shockeys attended every one of Jenny's games this season with the exception of one, which was played at Kent State while they were driving from another game out west. The Mountaineers' road schedule included games in Kentucky, North Carolina, Oklahoma, and Arizona.

Hillen was quoted in an article in a recent edition of Blue and Gold News: "I will be the first to say that my parents have been great role models for me. If I ever have a child involved in athletics as much as I am, I want to be just like my parents and let my kids know that I am right there at their side pulling for their every move."

In the same article, Hillen stated, "When I came here (to WVU) all my friends in high school told me these scary stories about sitting on the bench and how college would be a different world from high school. But I never really listened to any of that stuff because I just wanted to play the best I could. If there was someone better, then fine, but I wanted to be at the top of my game at all times."

LEADING THE LADY MOUNTAINEERS of West Virginia University this past season was Jenny Hillen, a resident of Oakland and former standout at Southern High School. Hillen led the Mountaineers to their first ever post season NCAA tournament bid, as she was the team's scoring, free throw, and steals leader. She is now third on the list of WVU's all-time scorers and is the all-time leader in steals and free-throw shooting. She was named the team MVP as a junior and led the team in scoring this past season with a 16.4 point average. She is pictured below with her parents, Paul and Sue Shockey, four years ago when she signed to play for the Mountaineers. Below right, she is pictured with the other team leaders and tri-captains Judy Eaton, left, and Dionne Morris.

There's snow on the roof; no shoes on the feet. This lady's 76 and she can't be beat.

Happy 76th Birthday, Audie

We all love you!

Youth, Inexperience Lead To Four Straight Defeats For Lady Huskies

Youth and inexperience has taken an early toll on the Northern High girls' softball team, which has dropped its first four contests of the 1989 season.

The Huskies opened with a 16-4 defeat by Meyersdale, were dominated by Clear Spring in both ends of a doubleheader, 11-0 and 12-0, and were then edged by Hyndman, 7-6, despite holding a 5-1 lead going into the sixth inning.

Four walks, a single, and a triple by S. Walker in the first inning gave the Red Raiders of Meyersdale a 5-0 advantage. The Pennsylvanians added four more runs in the second frame via three singles, two walks, and two errors, and then recorded three more in the third inning. Two singles, a walk, a triple by Lowery, and a two-run homer by Wahl added four final runs in the fifth inning.

The Huskies recorded a single run in the first inning when Audra Speicher walked, stole second, moved to third on a passed ball, and was singled home by Laurie Stanton. They recorded their other three runs in the fifth inning, as Stephanie Young, Jennifer Birkby, Christy Jones, and Tammy Dodson hit back-to-back singles.

Karen Wilhelm took the loss on the mound.

Karen Cline and Betty Albright dominated the Huskies from the mound in the doubleheader at Clear Spring, as Cline tossed a one-hitter in the opener and Albright recorded a no-hitter in the nightcap.

Cline struck out a dozen Husky batters and walked only one. Northern was down only 3-0, but the Blazers erupted for eight runs in the fourth inning to put the game away.

Christy Jones had the lone hit for the Huskies, a single in the fourth inning. Birkby was tagged with the loss on the mound.

Albright fanned nine Northern batters and walked only two enroute to her no-hit victory, as she and her teammates scored runs in every inning. Tracy Teats absorbed the defeat on the mound.

Coach Bob Yunker's squad jumped off to a strong start against Hyndman, taking a 3-0 lead in the first inning as Speicher led off with a bunt single, Birkby followed with a hard smash to shortstop that was bobbled, and Jones singled home Speicher. Birkby then scored on a fielder's choice by Michele Beeman and Becky Leight drove home Jones with a double to center.

Hyndman loaded the bases in the first three innings, but a combination of clutch pitching by Birkby and solid defense kept them from scoring.

Northern pushed across two more runs in the fourth inning when Jenni Bowser led off with a walk, Karen Wilhelm singled to left, and Speicher walked to load the bases. Birkby then walked to force Bowser home and Jones rapped a sacrifice fly to center to score Wilhelm.

Hyndman responded with a single run in the fourth on an RBI single by Lehman, making it 5-1.

Hyndman knotted the score at 5-5 in the sixth inning on four hits, a walk, and a Husky error.

The Huskies regained the lead in the top of the seventh when Michele Beeman led off with a single, Leight followed with her third hit of the afternoon, and both runners advanced on a double steal. Beeman then scored on a passed ball.

Hyndman pitcher Renae Sager helped her own cause in the bottom of the seventh by leading off the inning with a double. Kristy Reed then tied the score with a single to left and Linda Ringler later drove home Reed for the winning run.

The Huskies' next opponents are Meyersdale and Berlin.

Rams Fall To 1-3 With Loss To Black Knights

The Southern Rams saw their record fall to 1-3 Monday afternoon in Lonaconing as they were blanked by the Valley Black Knights, 5-0, behind a three-hitter by pitcher J.J. Wilson.

Wilson struck out 16 Ram batters and aided his own cause by smacking a two-run double to give the Knights their fifth win in six starts this season.

Valley recorded a pair of runs in the third inning as Jeff Lewis singled, advanced to second when Brad Green was hit by a pitch, and came home on a hit by Pat Dick. Green then scored on a hit by Jim Lauder and an error at first base.

The Knights' other three runs were recorded in the fifth inning, as Haggerty and Lauder came home on Wilson's double and Dick scored on Lauder's single.

Freshman Brett Rice recorded two of Southern's hits, as Jack Fitzwater, who was relieved in the fifth by Bobby Horner, took the loss on the mound. Fitzwater and Horner yielded six hits.

Coach Jim Bosley's defending champions will attempt to pick up their second win of the campaign when they travel to Central Preston this Saturday.

Bar Addresses Dissatisfaction Of Attorneys

After an intense, two-day discussion on problems surrounding the legal profession, including lawyer dissatifaction, stress, a negative public image, and overall discontent with the practice of law, the Maryland State Bar Association (MSBA) has developed a list of 44 recommendations to address and encourage greater satisfaction within the legal possession. These solutions evolved from a special "professionalism" conference conducted by the MSBA on March 17-18, 1989, in response to findings from an MSBA survey earlier this year indicating a high level of dissatifaction among Maryland attorneys. The recommendations were ranked in priority order by the conference participants, comprised of 85 attorneys and judges across the state.

In addition to the specific recommendations, general themes also emerged from this conference. It was the consensus of the group that attorneys want time to perform free (pro bono) legal service, volunteer for community activities and have time for their families yet this is not encouraged by many firms, who emphasize excessively high numbers of billable hours per week. Law firms must clarify the values and standards they expect from attorneys. It was also felt that better orientation be given to law students and new Bar admits so that they know exactly what they are getting into.

The specific recommendations, in priority order:

* Time and time sheets should be only a rough guide or starting point and not the master of both relations with clients and the progress and income of lawyers.

* Firms should redefine productivity and performance so that those concepts incorporate a broader view of an individual's attributes. Firms should encourage outside activities and interests, such as pro bono work and community service. Firms should recognize these types of activities as additional measures of an attorney's value to a firm and the attorney's own personal satisfaction.

* Firms should establish and express the values they live by and live up to those values.

* The MSBA and/or the Court of Appeals should require attendance at a seminar/course on professionalism.

* Law schools, bar associations and the profession should make sure that those who enter the profession know that practice environments vary widely and require hard work and degrees of significant personal sacrifice so they can better choose a compatible environment.

* The MSBA should encourage the formulation of guidelines for professional courtesy which should be widely disseminated. These guidelines should address personal dignity and professional integrity.

Although some of these may be considered aspirational, many require immediate action and the MSBA plans to issue a final report and develop an action plan to present to its membership in June at its annual meeting.

The Maryland State Bar Association is a professional, nonprofit, voluntary membership association comprised of over 13,500 attorneys across the state of Maryland.

Spring has become more than the season of robins and baseball in Garrett County. For the past three years, it has also been the season of the Galaxy Program at Garrett Community College.

This program offers enrichment classes for students of all grade levels, their parents and other interested adults on Saturday morning for six weeks. Classes are one or two hours long and are designed for four specified levels: kindergarten through second grade; third through fifth grade; middle school grades; and high school and adult.

According to Joan Crawford, originator of the program, the concept of offering concurrent classes for parents and children has been successful. "We have many family combinations in the program," Crawford stated, " especially among elementary age students. One mother who has three sons attending the program says she is glad to have an alternative to Saturday morning cartoons."

This spring 160 students are registered in 11 different Galaxy classes. Courses that proved popular the first two years have been offered again by this year's program coordinator, Carol Dearden.

This kind of response would indicate that the Galaxy Program is here to stay.

Fred Stemple, Mayor Wycoff In Charge Of WCI Special Events

"Special events are all those things that don't go on in a boat on the water," explained Fred Stemple, vice president of the Whitewater Championships, Inc., Special Events Committee.

Stemple, a retired Navy musician, believes the 1989 Canoe/Kayak Whitewater World Championships on the Savage River in Bloomington will offer spectators and participants not only exciting, world class racing, but also a full schedule of "world class" activities.

Although the special events for Whitewater Festival '89 are coordinated by a small group of volunteers; Stemple pointed out the group's task is a large and sometimes a rather hefty one. He muses that his basement (which is now a temporary home for flags from 57 nations) is beginning to resemble the flag room at the United Nations. He added the committee is responsible for obtaining four flags for each country participating in the Championships.

Stemple's military career as an instrumentalist and then an instructor at the Armed Forces School of Music, Norfolk, Va., led him to his current role with Whitewater Championships. Having spent more than 30 years working in pomp and circumstance, Stemple joined WCI as a volunteer in 1987 in hopes of providing a ceremonial aspect to the awards presentations.

Cumberland Mayor George M. Wyckoff Jr. serves as Stemple's associate vice president of the Special Events committee.

Planning for this year's calendar of special events began last summer as the 1988 Maryland Canoe/Kayak Classic, a pre-world championship competition at Savage River, was wrapping up. Stemple highlighted the Opening Ceremonies at Frostburg State University, the on-site medal ceremonies, a "dancing in the streets party" and the closing night galas of the two-week competition as key events.

Opening Ceremonies are set for Thursday, June 15, on the campus of Frostburg State University, featuring the traditional parade of world athletes, a color-spectacular array of 57 national flags and a performance by the U.S. Marine Drum and Bugle Corp. In addition, a several-hundred voice Whitewater Chorus, comprised of volunteers from across the country, will also perform under the direction of renowned choral director Paul Hill. A parade through the City of Frostburg to the FSU stadium by the athletes, the Marine Drum and Bugle Corps, local buckskinner organizations and the wagon train carrying the International Canoe Federation Flag will kick-off the evening's events. Similar to the passing of the Olympic Torch, the ICF flag is being transported to the World Championships site by flotilla and wagon train.

Fred Stemple

Mayor George Wyckoff

An international foodfest on the University campus, with plenty of bluegrass music for entertainment, will follow the Opening Ceremonies in the stadium.

On Saturday, June 24, WCI and First United National Bank and Trust will host the "Whitewater Dance Party" at the Cumberland Holiday Inn with music by the band, The Hubcaps, who specialize in music from the 1950s and 1960s. He said the dance would be held outside the parking lot in front of the Holiday Inn, weather permitting, or in the Center City Parking Garage in the event of rain.

As a spectacular end to Whitewater Festival '89, a fireworks show is planned for the closing gala at Deep Creek Lake State Park on Sunday, June 25, at 10 p.m. The fireworks exhibition is being conducted by Zambelli Fireworks, of New Castle, Pa., which was also responsible for Fourth of July shows in Washington, D.C., and the Statue of Liberty Celebration.

A host of events are planned for the athletes and volunteers throughout the two weeks, reiterated Stemple.

A native of Garrett County, Stemple retired from the Navy in 1986 and has since graduated from Garrett Community College. In addition to his volunteer work with WCI, he is involved with Stemple's Dry Cleaning in Oakland and is employed within the hotel operation of the WISP Resort at Deep Creek Lake. He and his wife, Mary, reside at Deep Creek Lake.

Mayor Wyckoff continues to be a driving force with WCI and has been since the prospect of attracting the world class event to Western Maryland originated. While being mayor of Cumberland keeps Wyckoff more than a little busy, he also serves on the Memorial Hospital (Cumberland) Board and is co-chair of the Cumberland Labor — Management Committee. He is president of Cumberland Steel. He and his wife, Lucy, reside in Cumberland.

Stemple says he is "looking forward" to this summer's World Championships and all its festivities in anticipation that the efforts of his committee will be enjoyed by all. "The Special Events Committee is working diligently. We still have a lot of work to do. But at the events, people will see that we have exceeded ourselves over last year," predicted the vice president.

Garrett Lakes Arts Festival represents an admirable example of the gratifying local and regional revivals of specifically American forms — the romantic theatre, the Broadway musical, indigenous folk themes — the dynamics of what is done and how it's appreciated tend to be increasingly multicultural and cross-disciplinary."

As the national direction in theatre, music, and dance joins the global direction already taken by business, professional structures, environmental policy, medical therapies, and mass culture, Dr. Allen anticipates an exciting future for the performing arts. "We're in for a powerful ride on the wings of Kabuki, gamelon instrumentation, polyrhythmic dance theatre, and electronic eclecticism," he predicts.

In his lecture, he plans to pursue an understanding of these new art forms and of how one's own experience may be enriched by the new cosmopolitanism.

GCC Student Of The Week

This week's Garrett Community College Student of the Week is Dwylin Miller, son of Robert and Ruth Miller of Grantsville.

Miller is a 1983 graduate of Northern High School, where he was a member of the band and chorus.

A freshman at GCC, he is enrolled in the Liberal Arts Program and is planning a career in telecommunications. He has received the Maryland State Scholarship and has participated in the play Androcles and the Lion, recently performed at GCC.

Miller is a disc jockey at WAIJ in Grantsville. He is also the lead vocalist for the contemporary Christian band, "Lifeline." In his spare time, he enjoys theater and music.

When asked to comment on GCC he said, "GCC is a good place to start after you've been out of school for a number of years. The student/teacher ratio is nice when you need personal attention."

Wildlife Seminar Scheduled Friday At Garrett CC

Coors Brewery, of Golden, Colo., and Lohr Distributors Inc., along with the assistance of Garrett Community College, will sponsor a wildlife seminar at the college on Friday, April 21 at 7:30 p.m.

The seminar will cover the topics, "How to Plan Big Game Hunts," "How to Plan a Wilderness Fishing Adventure," and "Calling in the Game".

The seminar will be presented by outdoorsman Ray Pradines, an award-winning TV broadcaster, video producer and wildlife educator from Nashville, Tenn.

Pradines said, "I believe the key to becoming a better hunter and fisherman is to learn as much as possible about animal and fish behavior — especially an understanding of how wild critters use their senses for survival. And such knowledge is also valuable to those who merely like to observe wildlife or take better wildlife photos and videos."

The seminar will be held in conjunction with the Coors Extra Gold/Garrett Bassers Walleye Tournament scheduled for April 22 at Deep Creek Lake. Applications for the tournament can be obtained at many retail outlets or by calling 387-6501.

For several years, Coors has been associated with other outdoor programs such as the National Rifle Association, the National Wildlife Federation, and the Rocky Mountain Elk Foundation, and the Coors Annual Schuetzenfest, a target contest utilizing single-shot rifles.

"Coors is heavily committed to conservation and the outdoors, and I am proud to serve as their spokesman," said Pradines. "Through these programs, the 100 million outdoorsmen in American can be assured that Coors is doing their part to support and preserve the environment and outdoor sports."

GCC To Offer Time Workshop For Secretaries

Garrett Community College's Center for Community and Continuing Education will offer "A Time for You" workshop for secretaries on Wednesday, April 26, from 1:15-4 p.m.

This workshop, on Secretaries Day, will teach time management techniques, analyzing use of time, working in a time effective manner with a boss and co-workers, and increasing individual and office productivity.

Registration deadline is Monday, April 24. Enrollment is limited. Persons should call GCC, Center for Community and Continuing Education, at 387-6666, ext. 169 or ext. 115, for additional information.

Fitness Event At GCC Raises $500 For Heart Fund

Garrett Community College students, faculty, and staff recently participated in a two-day physical fitness event to benefit the American Heart Association. "Fitness for Heart," which was organized and conducted by students in Ann Wellham's Introduction to Physical Education class, raised $500 for the Heart Fund.

During the week prior to the event, members of the class conducted fitness evaluations for interested persons in the Student Center to determine desired weight, target heart rate, cholesterol levels, and flexibility evaluation.

According to Wellham, who is coordinator of athletics for the college, the program had dual objectives: to promote knowledge of physical fitness related activities and to support the American Heart Association.

Fifty persons participated in the physical activities which included rowing, biking, weight machines, volleyball, three-on-three basketball, walking, and jogging. Participants solicited sponsors before the contest and earned 10 points for every 10-15 minutes of activity, with a goal of 40 points for the two-day period.

Top money raiser in the contest was Darlene Tressler of the Admissions Office, with Ann Wellham finishing in second place. Elizabeth Hudson of the American Heart Association helped to coordinate the event.

Members of the Introduction to Physical Education class who organized and conducted the Fitness for Heart are Bill Cassela, Darryl Dupert, Shayne Couch, Brian Griffin, Jeff McIntire, Kelly Likens, Tony Warner, and Sonja Yelovich.

Commenting on the success of the event, Wellham stated, "It was all centered toward experiential activities related to physical education. AAHPERD promotes jump rope for heart, but we felt that fitness for heart was more appropriate for us. I am now looking forward to what ideas these students have for National Health and Physical Education Week in May."

GCC Musical Program Set For Tuesday

A varied musical program will be presented by Garrett Community College on Thursday, April 20 at 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium under the direction of George McDowell.

The Mountain Top Brass Quintet will present a variety of selections ranging from the classical to pops, and the Community Chorus will perform songs from Broadway musicals.

Following the performance, refreshments will be served in the college art gallery where the High School Art Exhibit is currently on display. The public is invited to the free performance.

WILDLIFE SEMINAR — Rick Pradines, an award-winning TV broadcaster and wildlife educator from Nashville, Tenn., will present a Wildlife Seminar at Garrett Community College on Friday, April 21, at 7:30 p.m. The seminar is sponsored by Coors Brewery and Lohr Distributors. Pradines is pictured above with two Alaskan silver salmon from the American River in Kodiak, Alaska.

Conflict Resolution Class Scheduled

Effective communication, the process of sharing information with other individuals, is often cited as the ability most critical to the success of an individual or business. A new mini-class at Garrett Community College is designed to enable supervisors to help maintain a stable, productive workforce by understanding the dynamics of conflict resolution.

This course will present "hands-on" learning designed to improve basic communication skills and strategies for handling conflicts. "Communication and Conflict Resolution Skills" will meet at the McHenry Campus from 6:30-9:30 p.m. on April 25 and May 2.

Additional information and registration materials can be obtained by calling the Continuing Education Division of GCC at 387-6666, ext. 169.

An annual event, the smorgasbord, will be served at the Aurora United Methodist Memorial Building on April 29 from 4:30 p.m. until 7 p.m. Sponsored by the Loyalty S.S. Class, donations of $4.50 for adults, and $2.00 for children under twelve are asked while pre-schoolers eat free.

MICHAELS BIRTH

In the announcement of the baby born March 31 to Robert and Rebecca Michaels of Deer Park, the little boy's name was omitted. My apologies to Tyler Preston Michaels, and to his parents.

HAZARDOUS WASTE DISPOSAL STUDIED

At the April 4 meeting of the Eglon Extension Homemakers, the topic of "Handling Hazardous Household Waste" was discussed by Linda Lewis. Household chemicals used in cleaning, painting, in the bathroom and in drains, for the home garden, petroleum products for the car or truck; farm chemicals such as herbicides, pesticides, and fertilizer are also included in disposal problems. Only limited amounts of these can be placed in approved landfill operations — that is, the containers or small amounts left in them. Batteries and used oil should be recycled if possible. All of these reactive, toxic or corrosive chemicals may be absorbed, ingested or inhaled to make them a problem both in use and disposal.

Opening devotions "Love Your Neighbor as Yourself" were provided by hostess Sandra Hauser and a poem, Miracle of Spring, was read by Mary Rembold.

The president, Linda Lewis, reported on her recent attendance at the County Council and announced that April 1 there would be a 7:30 p.m. program at the Preston County 4-H Camp to meet the recent IFYE student to Sweden. A change of the fiscal year to July 1 has been made in the county program. A Child Safe video is available and the president was authorized to order it.

Mrs. Lewis and Jean Winters attended the Demonstration Day held March 30 in Kingwood, and a report of that was made by Mrs. Winters. The club will not participate in Health Card sales.

A committee was appointed to make plans for the May 2 meeting which will be an all-day event beginning at 9:30 a.m. There will be a salad luncheon with the hostess providing the bread and beverage — everyone else is asked to bring a dish. Anyone interested in attending is invited to do so — the morning is to be spent in learning "how to," the afternoon with a lesson on "Health Care Costs." This will be a special effort in observance of National Home Demonstration Week.

ROTARY NEWS

Approval of a recent levy has allowed Preston Memorial Hospital to be more financially solvent and has created more care services, Preston Memorial Hospital Administrator Hilda Heady told members of the Terra Alta Rotary Club at their March 23 meeting.

Heady said she believes the success of the levy was helped by the fact the hospital's administration was candid with the public and explained thoroughly the serious problems that institution was facing. She said she believes Prestonians understood the problems and as a result went to the polls and passed the levy.

The PMH Administrator said the success of the levy allowed the hospital to refinance bonds at a more favorable interest rate. As a result, PMH is better able to serve the public.

Heady said modern medicine demands sophisticated technology. Both hospital and patients prefer that patient be treated at one center, rather than having to be sent to other centers for specific illnesses.

Preston Memorial Hospital now has a pulmonologist, a urologist, an ophthalmolgist, and hopes to have an obstetrician and gynecologist soon.

The institution is also considering creating a scholarship for qualified paramedic students. These, Heady said, would be similar to public health scholarships.

Heady said this would improve medical care and may further get the attention of the federal government, which she said is beginning to appreciate the necessity of federal aid to small, rural hospitals.

4-H CLUB MEETS

The Travelers 4-H Club (Cranesville)l met March 23 at the home of Rhonda Metheny. President Becky Sanders called the meeting to order. The American and 4-H Pledges along with song were led by Jennifer West and Daphne Collins. Devotions were given by Annette Sisler.

Secretary Rhonda Metheny read the minutes of the previous meeting. Roll call was answered with members naming their favorite Easter candy. The treasurer's report was given by William West.

Future plans for the club include a roller skating party, participating in the "Adopt a Highway" program and the walk-a-thon for Hospice.

Leader Judy West talked to the members about a recent leaders' meeting she attended at Jackson's Mill.

Members attending were William West, Jennifer West, Ben Grose, Jason Grose, Joleen O'Brien, Becky Sanders, Mike Sanders, Daphne Collins, Annette Sisler, Charlie McCray and Rhonda Metheny.

Adults and guests attending were Judy West, Mary Ellen Sanders, Sarah and Ronnie Metheny, and Bill and John Grose.

Coal Bills

fellow committee member), accepted an amendment to the Senate version of the bill, on a 6-5 vote, that would exempt the state from paying the two-cent surcharge. This means that the coal companies would be required to pay four cents a ton.

Delegate Edwards and Senator Bambacus then wanted the bill matter sent to a House-Senate conference committee, and that is what happened.

After the conference action, the assembly set a formula of six cents a ton from the counties, three cents a ton from the industry, and a penny a ton from the state during the period of July 1, 1989 to January 1991.

The formula will then change to six cents a ton from the counties and two cents a ton each from the industry and the state.

Senator Bambacus was a member of the sunset bill conference committee, but the Senate EEA committee refused to appoint him to the conference committee for the reclamation bond supplement reserve.

Also early in the evening on Monday, the General Assembly sent a bill to the governor that will enact a $3 tax credit for qualified electrical co-generator plants which burn Maryland coal.

When the co-generator purchases more state coal than it did in the year 1986, the tax credit can be applied.

percent of the employees were re-hired with the new company.

Many employees could not be re-hired because certain skills which were inherent with the product line of American HV Test are not inherent with the new company.

Vitez reported that Phenix Technologies currently has a work force of 22 employees, which is a reduction from the number employed by American HV Test. However, Vitez stated that the company is planning to expand, and hopes to be up to the level of the former company in one to two years.

Vitez also reported that the engineering force of Phenix Technologies is tremendously upgraded from the previous company's.

According to Vitez, the new company will produce basically the same product, but plans to expand and broaden the product line. Several additions will include circuit breaker testers, high current and cable testing systems, current regulators and voltage regulators.

SHS STUDENTS HAVE CRAFT DAY — The second annual Eighth Grade Crafts Day was held recently at Southern Middle School, when a number of teachers and other persons from the community shared their talents and instructed the students in a particular craft. The event is held in conjunction primarily with the students' study of American history in their social studies classes, but also involves their language arts and even industrial arts classes. As an introduction to the activity, the eighth graders are taken to the Somerset Craft Fair during the fall. Following the Craft Day, each student must write explanatory paragraphs about their chosen craft as a writing exercise. Pictured above and then moving clockwise: Sandy Carlson teaches primitive doll making to students Ingrid Carlson, left, and Jennifer Evans; math teacher Jean Grose leads a class on taffy making for, left to right, Lisa Shaffer, Cathy Collins, student teacher Sandy Schofield, Candy McCrobie, language arts teacher Suzie Sincell, Lara Harvey, and Amy Davis; Chris Ford, Jon DeWitt, Tack Spiker, Chris Herbert, Roy Palmer, Jim Rhodes, and Jason Groves, (left to right) learn bird carving from language arts teacher Wes Lovelace; a bandaid around an unidentified thumb indicates that there are some hazards to bird carving; Gary Upole, Jason Ridenour, and Ed Martin work on making wooden whistles, under the direction of Jim Raley and John Watson, industrial arts teachers; and Dianne Dean, language arts teacher, displays a finished piece of Scherenschnitte, or the art of paper cutting, while students (left) Chester Stacy, Tiffany Powers, LaDonna Wolfe, and Tanya Dragovich, and (right) Paul Schroyer, Carrie DiSimone, Carrie Shaffer, and Kevin Savage look on. The event was coordinated by teachers Gary Turney and Sara Ramsey. "It's a fun way to get the students involved with history and colonial crafts," Mrs. Ramsey said. The finished products of the activity will be on display at the school's Excellence Fair on May 5.

amount the business requested.

"The bank would give the state a special interest rate, and would then loan the money at an interest rate at least three percent below the going rate on loans."

According to Edwards, the state would agree to keep that CD for no more than five years.

"If the person or business defaults on the loan, it doesn't affect the CD the state has taken out at the bank. Therefore, there is no risk for the state."

$10,000 CHALLENGE — In conjunction with the Year of the Young Reader (1989), a $10,000 challenge has been issued by the Friends of the Ruth Enlow Library to raise funds to purchase new children's books for the library. The challenge which was proposed by Sull McCartney, Friends president, was made because of the great need for new children's books at the library. "And since there is a growing group of active Friends volunteers, we thought this challenge would be worth the work involved," McCartney said. The deadline for the Challenge is December 31 of this year and the books purchased with the funds will benefit all of the county libraries. Pictured is Ruth Enlow Library employee Sheila Hughes leading the weekly children's story hour, held every Thursday. Nancy Pagenhardt is the chairman of the Challenge Committee and persons wishing to assist with the project are aksed to attend the next organizational meeting, slated for Wednesday, April 26, at the library in Oakland.

HAND-SCULPTED PORCELAIN DOLLS — A collection of porcelain dolls made by Fronia Blamble LaPere is currently on display at the Ruth Enlow Memorial Library. The dolls' faces are sculpted by hand and hand painted. Some of the doll's bodies are porcelain and some are weighted with cotton and plastic beading. All of the clothes are made from original patterns and also made by hand. Many of the dolls have human hair. Ms. LaPere resides in Porterville, Cal., with her husband, David. She is a licensed psychiatric technician at the Porterville Developmental Center. Ms. LaPere is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Blamble, Table Rock. The first doll of each pattern is given to Ms. LaPere's mother, Madelein Blamble. Ms. LaPere sends the dolls to "Granny Blamble's Nursery" by UPS. "Granny" Blamble does not sell the "kids," but does occasionally find a home where a "child" is needed. Ms. LaPere was Garrett County Farm Queen in 1952. Pictured above is a small sample of the many beautiful dolls currently on display at the library.

Words can hit a child as hard as a fist.

What you say to children can determine how they feel about themselves. And how they feel about you. When you're upset, get hold of yourself. Stop and think about what you're saying. Stop using words that hurt. Start using words that help.

Library Begins Adopt-A-Shelf Care Program

The Ruth Enlow Library is asking that individuals, families, clubs, or organizations adopt and care for a shelf in the library.

The "adopt-a-shelf" program, which was begun by the Board of Trustees and Friends of the Library, is open to anyone 12 years of age or older interested in giving the gift of time to their local library and learning to "read" shelves.

"Reading" a shelf involves keeping all of the books on a shelf in numerical or alphabetical order. This would require a person to come to the library approximately once a week to check on their shelf.

Training for the adopt-a-shelf program will be available on April 24, 7-8:00 p.m.; April 25, 9:30-11:30 a.m.; and April 27, 1-3:00 p.m.

Interested persons who are unable to attend one of the scheduled sessions should call 334-3596.

Elizabeth Anne Warnick Fife, a native of Grantsville, returned to this area two years ago to care for her parents, Emmons and Grace Warnick, bringing daughter, Elianne, with her. Tom, whose duties to "the Portugese-speaking world" take him throughout South America, Africa and Portugal, has been speaking in area churches and along the the Eastern seaboard. Elizabeth Anne is a member of the Grantsville Area Choir, which she has assisted in directing. Elianne, a native of Brazil, entered Northern Middle School two years ago with no knowledge of the English language. She now attends Northern High, where she belongs in the band. Good Food and how to prepare it!

April is Cancer Control Month

AMERICAN CANCER SOCIETY

Eat to Live!

Seven easy recipes and guidelines to good eating that won't complicate your life and may help reduce your risks of cancer.

First In A Series

1. Avoid Obesity

Obesity is linked to risks of uterine, gall bladder, breast and colon cancers.

Tip:
Properly supervised exercise and diet will help you control your weight. Talk with your physician about an ideal program for you.

Just plain walking is great for general well-being and will get you started right NOW!

STRAWBERRY YOGURT SHAKE

½ cup unsweetened pineapple
¾ cup plain low-fat yogurt
1½ cups frozen, unsweetened strawberries
1 teaspoon granulated sugar

Add ingredients in order listed to blender container. Puree at medium speed until thick and smooth. Makes two 1½ cup servings.

CREAM OF BROCCOLI SOUP

½ cup minced onion
1 tablespoon margarine
1 tablespoon all-purpose flour
1 can (10½ ounces) low sodium chicken broth
1 package (10 ounces) frozen, chopped broccoli
½ teaspoon tarragon, crushed
¼ teaspoon garlic powder
¼ teaspoon ground thyme
Black pepper to taste
1 cup skim milk

Saute onion in margarine over high heat in a saucepan, about 3 minutes, or until soft. Add flour and cook stirring constantly, 1 minute. Gradually add chicken broth, stirring until well blended. Add broccoli, tarragon, garlic powder, thyme and black pepper. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat, cover and simmer 15 minutes or until broccoli is tender. Add milk and simmer, uncovered, 5 minutes. Add ¼ at a time to blender container and blend at medium speed until smooth. Return to saucepan and simmer till heated through. Makes four 1-cup servings.

MOCK FROZEN PEACH "DAIQUIRI"

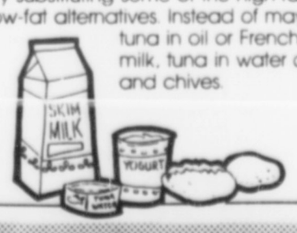

1 cup juice-packed canned peaches
2 tablespoons frozen pink lemonade concentrate
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
1 large egg white
1 cup crushed ice

Chill peaches in freezer until very cold. Add to blender container with pink lemonade concentrate, lemon juice, egg white and crushed ice. Puree until smooth. Pour into glasses. Makes two 1¼ cup servings.

2. Cut Down On Total Fat Intake

A high-fat diet increases your risk of developing breast, colon and prostate cancers.

Tip:
Try substituting some of the high-fat foods in your diet with low-fat alternatives. Instead of mayonnaise, whole milk, tuna in oil or French fries, substitute yogurt, skim milk, tuna in water or a baked potato with yogurt and chives.

MOCK SAUSAGE PATTIES

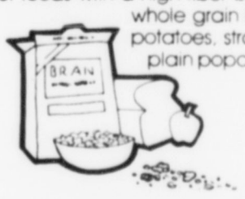

1 pound ground turkey (or chicken)
¼ cup salt-free seasoned bread crumbs
2 tablespoons low-sodium chicken broth
2 tablespoons minced onion
1 tablespoon minced fresh parsley
1 teaspoon vegetable oil
¼ teaspoon ground sage
¼ teaspoon ground thyme
1/8 teaspoon ground black pepper
1 large egg white

In medium-size bowl, combine all ingredients, except egg white. Using hands, blend ingredients well. Gently beat egg white with a fork, add to mixture and incorporate with hands or large wooden spoon. Shape into 12 patties. Place on non-stick cookie sheet (or cover regular cookie sheet with aluminum foil and spray with non-stick vegetable spray). Broil 3-4 inches from heat source 4-5 minutes or until light brown. Turn and broil additional 2-3 minutes, or until cooked through. Makes 6 servings.

3. Increase Fiber In Your Diet

A high-fiber diet may reduce your risk of developing colon cancer.

Tip:
There are different kinds of fiber in foods. Eat a variety of foods with a high-fiber content like all bran cereals, whole grain breads, apples, raisins, sweet potatoes, strawberries, kidney beans and plain popcorn.

TOTE-ALONG DRESSING

1 can (12 ounces) low-sodium tomato juice
3 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
1 tablespoon finely chopped onion
1 tablespoon minced fresh parsley
1½ teaspoons arrowroot powder
¾ teaspoon granulated sugar
¼ teaspoon garlic powder
1/8 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon ground black pepper

Combine all ingredients in screw-top jar, shake to blend. Pour into small saucepan and cook over medium heat, stirring. Bring to a boil and continue cooking, stirring, 1-2 minutes or until slightly thickened. Allow to cool. Return to jar and keep refrigerated. Makes 20 one-tablespoon servings.

4. Add Foods Rich in Vitamins A and C

Vitamin A may help protect against cancers of the esophagus, larynx and lung. Vitamin C may protect against cancers of the esophagus and stomach.

Tip:
Eat plenty of fresh fruits and vegetables. For vitamin A, make them dark green or deep yellow like carrots, spinach, broccoli, peaches, apricots and squash; vitamin C comes from citrus fruits — oranges and grapefruits, plus broccoli, brussels sprouts, kale from the cabbage family, and tomatoes or cantaloupe.

5. If You Drink Alcoholic Beverages, Drink Moderately

If you drink large amounts of alcoholic beverages, you increase your risk of liver cancer.

Tip:
Use alcohol only on special occasions or at parties and always drink in moderation. If you entertain, make sure you have non-alcoholic beverages on hand and order them as an alternative yourself.

TOFU BAKED ZITI

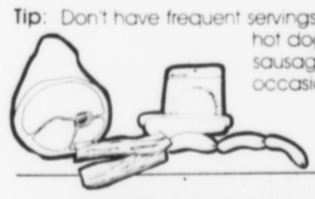

½ cup chopped onion
1 clove garlic, minced
1 teaspoon vegetable oil
1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce
2 cans (8 ounces each) low-sodium tomato sauce
2 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley
½ teaspoon oregano
8 ounces ziti macaroni
12 ounces tofu, drained
1 large egg white
1 package (10 ounces) frozen chopped spinach, cooked and well-drained
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
1/8 teaspoon ground black pepper
½ cup (2 ounces) grated low-sodim, low-fat Swiss cheese

Preheat oven to 350°F. Prepare sauce: In medium-size saucepan, over medium-high heat, cook onion and garlic in vegetable oil 2-3 minutes. Add tomato sauces, 1 tablespoon parsley and oregano. Bring to a boil, reduce heat, cover and simmer 15 minutes. Meanwhile, cook ziti according to package directions, omitting salt. While ziti is cooking, puree tofu with egg white in food processor or blender container. Place in large bowl. Add spinach, remaining tablespoon parsley, nutmeg and pepper. Blend well. Drain ziti and add to tofu mixture, blend well. Place ¼ sauce in bottom of 2-quart casserole. Add ⅓ tofu-ziti mixture, spreading with large spoon or spatula. Continue making layers of sauce and tofu-ziti mixture, ending with sauce. Top with grated cheese. Cover and bake 30 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

6. Limit The Amount Of Salt-Cured, Smoked and Nitrite-Cured Foods

Cancers of the esophagus and stomach are more common in people who consume large quantities of salt-cured, smoked and nitrite-cured foods.

Tip: Don't have frequent servings of smoked bacon, ham, hot dogs, certain cold cuts and sausages. Save them for special occasions.

APPLE WHOLE-GRAIN BREAD PUDDING

4 cups stale whole-wheat bread cubes, about 6 slices
1 cup skim milk
½ cup apple juice
4 cups peeled, thinly sliced apples (3-4 medium apples)
¼ cup raisins
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
2 large egg whites
2 tablespoons granulated sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla extract

Preheat oven to 350°F. Place bread cubes in large mixing bowl. Add milk and apple juice and toss. Add apples, raisins, lemon peel, cinnamon and nutmeg to bread cubes. In medium-size mixing bowl, beat egg whites until foamy. Gradually add sugar and vanilla, beating until stiff peaks form. Fold egg whites into bread-apple mixture. Pour mixture into a 1½ or 2-quart casserole. Set in a pan of water and bake 45 to 50 minutes or until lightly browned on top and apples are tender. Makes 6 servings.

7. While Eating Out, Stay Health-Conscious

Since so many of us eat away from home, learn how to order healthfully. And teach your children how to do it, too!

Tip:
In restaurants, order your food baked, broiled or poached without butter. Ask for dressing, sauces and gravy on the side. A simple dish will usually contain less fat and lower calories. You can bring along your own salad dressing or ask for fresh lemon — see back of this card!

DON'T BE FOOLED!

There will be a great many practical jokes played on the 1st of April and for the most part they will be harmless fun. But there is also a meaningful lesson that we can associate with April Fools Day.

Health quacks play people for fools by tricking them about their most important possession — their health. They promise quick and easy cures where really none exist and because people want to believe, they blindly go along. Don't be fooled. Rely on health professionals such as your physicians and pharmacists.

A WELCOME STOP

In the days of the Old West, before motor cars and the Iron Horse, the principal mode of conveyance for passengers and mail was by the overland stagecoach route.

From starting point to destination the trip was tiring, uncomfortable and hazardous. Travel was not easy. The trails were rough, the going cramped and the jostling about was painful. And, of course, the threat of an Indian attack or holdup was ever present.

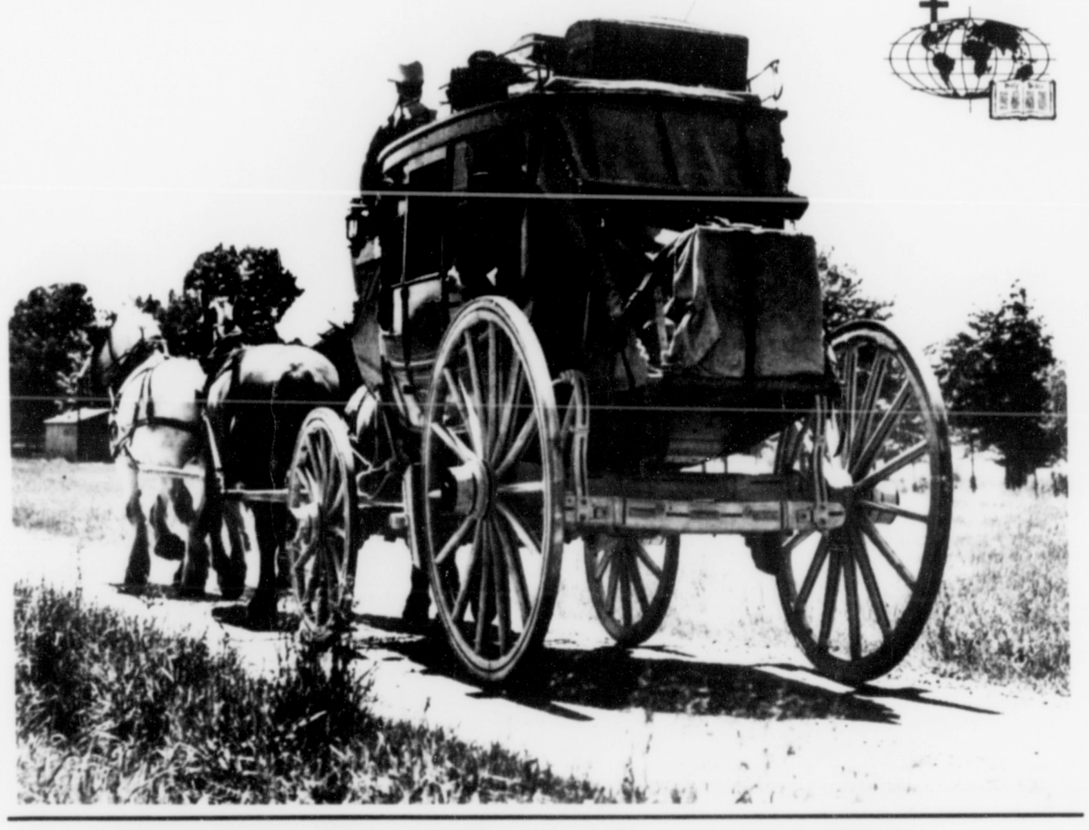

After endless hours or perhaps days, comfort and rest for the weary travelers was a must. Regular stopping places or stations were far too infrequent along the way and each one just couldn't come soon enough. When one was sighted, it was sheer pleasure and welcome relief.

If your week's journey has been somewhat long and unbearable, look forward to the next station stop, your church or synagogue. There you can renew and refresh yourself. It will make the next leg of the journey easier.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

MAKING IT
April 16, 1989

Background Scripture: Philippians 3; 1 Timothy 1:1-2, 18-20; 2:1-6.
Devotional Reading: Psalms 34:1-8.

In the business world, we say a person "has made it" when they rise to a top position that can command an extraordinary style of living. In athletics, we figure an athlete has "made it" when he or she is courted by the pros. In just about every field of human endeavor there are accepted canons of success.

But what about spiritual matters—how do we "make it" there? In the ministry, it is commonly accepted that being elected a Bishop or Senior Minister of one of the largest, most prestigious congregations is "making it" to the top. Among the laity, it might be serving as Chairperson of the Board or lay delegate to the church judicatory. Among still others, it might be a matter of belonging to the "right church," subscribing to the "right beliefs" or getting saved in the "right way."

REASONS FOR CONFIDENCE

In Jesus' and Paul's days, many people thought that the only way to "make it" with God was to be a Pharisee and that meant living strictly by the religious laws of Israel. Although this was a lot to live up to, if a person was truly diligent (or perhaps fanatical), it could bring a tremendous amount of satisfaction—even pride.

If that's what it took to "make it," Paul reminded the Philippians that "If any other man thinks he has reason for confidence in the flesh, I have more..." (3:4). What could be more impressive than Paul's religious pedigree?

But Paul didn't believe that he had "made it." In fact, "...whatever gain I had, I counted as loss for the sake of Christ..." (3:7). "Making it" that way, said Paul was an illusion, for one cannot "make it" that way: "...not having a righteousness of my own, based on law..." (3:9). The righteousness we accumulate with our religious pedigrees, no matter how impressive it may seem, just doesn't, cannot add-up to what is the real "prize" of our spiritual quest—"the righteousness from God that depends on faith."

PRESSING ON

In a sense, we don't "make it" with God, because that implies that we have achieved the prize by our own merit or efforts. Instead, to be a true disciple of Jesus Christ means that we are dependent, not upon what we have achieved, but are constantly in the process of growing towards a goal that is always beyond our reach. "Not that I have already obtained this or am already perfect," says Paul, "but I press on to make it my own...I press on toward the goal for the prize of the upward call of God in Christ Jesus" (3:12,14).

So, "making it" as a follower of Christ means that in this life we do not arrive, but we are always pressing on.

TV CLASSICS

Atypical comedy featured apologetic comedy performer

By John Haakenson

Ask a network executive what his or her idea might be for a successful sitcom about high school, and you'd probably get some variation on themes we've seen repeatedly in recent years: a wise-cracking, tough-guy teacher; several buffoonish students who spend class time arguing loudly with each other and the aforementioned teacher; generous doses of slapstick and bathroom humor.

It's not likely the executive would propose a situation comedy whose lead character is spectacled, mild-mannered, and whose idea of high drama is the irrational mating habits of the bee, as compared to his own.

Yet, in 1952, Wally Cox burst upon the national television audience playing just such a character, Mr. Peepers, and an American comedy classic was born.

Cox, as Peepers, entered American pop culture almost apologetically as the shy science teacher at Jefferson High. Although those who knew Cox say he was born to play Peepers, it wasn't easy matching him to the role.

Cox had been working around in small New York clubs, doing an offbeat comedy routine about his school friend, Dufo. Dufo would entertain his pals with various playground insanities, much to the amusement of the kids. "That Dufo," Cox would smile, "what a crazy guy."

NBC saw a television future for the soft-spoken comedian, but the problem came in casting him. Cox made a few TV guest appearances, then acted once or twice on Philco Playhouse. Finally, the network had a concept ideally suited for Cox—he would play Mr. Peepers, the modest teacher who co-existed with fellow teachers and students at Jefferson.

Mr. Peepers was atypical television comedy in that it did not go for the guffaw: no slapstick, no broad jokes. It was tailored after Cox's own personality. Cox, like Peepers, was in real life a student of insect behavior, an avid reader of Scientific American and modest to a fault.

His co-stars in Peepers included Tony Randall as Harvey Weskit, Peepers' brash friend; Marion Lorne, the befuddled middle-aged lady; and Pet Benoit, the high school nurse who would eventually become our hero's lady.

Mr. Peepers, performed every week on live television, was an instant hit with fans and the critics. Time and Look magazines lauded Cox as a comedy find. It's hard to imagine such a mild-mannered show finding that kind of success in today's prime-time lineups.

'A Deadly Silence' challenges communities

Film tells story of Cheryl Pierson

By Chad Andrews

When a 16-year old girl in Long Island named Cheryl Pierson hired a classmate to kill her sexually abusive father, individuals across the nation were outraged. Outraged both by the murder and the events that led to it.

A Deadly Silence, airing Sunday, April 16, on ABC, is based on the book of the same name by New York Times reporter Dena Kleiman, who covered the trial and served as consultant on the film.

The drama depicts the anguished desperation of Cheryl Pierson (Heather Fairfield), who claimed she was trapped for years in an incestuous relationship with her father, James (Charles Haid).

Driven by the suspicion that he was beginning to molest her younger sister, Cheryl hired a schoolmate to kill him. A Deadly Silence follows the subsequent court proceedings, and goes through Cheryl's release from prison.

Said executive producer Robert Greenwald, "The book, very clearly and very eloquently, makes the case that incest is not just an individual crime. It's not just one person abusing another. For it to go on, for it to continue, really requires the silence of a whole community, a whole society, a family, schools, advisors.

"I think that if we do our job properly with this film, we'll be able to communicate that fact, the very silence that had to echo for such a long period of time for this to go on."

Heather Fairfield stars as teenager Cheryl Pierson, and Charles Haid plays her abusive father, in the fact-based A Deadly Silence, Sunday, April 16, on ABC.

Sting takes the spotlight when HBO World Stage: Sting in Tokyo, featuring his greatest Police hits and solo smashes, premieres Saturday, April 22, on HBO.

CABLE HOPPING

Sting featured from Tokyo

By Stoney Black

He was once a member of the rock band the Police; and now he's a solo artist. Also, their humor is arresting (get it?) and they have an eclectic mix of guest stars. Confused? Well, this is America, so get over it and read on.

He began his adult life as Gordon Sumner, a part-time school teacher and aspiring musician. Today, he is known simply as Sting, basically due to a bee-like striped shirt which became a trademark during his Police days. This month, HBO World Stage presents Sting In Tokyo, an hour-long concert featuring the grammy winner at his jazz/rock best. Songs such as "Set Them Free" and "Fortress Around Your Heart" will be featured as Sting and his band performs. The concert premieres Saturday, April 22, on HBO.

It's strange, it's imaginative, it's funny ... and It's All True. Everything and anything goes on Bravo this month as Julien Temple's lampooning look at the power of video makes its cable debut. Sir Michael Hordern and Dandy Nichols star as a middle-aged couple, trapped in separate Sony TVs, who go on an Alice in Wonderland-like journey through the history of the "moving image." Orson Welles, Mel Brooks, Grace Jones, Koo Stark and Sony founder Akio Morita make cameo appearances in this odd tale. It's All True premieres Saturday, April 22.

Watch Your Language

Actor Lee Horsley, of Paradise, recently talked about 1980 parallels to his character's life in the 1890s. "We're playing people, and people have always shown grief and bravery in the same way," he said. "The only thing you have to be careful about is the language. You can't go around saying, 'That's a rad horse you got there, Ethan.' "

Thread of Inspiration

Of the thousands of authentic period costumes used in Around the World in 80 Days, designer Emma Porteus said her favorite was created in a spur-of-the-moment burst of inspiration. "We were about to film the bandit king in his hideout when we realized his robe was stuck in customs at the Yugoslav border. Suddenly, we spotted a lovely black and gold brocade bedspread in the producer's hotel suite, and an idea was born."

HOROSCOPE

April 16 through April 22

ARIES (March 21 - April 19)
Your positive outlook on life will help you find new job opportunities. Working in the yard or just being outside with friends and family will bring you closer together.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20)
Watch that you are not too agressive with the ones you love. A new friend could bring some good luck. Take a break from the ordinary and do something really crazy and fun.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20)
Take a much-needed rest and have some fun. Spring fever will run rampant this week. Give into it and have a great time. You deserve a little fun.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22)
Redecorating and buying furniture may set you back a few bucks, but it is worth it. A gift of flowers could bring a ray of sunshine to a loved one's weary day.

LEO (July 23 - August 22)
Find some time just to meditate and take it easy. You are stressing yourself out for no good reason. Be realistic when asking others for favors.

VIRGO (August 23 - September 22)
Why don't you let up? Quit being so hard on yourself. A new person in your life could take you on an interesting journey. Trust your instincts and have fun.

LIBRA (September 23 - October 22)
Some happy news will brighten your week. A family member's ill health will improve greatly this week. Take this as a sign of hope.

SCORPIO (October 23 - November 21)
A special gift given to a loved one could bring the desired results. Be careful with your money; lending should not be on your agenda this week. You won't see the money again.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 - December 21)
Keep that positive image up and smile. Others are looking at you for guidance. Family members need special attention this week.

CAPRICORN (December 22 - January 19)
Check out all the facts before making a decision on finances. Your instincts are not quite in sync. Loved ones will drive you crazy this week; be patient.

AQUARIUS (January 20 - February 18)
A letter from a friend will bring some happy moments to what seems a very dull week. Just think of how busy you were before and appreciate this time.

PISCES (February 19 - March 20)
A friend could show you how to have fun in a different way. A surprise in the financial sector is around the corner; be prepared for the best and the worst to happen.

AT A GLANCE

You may not have been able to travel Around the World in 80 Days with Pierce Brosnan, Julia Nickson, Peter Ustinov and Eric Idle (to mention a few), but you will be able to accompany them on NBC, beginning Sunday, for just six hours. So, hop into the basket and let's go; it will be fun!

A Deadly Silence, airing Sunday on ABC, is the true account of a Long Island girl's 'life with father' horror story. The story will leave you in silent contemplation.

Eric Idle, that very funny man who was a founding member of Monty Python's Flying Circus, is starring in his own series, Nearly Departed, Mondays on NBC. You really should see it.

Ustinov gets chance at the one that got away

By Chad Andrews

As a member of the entertainment community, one could hardly get any more well-rounded than Peter Ustinov. One might say he's done it all.

An actor, producer and writer Ustinov won two Oscars as Best Supporting Actor (Spartacus and Topkapi) and three Emmys for his performances in the Omnibus series The Life of Samuel Johnson, Barefoot in Athens and Storm in Summer. He received an Emmy nomination for the PBS special The Well Tempered Bach.

He has written 23 plays and nine teleplays; has starred or co-starred in over 35 films and 20 plays; and has directed eight films, eight plays and eight operas.

The London native has produced seven best-selling records, written and starred in his own radio show and appeared on countless TV shows around the world.

His many honors include the Commander of the Order of the British Empire, the Benjamin Franklin Medal and the Commandeur des Arts and des Lettres.

This week, he plays the intrepid Detective Fix in NBC's six-hour Around the World in 80 Days, airing Sunday, April 16, through Tuesday, April 18. This bumbling detective pursues Phileas Fogg (Pierce Brosnan) and his companions (played by Eric Idle and Julia Nickson) around the world, believing that Fogg has robbed the Bank of England.

Ustinov, interestingly enough, was offered the same role in the 1956 film version of Jules Verne's classic adventure novel, but did not play the part. "I was forced to turn down the role of Detective Fix in 1956," he said, "because I was under contract to another studio and they would not 'lend' me out. When I was offered my choice of roles in the miniseries, I immediately realized this was my big chance to play the character I had lost out on before. You might say I waited 30 years for this role."

Classic novel comes alive in miniseries

Brosnan stars as daring traveler

By Linda Sparkman

The year is 1872. The place is London. A dapper, aristocratic gentleman named Phileas Fogg unexpectedly bets his fortune that he can circle the globe in 80 days.

Around the World in 80 Days, airing Sunday through Tuesday, April 16-18, on NBC, follows Fogg (Pierce Brosnan) and his valet Passpartout (Eric Idle) as they attempt to win the wager.

Fogg, who is suspected of robbing the Bank of England in a comic case of mistaken identity, is followed by a rather inept detective (Peter Ustinov), who is always one — or more — steps behind.

"Fogg may appear rigid, but he's really quite impulsive," Brosnan said. Of course, his first impulsive act is accepting the bet which sends him on his whirlwind world tour, but a later impulse causes him to rescue the exotic Princess Aouda (Julia Nickson), who then becomes a traveling companion.

"Princess Aouda is," said Nickson, "a very independent woman, ahead of her time. She's brave. She's resourceful. She finds a way to get what she wants, but without using any kind of manipulation.

"The interesting thing is that she goes from being a princess to more of a woman, so she maintains her dignity, but you see a real human being that emerges as she travels with him around the world."

The cast features a rather impressive list of guest stars, including Henry Gibson, John Hillerman, Jack Klugman, Roddy McDowell, Lee Remick, Pernell Roberts, James B. Sikking, Jill St. John and Robert Wagner.

When Jules Verne's novel The Tour of the World in 80 Days was published in 1873, its whimsical look at then-contemporary travel inspired people around the world. Would-be adventurers formed travel clubs to duplicate Fogg's wager and incredible voyage across the globe in equal time.

Over 100 years later, the producers of Around the World in 80 Days completed the same journey in 19 days as they scouted locations across Europe and the Far East. But according to Ustinov, who plays Detective Fix in the miniseries, such an efficient trip is unusual, even with today's modern transport.

"A recent flight from Rome to Granada took me 48 hours because of local strikes, cancellations, bad temper and all sorts of things," he said. "At the rate which I got from one to the other, I would have needed more than 100 days to go around the world."

Nickson, who traveled the globe with her six-week old daughter, China, had yet another experience. "We dragged bottle, baby food, toys, equipment and diapers from location to location," she said. "We were like our own little show — Around the World with 80 Boxes of Pampers!"

Westvaco Machine Rebuild Complete

Completion of a 21-day, $75 million major shutdown and rebuild of one of its largest paper machines had been announced by Roger Dandridge, vice president/mill manager of Westvaco's Luke mill.

The massive project was accomplished by a combined effort of some 1,400 contractor workers, plus an additional 225 mill employees from maintenance and operations, on an around-the-clock basis. The work was carried out in two 11-hour shifts each day. During that time, there were a total of 2,100 contractor employees working on all construction projects at the Luke mill each day.

Normal paper production continued on the No. 9 Paper Machine just across the aisle in the same building while the rebuild was under way.

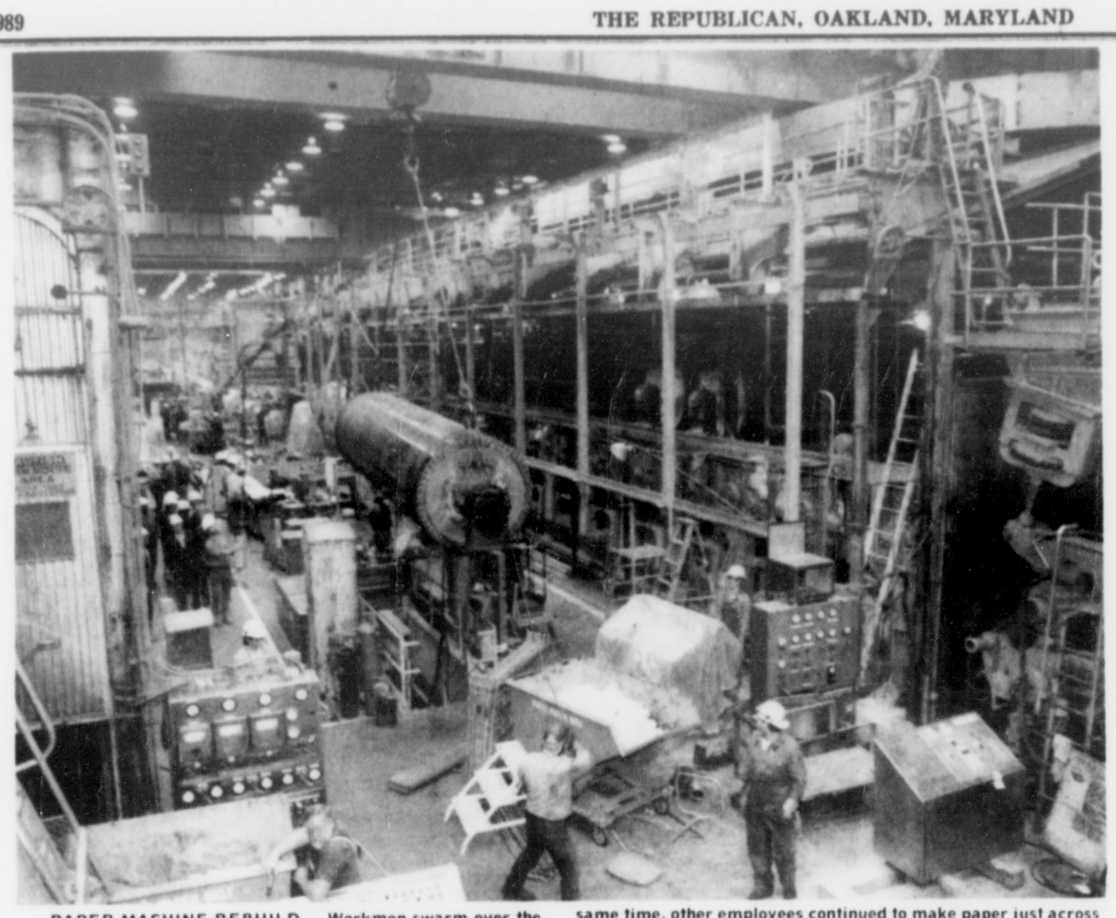

"The basic purpose of the shutdown and rebuild was to permit the paper machine, a city-block-long complex unit, to produce a much higher grade of white coated printing paper," Dandridge said. Extra production capacity created by the work was minimal.

The vast machine was actually disassembled down to below floor level at some portions, lengthened at both ends, and new equipment installed. The new equipment had earlier been received, preassembled, and checked out for fit in a warehouse at the Celanese Industrial Park. During the shutdown, it was trucked to the site by 35 flatbed tractor trailers working around the clock to deliver the equipment and then have it assembled on site.

The shutdown began at 3 p.m., Monday, March 6, and the new paper machine was running with paper on the reel at 3:30 a.m., Monday, March 27.

The 10 companies with contractor employees working on the paper machine rebuild were Walter N. Yoder & Sons, Cumberland; M.J. Electric, Inc., Iron Mountain, Mich.; Carl Belt, Inc., Cumberland; BE&K, Inc., Lynn Haven, Fla.; E&A Construction, Somerset, Pa.; George Construction Company, Cumberland; Choice Insulation, Inc., Washington, W.Va.; TBN Associates, Inc., Beltsville; O.B. Cannon & Son, Philadelphia; and Midwest Water Blasting, Tecumseh, Mich.

Roger Dandridge has stated that the Luke mill's No. 9 Paper Machine is planned to be taken down for a similar $75 million renovation and rebuild during the spring of 1990.

PAPER MACHINE REBUILD — Workmen swarm over the No. 8 paper machine at Westvaco's Luke mill during a recent 21-day shutdown. The city-block-long unit was completely rebuilt during the $75 million outage. Over 1,600 mill and contractor employees worked around the clock to complete the project. At the same time, other employees continued to make paper just across the aisle. There were over 800 people working on the machine at any one time. Basic purpose of the shutdown was to enable production of a much higher grade of paper.

Training Place Receives Award From Governor

Governor William Donald Schaefer and Randall Evans, secretary of the Maryland Department of Economic and Employment Development recently presented the Training Place for the Western Maryland Consortium with a superior performance award for Program Year 1987 (July 1, 1987 to June 30, 1988).

The Training Place's local government and private business partnership exceeded the standards for federal and state job placement and training programs for the third year in a row.

"Not only did we beat all seven standards this past year," said Peter Thomas, executive director of the Consortium, "but we did so by the highest percentage in our history."

The federal Job Training Partnership Act lists guidelines to measure performance and the level of success in placing unemployed persons into jobs.

The Training Place received $119,968 in bonus dollars and incentive awards. The job training and placement agency received 95 percent of all bonus money available and will now be able to expand services to the unemployed.

A total of 1,698 economically disadvantaged individuals and 1,233 dislocated workers were able to take advantage of the training services and activities offered last year. The Summer Youth Employment and Training Program was able to serve 837 students.

Participants in the classroom training classes offered at the Training Place are able to obtain the G.E.D. (high school equivalency diploma), upgrade skills or gain new skills in a wide range of occupations.

The Individual Referral Program offers participants instruction on an individual basis. The program had 150 enrolled, an increase of six percent over 1986. Many of the program participants attended local schools and colleges to develop their job skills.

The Examplary Youth Program provided 427 youths, aged 14 to 21, with job training and job finding skills. The design of the program varies in each county, serving in-school and out-of-school youths, including a group of handicapped youth in Washington County. Many Garrett County youths are served in JTPA programs through the Garrett County Board of Education.

The management of Bausch & Lomb has named Employees of the Month and they include: Kathy Ball and Leo Britner, first shift; Terry Elliott, second shift; and Sharon Paugh, third shift.

Ms. Ball joined the company in June 1972 as a light machine operator in the Opthalmic Toric Department and has held various positions since that time. She is presently a set-up operator in the Lens Surfacing Department.

Dave Koon, manager of Lens Surfacing, stated that she was chosen employee of the month because of the excellent quality of her lenses. "Kathy is a very hard-working employee who strives for quality," Koon said. "Her work attendance record is also excellent."

Ms. Ball resides in Aurora, W.Va.

Britner joined B&L in September 1986 as a master mechanic, a position he currently holds in the Maintenance Department.

According to Rich Ford, Maintenance manager, he was selected to receive the award for his "excellent display of skills as an electrician." Britner has also completed training at the Mineral County Vocational Technical Center.

He resides in Terra Alta, W.Va., with his wife, Sally, who is also an employee of B&L.

Ms. Elliott, a resident of Kitzmiller, was hired by B&L in October 1975 as a module operator and is currently the second shift group leader in the Lens Surfacing Department.

According to Ron Heginbotham, Lens Edging Department manager, "Sharon has earned employee of the month for demonstrating leadership abilities. She conducts the 290 Quality Action meetings on the third shift operation and has the future of her department and the plant in her mind at all times."

She is a resident of Elk Garden, W.Va.

Weatherization Program Receives Major Funding

Senator Barbara A. Mikulski, D-MD, has announced that the U.S. Department of Energy has awarded the State of Maryland a $7.99 million contract for the Weatherization Assistance Program, which provides energy conservation measures for the housing of low-income persons.

"This money will help Marylanders stay warm and save money at the same time. Weatherization is an excellent investment that pays for itself, over and over again, in lower heating costs," said Mikulski, who as a member of the Senate Appropriations Committee worked to get the funding included in the Fiscal Year 1989 Interior and Related Agencies Appropriations Bill.

Energy conservation measures provided by the program include weatherstripping, caulking, attic insulation, storm windows, and hot water heater wraps.

The program is administered by 17 local agencies including Community Action Agencies, local governments, and Area Offices on Aging. The agencies document client eligibility, determine the specific measures that should be installed in a dwelling, and install the prescribed measures.

As chair of the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee on Veterans, HUD and Independent Agencies, Senator Mikulski oversees all Senate funding of federal housing programs.

Lawyers Offering Free Advice On Law Day, May 1

Free legal advice and consultation will be available to all Maryland citizens on Law Day, Monday, May 1, when the Maryland State Bar Association presents "Ask A Lawyer." This award-winning program gives Maryland citizens an opportunity to discuss their legal problems with an attorney free-of-charge over the phone. Hundreds of Maryland lawyers will be volunteering their time and knowledge to answer legal questions from around the state.

From 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on May 1, Marylanders may call "Ask A Lawyer" toll-free, at 1-800-345-2049 to be referred to an attorney in their area. Callers may discuss such topics as writing a will, buying or selling a home, divorce and separation, medical malpractice and other topics.

The Maryland State Bar Association presents the "Ask A Lawyer" program annually as a public service to inform Maryland citizens of the importance of legal awareness. Last year more than 1,100 calls were received by Maryland lawyers. This year is anticipated to be just as successful.

Law Day was established by Presidential Proclamation in 1958. Its purpose is to call the attention of every citizen to the principles and practice of American law and justice. After 31 years, Law Day is still a widely-recognized and celebrate annual event.

The Maryland State Bar Association is a professional, non-profit, voluntary membership organization comprised of nearly 14,000 attorneys across the state of Maryland, which monitors judicial and legislative issues in the state, offers legal education opportunities and promotes leadership within the legal profession.

Diabetes Group To Meet Monday

The next meeting of the Garrett County Diabetes Association will be held Monday, April 17, at 7:30 p.m. at St. Paul's Methodist Church in Oakland. The speaker will be chapter president Terry Knotts whose subject will be "Circulation."

Blood sugar testing will also be available at the meeting. The public is invited to attend.

Extended Service For Late Filers Noted By IRS

Even though taxpayers have an additional two days to file their 1988 federal income tax returns, since this year's deadline is Monday, April 17, the Internal Revenue Service will still provide expanded telephone assistance for Maryland and District of Columbia taxpayers on Saturday, April 15, from 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

On deadline day, Monday, April 17th, all 11 IRS tax offices throughout Maryland and Washington, D.C. will remain open for two additional hours until 6:45 p.m. Tax assistance phone lines will also remain open during these extended hours. "We're here for everyone who needs help," said Phil Brand, IRS District Director for Maryland and the District of Columbia.

As always, taxpayers can call the IRS weekdays during normal business hours with their tax questions. In Maryland, the toll-free number is 1-800-424-1040.

School Readiness Being Studied By State Educators

The State Department of Education has been asked to intensify its efforts to improve kindergarten programs and, at the same time, to help parents make decisions about the readiness of their children for school.

The State Board of Education made the request when it agreed, after three years of study, to leave unchanged the kindergarten entry age. The Board had considered raising the average age of kindergarten pupils by changing the cutoff date for school entry from the current December 31 to September 1.

The decision means that parents of children born between September 1 and December 31 may enroll their children in kindergarten the September before they turn five or wait until the next year.

The Board explained that an extensive examination of research showed no conclusive evidence that the number of later school failures would be reduced by changing the entry age. A survey of teachers, school principals, and parents was also inconclusive on the question.

Those who asked for a change in the state bylaw on school entry said that, for many children who are not developmentally ready for school at the age of four, early difficulty in the classroom has a negative and sometimes lasting effect on their ability to succeed in school.

State Superintendent Joseph Shilling and State Board members agreed that the current school entry bylaw gives parents flexibility in making the decision about when a child is ready for school.

The Superintendent and the Board also expressed concern that raising the age of school entry would limit access to early schooling by some children — particularly disadvantage and at-risk children — who can benefit most from early childhood education programs.

In responding to the Board's decision, the State Department of Education is developing an awareness campaign to help parents understand the options and the issues related to initial school entry.

The Department is also developing curriculum models of prekindergarten and kindergarten programs that are sensitive to the developmental needs of all children.

Business/Industry Conference Set April 28 At FSU

Small to medium-sized business owners who attend Frostburg State University's April 28 business and industry conference will be able to learn first-hand how some of the best business minds in the Baltimore/Washington area function.

One of the day-long conference's guest speakers, for example, is James R. Williams, who will bring over 23 years' marketing experience to FSU in a talk called "Fundamental of Advertising — How to Waste Less than 50 percent of Your Advertising Dollars." Williams' lecture is part of two con-current workshop sessions during the conference at the Lane Center featuring eight speakers in a wide range of business administration fields.

Currently executive vice president and director of strategic planning at Baltimore's VanSant Dugdale Advertising, Williams handles marketing planning for all of the firm's accounts as well as developing new business. He has helped increase billings at the firm by 80 percent in the past three years. His advertising career has included work at many of the nation's top ad firms including DDB Needham, Benton & Bowles and Grey Advertising, firms where he served as marketing consultant for McDonald's Europe and handled accounts ranging from General Mills to S.C. Johnson.

A graduate of Pennsylvania State University, Williams has won numerous awards, including the American Advertising Federation Silver Medal Award from the Washington Ad Club, and a Summer Jobs for Youth Award by President Reagan.

Besides his presentation at the FSU Business/Industry Conference, the marketing expert will also deliver several lectures to FSU business classes under the auspices of the Ambassador Program of the Advertising Educational Foundation. The program sends high-level, seasoned advertising or marketing executives like Williams to colleges and universities across the country to discuss how advertising fits into the economic and social structure of America.

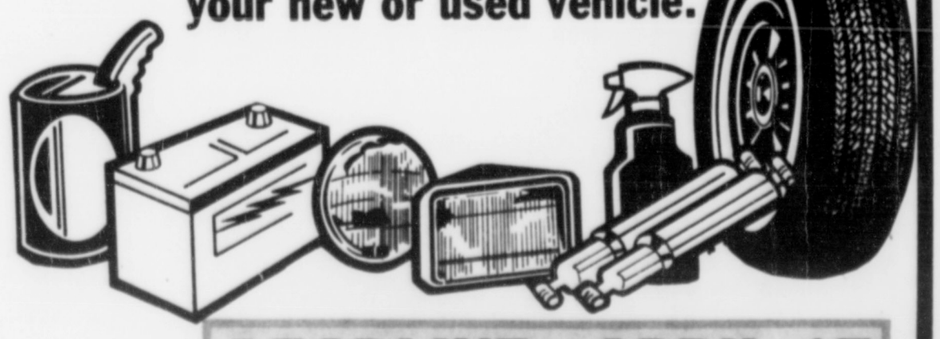

For more information on the Business and Industry Conference, persons should contact Anil F. Sharma, FSU School of Business, at 689-4392/4297.

Governor Announces WIC Coupon Program At Farmers' Markets

Governor William Donald Schaefer has announced that Maryland will be one of ten states to participate in a federal pilot project linking farmers' markets with the Women, Infants and Children (WIC) program this year.

"I was pleased to learn this week that Maryland's application for $52,200 was approved by the United States Department of Agriculture," said Governor Schaefer. "The approval means thousands of WIC recipients in Baltimore City and seven counties will each receive coupons they can redeem at farmers' markets for fresh fruits and vegetables.

"The coupons, valued at $10, will be issued once during the summer to each qualified WIC participant. The coupons are valid in July and August when there is a large variety of local produce available. The program will operate in Anne Arundel, Charles, Dorchester, Garrett, Harford, Montgomery, and St. Mary's counties, as well as in Baltimore City.

"A variety of state agencies and the Maryland Food Committee teamed up for this project. This goes to show what can be done when government, educators, charitable organizations and the private sector work together," Governor Schaefer said.

Participating state agencies are the Maryland Department of Agriculture (MDA), the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene (DHMH), and the Maryland Cooperative Extension Service (MCES). The managers of the farm markets will play a major role.

MDA submitted the grant at Governor Schaefer's suggestion and will coordinate the program for the state of Maryland. DHMH will issue the coupons through its local WIC coordinators and MCES will assist in educational efforts aimed at the recipients through its Expanded Food Nutrition Education Program (EFNEP). The farm market managers will collect the coupons from farmers who have sold fruits and vegetables to the WIC recipients. The Maryland Food Committee will act as the clearing and accounting house for coupons and issue checks to the farmers.

Coupons will be issued in one dollar denominations with 10 going to each qualified WIC recipient and will be good only toward the purchase of fresh fruits and vegetables at participating farmers' markets.

Maryland is required to match the federal funding on a 30 percent basis. State funds will come from the budgets of MDA and DHMH.

The other states selected for participation in the program are: Iowa, Texas, Vermont, New York, Connecticut, Michigan, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, and Washington.

Agency On Aging Policy Council Schedules Meeting

The Area Agency on Aging Policy Advisory Council will hold its monthly meeting at 10 a.m., Tuesday, May 2, at St. John's United Church of Christ, Grantsville.

The Advisory Council is made up of representatives from Senior Nutrition "Eating Together" sites and senior centers. Presently eight of the ten sites (including two senior centers) are represented on the council. The agency hopes to recruit representatives from the Bloomington and Gorman sites in the near future.

The purpose of the Advisory Council is to assist the agency in developing policies and advising on matters related to the development and administration of the Area Plan. The monthly meetings offer an opportunity for representatives to discuss activities at their sites and address any concerns of the site participants they represent. Members are requested to inform their respective sites about information received at regular meetings.

In addition to site and center representatives, membership can consist of interested persons in the community or various service agencies.

Seniors are invited and encouraged to attend any of the scheduled meetings and are advised to check with their representative for date and time.

Alzheimer's Disease Center Recipient Of $15,750 Grant

Governor William Donald Schaefer has announced Board of Public Works approval of a $15,750 state grant to assist the Allegany County Human Resources Development Commission, Inc. (a non-profit organization) in the architectural design of an adult medical day care and Alzheimer's Disease center in Cumberland. Bushey Associates, Inc. of Hagerstown is the architect.

Chaired by the governor, the Board of Public Works also is comprised of Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein and Treasurer Lucille Maurer. The board is authorized by the General Assembly to approve major construction and consultant contracts, equipment purchases, property transactions and other procurement actions.

"This program, and the much-needed services it offers, will be the first of its kind in western Maryland," said Governor Schaefer. "It will serve as a great resource not only to Alzheimer's Disease sufferers, but also to their families who often have difficulty coping with its effects," said the governor.

The Allegany County Commissioners have provided a one-and-a-half acre site located on Furnace Street in Cumberland on which the new 6,000-square-foot facility will be constructed at an estimated cost of $450,000.

After the building is completed, the commission will establish an Alzheimer's Family Center that will serve 12 people.

In addition, the existing Adult Medical Day Care Program, which will serve 38 persons on a daily basis, will be relocated to the new facility from its current leased location at 939 Frederick Street, Cumberland.

Enforcement Of Litter Law To Be Stepped Up

The Maryland Natural Resources Police will be stepping up their enforcement of Maryland's Litter Control Law this year on the State's waterways, along trout streams, fishing areas and on public or public property.

The Litter Control Law makes it unlawful for any person or persons to dump, deposit, throw or leave, or cause or permit the dumping, depositing, placing, throwing or leaving of litter on any public or private property or any waters of the State.

The law defines litter as rubbish, waste matter, refuse, garbage, trash, debris, dead animals, or other discarded materials of every kind and description.

Littering closes areas which would otherwise be open to sportsmen and boaters.

The Natural Resources Police are encouraging voluntary compliance from all Marylanders and others who use the lands and waterways of the State.

Penalties include a fine of not more than $250.00, or imprisonment for not more than 30 days, or both at the discretion of the court.

Vietnam Veterans Memorial To Be Dedicated May 28

Governor William Donald Schaefer announced Friday that the Maryland Vietnam Veterans' Memorial being constructed in Baltimore City's Middle Branch Park will be dedicated on Sunday, May 28. The program will begin with a parade of veterans at 1 p.m. from Reedbird Avenue to Waterview Avenue. The dedication of the memorial will be held at 4 p.m. At 7:45 p.m., there will be a memorial service honoring those who died in the war or are still missing.

Governor Schaefer said, "It is time that we properly honor Marylanders who fought in the Vietnam War. This monument recalls not only those who died in service to our country but also those who fought and survived that war. I am proud that Maryland is the first state to erect a monument to our Vietnam Veterans."

The memorial overlooks the Patapsco River. Of charcoal gray granite, it consists of a two and one-half foot wall on which are inscribed the names of the 1,046 men who lost their lives in Vietnam or are still missing.

Families of more than 700 of those named on the memorial are expected to participate in the memorial service by placing roses on the wall as the names of the veterans are called.

Joining Governor Schaefer at the ceremony will be former Governor Harry Hughes, Baltimore City Mayor Kurt Schmoke, and Fred L. Wineland, chairman of the Maryland Vietnam Veterans' Memorial Commission.

The Vietnam Memorial Commission was created by the Maryland General Assembly in 1983.

The monument is located at 2825 South Hanover Street at Waterview Avenue.

Insurance Agents Need Education To Keep License

Insurance agents licensed to sell in Maryland could lose that right if they do not meet new minimum continuing education requirements legislated by the Maryland General Assembly, reports Quincy Crawford, a Chartered Life Underwriter and president of the 2,500-member Maryland State Association of Life Underwriters (MSALU).

According to the life underwriters association, all insurance agents doing business in Maryland must now complete a minimum of 16 hours of approved continuing education courses every two years and provide proof of such at time of their bi-annual relicensing with the Maryland Insurance Commissioner.

This June is the first time the agents must meet the requirement, and according to local life underwriters, many agents apparently are unaware of the new law which was passed in 1986.

To assist agents who have not yet achieved the needed 16 hours, the MSALU has scheduled its annual convention in Ocean City to offer attendees up to eight hours of class. The meeting will be held at the Carousel Hotel, June 15-17.

In addition, the large 1,000-member Baltimore Life Underwriters Association has scheduled an eight-hour all day program for Saturday, May 13, at the Marriott's Hunt Valley Inn.

Persons interested in obtaining information about either of these continuing education programs should contact the MSALU at (301) 752-3318.

During its just concluded session, the Maryland General Assembly approved legislation to extent the continuing education law for another four years. The legislation also provided for a 45-day extension for the June 30, 1989 deadline.

MSALU joined forces with other major insurance producer groups such as the Professional Insurance Agents of Maryland and the Independent Insurance Agents of Maryland in support of the continuing education legislation.

"We see this regulation as a vital tool to provide consumer protection from agents who have not kept abreast of the latest insurance products and laws affecting insurance consumers," said Crawford.

More Students Succeeding On Citizenship Test

Nearly three-fourths of the ninth grade students who took the Maryland Test of Citizenship Skills last winter passed it, the State Department of Education has reported.

Of the 41,304 students who took the test, 30,696 passed. The pass rate of 74.3 percent was five percentage points higher than last year's rate.

"The students' improved performance on the citizenship test this year is testimony of their hard work and the dedication of teachers and administrators," State School Superintendent Joseph Shilling said.

The Superintendent said the pass rate for older students retaking the test improved significantly. He noted, however, that more than 600 Maryland high school seniors have not yet passed the test.

The citizenship test is one of four competency tests students must pass before receiving a Maryland high school diploma. The other tests are in reading, mathematics, and writing.

Champion Trees Survey Underway

Foresters from the Department of Natural Resources' Forest, Park and Wildlife Service are on the lookout for Maryland's Big Trees. A survey of known big tree champions began in January and will end on June 30. The survey will also seek new champions. Candidates that are surveyed will represent each species of tree found in the Free State and will join the honor roll of champions for Maryland. Candidates may even qualify for national registration.

What are big trees or champion trees? They are the largest and most stately of their species in Maryland, such as Maryland's state tree, the Wye Oak. This tree on the Eastern Shore lays claim not only to being the largest white oak in the state but also in the United States. As a big tree, the Wye is 108 feet in height, has a trunk circumference of 32 feet, two inches and has a 160-foot crown width or spread.

Big tree champions are wanted for all species representative of trees native to Maryland. In 1973, with publication of a champion tree book the Wye Oak joined 140 other species in a listing. The listing makes citizens aware of these venerable champions who represent some of the oldest living things on earth.

Those who believe they have a big tree champion on their property, and who want to have it measured, may contact Garrett County Project Forester, Ernie Metz, at the Forest, Park and Wildlife Service office at Mt. Nebo. The address is Route 1, Box 305-A, Oakland, Md. 21550, or call (301) 334-3296.

A representative from the Forest, Park and Wildlife Service will arrange to measure the tree.

Sponsored jointly by the C & O Canal National Historical Park and the Western Maryland Chapter, National Railway Historical Society, the lecture series will be held at the Western Maryland Station Center, Cumberland, on Sunday evenings at 7 p.m., from April 16 — May 14. GREAT PARTY - NO FRIENDS!

Imagine giving a great party for your closest friends. To save the expense of printing you buy some "generic" invitations. To save time you write "occupant" on the envelope and ask the post office to see that they get delivered.

When the time for your party arrives, you are in for a surprise. As guests begin arriving, you don't recognize any of them. You had planned a "black-tie" affair, they're dressed for a backyard barbecue. Before long, you realize they are perfect strangers, not at all the guests you had planned to entertain.

Sounds ridiculous, doesn't it? Yet, when homeowners decide to sell "by owner", they create a similar scenario. The generic sign appears in the yard as an invitation to complete strangers to knock on the door at all hours for information. The other invitation, an ad, goes into the local newspaper.

The "guests" arrive right on time, too. They are an interesting collection of bargain-hunters, investors and "tire-kickers". Each plans to feast off the homeowner's equity — by making a low offer to purchase the home or, in the case of the tire-kicker, to just enjoy the free hospitality.

When it's time to sell your home, choose an agent who understands the invitation process. "Black-tie" buyers work with agents who can introduce them to homes that are the "talk of the town".

If you're planning to sell your home soon and would like information on its current value, give us a call at 387-5303, or come by our office located in McHenry, MD.

Inaccurate Wage Reports Main Cause Of Overpayments

Estimating wages wrong is the number one cause of Social Security overpayments, Mrs. Elaine Watson, Social Security manager in Cumberland said this week.

According to Agency records, inaccurate wage estimates caused $470 million in overpayments nationwide in 1987.

An estimate of 1989 earnings must be filed by April 17 by anyone who expects to earn over the 1989 exempt amount and still receive some Social Security checks. The 1989 exempt amount is $6,480 for persons under 65 and $8,880 for those 65-69. There is no earnings limit for workers age 70 and over.

Mrs. Watson offered some tips to help Social Security beneficiaries in making their wage estimates. "After a few months of work, look at your most recent pay slip," she said. "Divide the year to date gross wage figure by three if the pay slip reflects three months of work, for example. This will be your average monthly earnings. Multiply that amount by 12 to estimate earnings for the year. If you only plan to work part of the year, adjust your figures accordingly."

Some other things to consider are: Will you get a cost-of-living increase this year? Will you get a bonus? Will you get any kind of lump sum payment from your employer?

These amounts need to be added to the earnings estimate to avoid a possible overpayment," she said.

Anyone who has questions about filling out an earnings estimate should contact Social Security. Beneficiaries living in Garrett County should call 1-800-2345-SSA.

Maryland Law Not Affected By Pension Ruling

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein said federal retirees are not discriminated against under Maryland income tax law, even though the state was mentioned in a dissenting United States Supreme Court decision Tuesday, March 28. "Our research indicates that Maryland law does not treat federal and state or local pension income differently as indicated in the recent opinion," Goldstein said.

The comptroller noted that his offices were receiving numerous calls from federal retirees inquiring about the income tax status of their pensions. "Because Maryland law does not discriminate, there will be no change in the way federal or other pensions are taxed," he said.

The issue of David vs. Michigan Department of the Treasury, decided by the United States Supreme Court on March 28, involved a Michigan income tax law which exempted state retirement benefits while taxing retired federal workers benefits. There is no such exemption in Maryland law. The Length of Service Award Program benefits which are exempt from Maryland state income tax pertain to volunteer fire and rescue personnel who receive payments from counties or municipalities based on their years of service as volunteers.

"Obviously, anyone can be a volunteer, whether you are a federal employee, a state employee or an employee of a private company," Goldstein said. "On researching this issue, the attorney general's office has agreed with us that Maryland law is not affected by this U.S. Supreme Court decision."

Heritage Trust Bill Backed By Beverly Byron

U.S. Congresswoman Beverly B. Byron (D-MD), member of the House Interior and Insular Affairs Subcommittee on National Parks and Public Lands, voiced enthusiastic support for The American Heritage Trust Act, H.R. 876, at a hearing held last Thursday.

The bill, introduced by Representative Morris Udall (D-AZ) and co-sponsored by Byron and over 200 other members, provides for a major reorganization of the funding of the Land and Water Conservation Fund (LWCF) and the Historic Preservation Fund (HPF).

"I particularly like the fact that the bill encourages the development of state-level trust funds," the Congresswoman said. "The bill fosters the partnership between state and federal governments for the good of preserving natural resources and national historic treasures.

"The idea is to allocate the profits from the depletion of a non-renewable resource towards the protection of another," Byron said. "Annual funding of the LWCF comes from Outer Continental Shelf oil and gas leasing receipts."

Over the years the commitment to appropriate funds dedicated to the LWCF and the HPF has seriously diminished, but this legislation would promote more complete spending of money earmarked for these programs, she said.

The trust fund will, over time, become self-sufficient. As dollars are used up, they will be replaced by earned interest. At least 30 percent of the annual appropriation would go to state and local grants, at least 30 percent to federal land acquisitions, 10 percent for special matching monies to establish parallel Heritage Trusts at the state level, and 10 percent for the purposes of the Urban Park and Recreation Recovery Act mission.

"The bill would also allow states to use up to 10 percent of their allocation to purchase development rights on farmlands. This would provide an alternative to straight land acquisition," Byron said.

Annual LWCF appropriations would still have to go through the Appropriations Committee which would have the power to impose obligation limitations. This would allow Congress to oversee where the money may be spent.

"Many successful projects have been funded by the LWCF and the HPF over the years," Byron said. "This bill would ensure that these projects continue."

Latvian Pianist To Perform At FSU April 21

Herman Godes, pianist, will perform a recital on Friday, April 21, 8 p.m., in Pullen Hall Auditorium, in the final program of the "Artist Series" presented by the Department of Music at Frostburg State University.

The son of a prominent piano teacher, Godes was born in Riga, Latvia, now a part of the Soviet Union. Great musical gifts were recognized at an early age and Godes, performing ability allowed him to play public concerts during his teens. He received his master's degree from the Latvian Music Academy in 1939, however, his career was prevented from flourishing at that time because of the outbreak of World War II. Two years of military service followed by four years in concentration camps kept Godes out of performing. Barely escaping execution, he was liberated by U.S. troops in 1945.

After the war, Godes first settled in West Germany and resumed his musical career. He appeared successfully as a soloist and within a few years was a sought after pianist. He emmigrated to the U.S. in 1950 and toured the North American continent for ten years, playing recitals and performing with orchestras. In 1960 he accepted the position of Artist-In-Residence at West Virginia University, from which he retired in 1988.

Godes has videotaped half-hour programs entitled "Godes Plays" for PBS. Each program is devoted to one composer including Chopin, Schumann, Brahms, Liszt, and Rachmaninov.

The recital will begin with the "Rondo" in A minor, K.511 by Mozart followed by a "Sonata," Opus 31, No. 2 by Beethoven. Following an intermission, Godes will perform "Nocturne," Opus 55 No. 2 by Chopin. "Etudes in Form of Variations," Opus 13, by Schumann will conclude the program.

A master pupil in his youth of Walter Geiseking and Robert Casadesus, today reviewers on both sides of the Atlantic have noted that he has "that rare quality that reaches his listeners and stirs their emotions." The New York Herald-Tribune stated "He renders every line with just balance, nuance, and glistening polish. He makes everything bright, suave, and sensitive."

This program was made possible through a grant from the Allegany Arts Council. There is no admission charge and the public is welcome to attend. A reception will follow the program.

Pre-Measurement Recommended By ASC Chairman

William F. DeWitt, chairperson of the Garrett County ASC Committee, says farmers who use pre-measurement service before planting their spring crops will be guaranteed that their field sizes are accurate for the 1989 program year.

"Pre-measuring assures farmers that they are in compliance with this year's acreage reduction requirements," DeWitt said.

To be eligible for full program benefits, farmers must report their planted crops, acreage conservation reserve (ACR) and other acreage. ACR is cropland removed from production and put into conserving uses under the 1989 farm programs.

"We recommend pre-measurement service because it helps assure accurate reporting, and eliminates worry over the loss of farm programs benefits," he said.

ASCS offers pre-measurement at cost. The service includes measuring, referencing and marking out fields with stakes before planting. Farmers are required to plant within the stakes that are placed when the land is pre-measured. The ASCS official said pre-measuring helps producers plan the amount of land to devote to ACR and planted acreages of program crops.

Farmers may request this service at the Garrett County ASCS office.

Maryland Grain & Livestock Report
by Jim Russell and Jim Hanson
MCES-AREC Dept., University of MD

USDA's Crop Report last Friday brought surprising news to the corn and soybean markets. The bullish news was that according to farmers' planting intentions, corn and soybean acreage for this year will not expand as much as expected. USDA says farmers intend to plant 73.2 million acres of corn. This represents an 8% increase; the trade had expected an 11 to 12% increase. USDA also said that farmers will plant 61.7 million acres, a 5% increase over last year. This was also less than trade expectations. It should be emphasized that these are intentions only and actual acreage could vary. The corn stocks were 5.2 billion bushels and soybean stocks were 890 million bushels. It seems that USDA is revising its harvest estimates upwards from last fall rather than finding more corn and beans around the country.

The sum total of this news was extremely bearish for corn and beans. On Monday, nearby beans and corn fell 29 and 9 cents, respectively. The overall mood of the market is that demand seems to be declining and supply is growing.

I would like to encourage many of you who are needing some assistance in organizing your farm estate to plan to attend an Estate Planning course on Friday, April 21, from 9:30 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. at the Garrett Community College. I know you are very busy, but this is an important item you should be looking into. Victor Marino and Charles Needer Jr., with Easton Agriculture Service, Inc. will be presenting the program. Marino has been working with farmers in estate planning since 1970. Needer is a certified public accountant with several years of experience. Make your reservations by calling the college at 387-6666 or my office at 334-1990.

Crop Progress Behind Schedule

The first weekly crop and weather survey of 1989 found most agricultural activities delayed because of above normal precipitation. During the week ended April 9, topsoil moisture was rated adequate to surplus and subsoil moisture was adequate. There were an average of 2.1 days suitable for fieldwork according to the Maryland Agricultural Statistics Service.

Twenty-three percent of the acreage has been prepared for spring planting, behind last year's 30 percent on this date. The use of minimum tillage and government programs caused the acreage prepared figure to be difficult to measure and less meaningful. A portion of the acreage is not conventionally tilled.

Wheat was in good condition, even though powdery mildew has been reported in some fields. Oats, barley and rye were in good condition. Peaches were 32 percent in bloom, ahead of last year's 15 percent at this time.

Planting of field corn is just getting underway. Sweet corn was four percent planted, near normal. Spring oats were 40 percent planted, the same as last year. Potatoes planted was lagging behind normal with 30 percent of the acreage planted. Planting of sweet potato beds is well underway.

Weather

Maryland's weather for the week ended April 7 was warm and wet except in extreme western Maryland where precipitation was lighter.

Precipitation averaged 1.07 inches. Western Maryland received an average of 0.36 inches. North central Maryland received 0.72 inches. Southern Maryland west of the Bay received 1.45 inches, and the Eastern Shore received 1.57 inches.

Temperatures averaged 51.7 degrees, 2.0 degrees above the normal of 49.7 degrees. Minimum temperatures for the week were mostly in the high 20's to mid 30's.

SSCC Approves Stream Protection Funding Eligibility

The State Soil Conservation Committee (SSCC), at its March meeting, approved inclusion of specific stream protection best management practices (bmps) for funding eligibility under the Maryland Agricultural Cost-Share Program (MACS). MACS provides up to 87½ percent of the cost of eligible best management practices installed to protect water quality.

Permanent fencing and stream crossing bmps will be eligible for funding when standards and specifications for their installation are finalized. The purpose of stream protection bmps is to protect State water resources from livestock intrusion, which may result in erosion or pollution problems.

In other business, the State Committee discussed regulations being developed by the Department of Natural Resources for agricultural water appropriation permits. Robert Miller, DNR, explained that the intent of the regulations was to protect both surface and groundwater sources from overuse by establishing a record of the location and extent of permitted use.

The State Soil Conservation Committee meets the third Thursday of each month to discuss issues related to agricultural soil conservation and water quality. For additional information, persons may contact Louise Lawrence (301) 841-5863.

Agency On Aging Slates Hearings

The Garrett County Area Agency on Aging, under the auspices of the Community Action Committee, Inc., has scheduled three public hearings to address its plans for providing services to the senior citizen population in fiscal year 1990.

The hearings are scheduled in various areas of the county in order to allow as many seniors as possible the opportunity to participate.

Senior citizens and concerned individuals are invited and encouraged to attend one of the public hearings and offer their input into the agency's plan for fiscal year 1990.

The schedule and locations of the hearings are as follows: April 26, 1 p.m., Oakland Senior Citizen Center, 104 East Center Street; April 28, 1 p.m., Flowery Vale Senior Citizen Center, South Street, Accident; and May 2, 1 p.m., Grantsville Activity Center, St. John's United Church of Christ, Main Street, Grantsville.

FSU Theatre Closes Season With "As Is"

Frostburg State University Theatre will close its 1988-89 season with the William Hoffman drama, "As Is," a play which addresses the issue of AIDS in the 1980s, on April 20-22. Performances begin at 8:15 p.m. nightly in Compton Theatre on the campus.

While director Linda McCulloch, of the FSU communication and theatre arts department, stresses that the play focuses on some important issues, she also cautions that "As Is" is not a production for the entire family.

"As Is" contains strong language and adult themes. Some of the play's explicit language has been revised, according to McCulloch, however, she said this will not effect the play's message to the audience.

"It's a play about life and death. It just so happens that AIDS is the thing that brings the play into the 1980s and that homosexuality is the vehicle used for exploring that subject and the life and death theme," said the director.

"As Is" centers on Saul and Rich who once shared their life together as lovers and now share the experience of dying as they must both face Rich's inevitable death from AIDS. Playwright Hoffman presents the issue of AIDS and homosexuality in a sensitive, but humorous light. The audience sees the stereotypes of the gay community, the fear of AIDS and the tragedy of facing one's own death or the death of a loved one.

McCulloch, who noted she has wanted to produce "As Is" since coming to Frostburg State University in 1986, feels the play brings a vital message to its audience. "Perhaps more than the community I am doing this one for the college students. They need open exposure to issues like homosexuality and AIDS," she explained, adding that the key to dealing with the AIDS issue is awareness and education. She further stated that since theatre is a direct reflection of what is happening in society, it is the responsibility of academia to sometimes touch on major social issues.

While "As Is" is a serious play with a serious message, it is also a play with laughter. Commenting on the playwright's use of humor in the script, McCulloch stressed that sometimes laughter is the only method for dealing with serious issues.

"As Is," originally produced in 1985, won the Drama Desk Award and an Obie Award and was nominated for three Tony Awards, including best play, that year.

For additional information contact the University Theatre at (301) 689-4145, Monday-Friday, between 1-4:30 p.m. Tickets are $4 for adults and $1.50 for students.

Tax Returns Due Monday

About 66 percent of Maryland income taxpayers had filed their state income tax returns as of Monday, April 10, according to Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein.

The comptroller said that all 15 Maryland income tax offices and the 1-800-MD TAXES hotline will remain open to help last-minute filers on Saturday, April 15, from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m. Extended assistance will also be available on the filing deadline, Monday, April 17, from 8:30 a.m. until 7 p.m.

"If you bring a completed copy of your federal return and all W-2 statements, we'll be happy to complete your Maryland return for you free of charge," Goldstein added. "We'll even be on duty at the main post office in Baltimore from 6 p.m. until midnight on April 17 to help people rushing to meet the deadline."

The comptroller reminded taxpayers that their returns must be postmarked by midnight, April 17. "Check with your local postal officials to find out when you must mail your return to be sure it receives the necessary postmark," he said.

The comptroller offered these final reminders to last-minute filers:

— complete your federal return first, then your Maryland return;

— set your returns aside for awhile, then go back and double-check all your figures;

— attach W-2 statements and payment for any state tax due;

— sign the return;

— use the preprinted address label (if it's correct);

— itemizers should remember to include a copy of their federal Schedule A with their Maryland return.

"If you need more time to file, you can request an extension of time to file by sending in a completed copy of Form 502E by the April 17 deadline — along with a check for the estimated amount of state tax due. Remember: this is an extension of time to file the tax return, not an extension of time to pay," Goldstein said.

Form 502E is included in the state tax packet. Taxpayers must file Form 4868 with the Internal Revenue Service to request an extension of time to file their federal return.

The addresses and telephone numbers of all 15 Maryland income tax offices are listed on the back of the state tax packet and in most local telephone directories.

Turney Finds Two Guilty Of Bad Check Charges

Two persons were found guilty of uttering bad checks by Judge Jack Turney during recent trials at Garrett County District Court.

Christopher Lee Shade, 24, Oakland, was found guilty of ten charges of uttering bad checks. Judge Turney ordered a presentence investigation. Two charges of theft were not prosecuted. The bad checks were apparently uttered between December 30 and February 7 to area businesses and the amount of the checks ranges from $24 to $278. John R. Toston represented Shade.

Charlene L. Arnold, 28, Oakland, was found guilty of seven charges of uttering bad checks. Judge Turney ordered a presentence investigation for Arnold. She apparently uttered the checks between October 18 and January 8 to area businesses and the amount of the checks ranged between $10.86 and $158. John R. Toston represented Arnold.

James Allen Tasker, 19, Kitzmiller, was found guilty of two charges of theft. Judge Turney ordered a pre-sentence investigation. The charge was filed by Robert Hamilton, state's attorney for Allegany County, after Tasker apparently cashed forged checks.

Four counts of uttering privileged documents were not prosecuted per plea agreement with Garrett County Circuit Court. Corporal L.E. Gnegy, Garrett County Sheriff's Department, filed the charges after incidents which occurred in August, 1988, after Tasker apparently cashed checks on another's account. John R. Toston represented Tasker.

Hugh Melvin Wiles, 35, Garrett County Jail, was found guilty of delivering contraband to the jail. He was fined $100 and sentenced to 11 months in the Garrett County Jail. Judge Turney then suspended the sentence and placed Wiles on two years of probation. Detective-Sergeant D.W. Tucker, Garrett County Sheriff's Department, filed the charge after Wiles apparently attempted to smuggle an unknown medication into the jail where he is currently serving a work release sentence for a charge of driving while intoxicated.

Layke James Cassell, 38, Oakland, was found guilty of resisting arrest and alcoholic beverage intoxication. He was fined $200 and sentenced to 11 months in the Garrett County Jail for the charge of resisting arrest. Judge Turney then suspended the sentence and placed Cassell on 12 months probation. Cassell was then fined $50 and sentenced to 90 days in the Garrett County Jail for the charge of alcoholic beverage intoxication. Judge Turney then suspended the sentence and placed Cassell on 12 months probation. A charge of assault was not presecuted.

Corporal L.E. Gnegy, Garrett County Sheriff's Department, filed the charges after an incident which occurred February 25 at the Board Room and the Manor Home Center. Robert C. Hesson represented Cassell.

Lawrence Edward Hinebaugh, 21, Deer Park, was found guilty of battery. Judge Turney ordered a pre-sentence investigation. The charge was filed by Michael Dawson, Deer Park, after an incident which occurred February 25 at the Par Matt Lanes in Oakland. Robert E. Watson represented Hinebaugh.

Lou Hinebaugh, 52, Deer Park, was found guilty of battery. Judge Turney ordered a pre-sentence investigation. The charge was filed by Michael Dawson, Deer Park, after an incident which occurred February 25 at the Par Matt Lanes in Oakland. Robert E. Watson represented Hinebaugh.

A charge of trespassing against Robert Johnson, Oakland, was not prosecuted. The charge was filed by Kenneth Stinson, Mt. Lake Park, after an incident which occurred March 4.

A charge of battery against Jerry L. Morgan, 26, Oakland, was placed on the stet docket. The charge was filed by Connie Morgan, Deer Park, after an incident which occurred February 23. Thomas B. Delaney Jr. represented Morgan.

Charges of alcoholic beverage intoxication and theft against Mark A. Whitacre, 20, Mt. Lake Park, were placed on the stet docket. The charges were filed by Concetta Whitacre after an incident which occurred February 23.

LEARNING QUILTING — Several members of the Sunnyside Homemakers Club have been meeting at the Oakland Extension Office on Thursdays from 9:30 a.m. to noon to learn quilting. There are still three meetings left in the six-week program, and the public is invited to attend. Pictured above in the foreground are Phyllis Knepp (left) and Pam Bentley. In the background, from left to right, are Karin Rodeheaver, instructor, Elsie Harsh, Winny Sisler, and Carolyn Hill.

Local Educator Is Honored By Flag Foundation

Dr. Sharlene Evans-Thomas, Director of Elementary Education for Garrett County, was honored in Baltimore on April 11, by the National Flag Day Foundation.

Dr. Evans-Thomas was honored with a certificate of appreciation and a luncheon for her dedication in helping to promote patriotism to the leaders of tomorrow.

Each June she takes a busload of students on a four-hour ride to participate in the Living Flag in Baltimore. In order to earn a seat on the Baltimore-bound bus, the students are selected from a "plan of merit award."

The Living Flag is an annual event that takes place at Ft. McHenry in Baltimore during Flag Week. Thousands of Maryland school children gather, equipped with colored paper, to form an enormous replica of the American Flag paying tribute to the first "human flag" which took place in 1914. This year the Living Flag will take place on Tuesday, June 6.

"It is a great pleasure that we honor Dr. Evans-Thomas for her hard work in this patriotic cause," Lou Koerber, President of the National Flag Day Foundation said. "The best way to spread patriotism is to plant a seed in a young mind. With time, the seed will grow and flourish into something we as Americans can be proud of."

TO PRESENT CONCERT — "Karen", an Oakland resident, will present a concert at the Loch Lynn Church of God at 7 p.m. on April 29. This will be her first public appearance since she recorded her new album, "A Tribute to Fannie Crosby." The album includes many of Mrs. Crosby's most popular compositions as well as other gospel songs. The album was recorded in Nashville, Tenn., and was produced by Billy Murray. The concert is open to the public at no charge. A love offering will be taken.

FAREWELL TO A FELLOW OFFICER — Over 500 police officers attended a funeral service on Tuesday at the Craig Civic Center in Kingwood, W.Va., for James T. Brammer, 42, of Bruceton Mills, W.Va., a W.Va. state trooper who was shot to death in Terra Alta on Saturday. A total of over 1000 people were present to pay their respects to the only trooper from the state who was shot to death in nearly 10 years. Brammer's partner, Ronald J. Hicks, remains hospitalized with a gunshot wound to his upper arm. The two officers were serving a warrant for Ercil Layton, of Terra Alta, when the shooting occurred. Layton died of a self-inflicted gunshot wound. Brammer is survived by his wife, a 15-year-old son and a seven-year-old daughter. Photo by Craig Phillips

Promotion Council Presents Proposed Budget To County Commissioners

The Deep Creek-Garrett County Promotion Council presented its FY 1989-90 budget to the Garrett County Commissioners on Tuesday and proposed a new avenue for its funding for Fiscal Year 1990.

The budget presentation began with an outline of the projected sources of income. The Council is one of the few agencies which raises more than one-half of its needed revenues from Council activities and anticipates raising $157,080.00 during the coming year. To round out its needed revenue, the Council suggested a significant shift of this responsibility to the tourism industry. This would be done through a decrease of general county support from $75,000.00 to $35,000.00. Instead, the Promotion Council requested one-half of the new accommodations tax which is levied directly on the businesses associated with the tourism industry. This would provide $95,000.00 to the Promotion Council. A final source of revenue is provided by the State of Maryland through a grant of $20,500.00. Consequently, the Promotion Council has a projected revenue statement of $307,580.00, of which only 11 percent is provided from general tax revenues.

The overall budget request is $305,431, compared to $247,351 last year. Most of the increases are in the printing category ($112,646 compared to $97,446 last year), the postage category ($74,967 compared to $52,088), and the advertising category ($34,395 compared to $27,034). Insurance costs are also expected to increase by over $3,000 ($13,838 compared to $10,558).

The budget proposal contains an increase of less than $3,000 in total salaries for the executive director, secretary, and four part-time employees ($42,493 compared to $39,519 last year).

Promotion Council expenditures are projected to increase by 23 percent in the coming year, primarily because of the need for increased advertising, according to Council President George Evans, who indicated that tourism is an increasingly competitive business requiring a greater outlay of advertising expense in order to "tell Garrett County's story."

Another significant area of increased expenditures is the area of postage and mailing out tourist-related information. According to Executive Director Diane Wolfe, mailings have increased from 4,805 tourist information packets in 1985 to 16,000 in 1988. The cost of the Vacation Guide has also increased substantially, but the revenue from increased advertising in the Guide more than offsets that increased cost, she said. Evans noted that the quality of the new Vacation Guide reflects positively on the County and should serve to attract more tourists to the area in the coming year.

Grantsville To Receive New Water And Sewerage Systems

Work will soon begin on a water treatment, storage and distribution system and a new sewer system to serve approximately 600 citizens of the town of Grantsville.

The new water treatment plant, which will be capable of meeting all the state requirements for the quality of drinking water, will be located about one and a half miles west of the town. The total project cost will be $1.2 million dollars.

Wendall Keaton, director of the Garrett County Mayors' Association, explained the different aspects of the new facility.

Keaton said that there will be two 100,000 gallon underwater storage tanks. The plant and two tanks will cost around $535,000. The water distribution line from the treatment site to the corporation limits of Grantsville, which is approximately 7,000 feet of new water line, will cost nearly $320,000. Repair work of water lines within the town along Route 40 and miscellaneous extra work will account for approximately $200,000.

The money for the project will be provided by grants, except for a loan of approximately $372,000 from the Farmer's Home Administration. The Maryland Department of the Environment has awarded the town a $500,000 grant through the Maryland Water Supply Financing Program, which provides money for supplying water for small jurisdictions.

The Farmer's Home Administration is providing a grant of approximately $240,000. An additional $124,000 will be provided by a grant from the Community Development Block Grant Program.

"We are very pleased that we only have to borrow the $372,000, which is about one-quarter of the cost of the program, for this project," said Keaton. Work should begin on the project in about three weeks. Replacement of the water line should take about four months and the water treatment facility work should take about six to eight months.

Work on the new sewerage system is expected to begin on May 1. The total cost of the project is $2.7 million and should last about 12 months.

The sewer treatment plant, located at the east end of town, will be replaced and some collector lines throughout the town will be repaired.

Money for this project has been contributed by the Environmental Protection Agency, the state of Maryland and the Community Development Block Grant Program.

Top Ten Finalist At Senior Pageant

Marguerite (Rita) Zietak was named in the top ten finalists at the Ms. Senior America Pageant last Wednesday at the Resort International Hotel in Atlantic City, N.J. She was chosen unanimously by her peers as Ms. Congeniality.

The preliminary pageant and talent show were held last Tuesday on the stage of the Super Star Theatre. Ms. Zietak sang before an audience of 5000 friends and family members of the contestants from across the United States.

Governor William Donald Schaefer sponsored Ms. Zietak with a full-page ad in her program book, wishing her "all the best from the friendly state of Maryland."

Ms. Zietak said, "I found it an exciting and rewarding experience, and I made many new friends. The women involved were certainly from the 'age of elegance', and the judges found the final decision-making extremely difficult."

Ms. Zietak noted that she is faced with a busy and exciting year as Ms. Maryland and Ms. Congeniality. She said, "I wish to thank all who supported me in this endeavor, and a special thanks to all the seniors at the Flowery Vale Senior Citizens Center."

Senior participants from Flowery Vale who attended the pageant in Atlantic City were Cora Bowser, Mary Zinkan, Orpha Miller, Kathleen and Earl Wentz, Glenn and Lloyd Alexander, Hazel and Wilmer Margraff, Fred Bentz, Helen Harmon, Alice Deal, Josephine Long, Mary Halgursm, Martha Vandall and Cecila Brant.

First Case Of Rabies Confirmed

The first confirmed case of rabies in Garrett County for 1989 was announced this week by the Garrett County Health Department.

A raccoon that tangled with a dog owned by Mary Collins, Buffalo Run Road, Friendsville, and later killed by Mrs. Collins' husband tested positively for the disease.

It was the second time the same dog had encountered a rabid raccoon, the first time having been last October. The dog is vaccinated against the disease.

A health department spokesman issued a caution to local residents that rabies is still prevalent in Garrett County even though this is the first confirmed case this year. She said that the annual spring rabies clinic will be held the week of May 8. Specific times and locations will be announced within the next few weeks.

W.Va. Trooper Shot To Death In Terra Alta

A West Virginia state trooper died and his partner was seriously wounded during a shooting Saturday in Terra Alta as they served a warrant for an outstanding traffic ticket on a man who then died from a self-inflicted gunshot wound.

James T. Brammer, 42, of Bruceton Mills, W.Va., was pronounced dead at the scene. His partner, Ronald J. Hicks, 36, of Reedsville, W.Va., was taken to Ruby Memorial Hospital, Morgantown, W.Va., with a bullet wound on his upper right arm. He was listed in "fair" condition. Ercil E. Layton, 62, died en route to the hospital.

The two officers went to Layton's home around 11:20 on Saturday morning to serve a capias, which is an arrest warrant issued to traffic law violators who do not appear for their court hearings or do not pay their related fines. He reportedly failed to appear in court for a charge of striking an unattended vehicle and leaving the scene of an accident.

According to police reports, Layton's wife, Stella, let the two officers into the house, where Layton shot Brammer once in the head. Brammer then fired two shots at Layton, and apparently died shortly afterward.

After Hicks sustained a gunshot wound to his arm, he fired one shot at Layton before running to a nearby residence, where he called for assistance.

Layton was reportedly shot

NBC Sports To Cover Whitewater Championships

Whitewater Championships, Inc., (WCI) has contracted with NBC Sports, a division of the National Broadcasting Company (NBC), to telecast, nation-wide, the 1989 World Whitewater Canoe and Kayak Championships.

The Championships, slated for June 11-25 on the Savage River in Garrett County is to be covered in a one hour NBC's Sportsworld program for airing on Sunday, July 2, following the Irish Derby. The program is scheduled to cover wildwater and slalom racing competitions, athlete training, the Opening Ceremonies, other whitewater related activities, and outtakes of Western Maryland.

Board Of Education Votes Three To One To Close Yoder School

The Garrett County Board of Education voted three to one to close Yoder School at the end of this school year during their regular monthly meeting last Thursday.

Board members Beverly Sines-Murphy, Carol Clark, and Charles Teets voted for the closing, while Rodney Durst voted against it.

Superintendent of Garrett County Schools Dr. Jerome Ryscavage noted that he had received only one letter on the issue since the public hearing held at the school on April 5, and no phone calls were received.

One parent was present at the meeting, and said, "I think the school should remain open because it has a lot of good qualities. If it is closed, I am highly considering taking my child out of the public school system...There are a lot of other parents who want the school to stay open too, but they're tired of fighting."

Durst, who voted against the closing of the school, stated that he looked at both Yoder School and Swan Meadow School as alternative schools, noting that they were both "attractions to the county" — two schools which could possibly pull people in from other states.

Durst went on to mention that other states are currently building "pioneer schools" like these schools. He said, "We have something than can be used in a better way. Once we lose it, it's gone and we can't get it back."

Durst's proposal was that the board keep the school open for kindergarten through sixth grade with two teachers, giving a five-year guarantee that the school will remain open.

Clark noted that it would be different if the school building were new, but the age and condition of Yoder School would make it very costly to continue to use the building. However, Durst noted that the parents would be willing to do the work if the board provided the materials.

Board president Mikal Moomau pointed out that, while Swan Meadow still exists for the purpose it was created for, Yoder School does not. She said both staff and parents were given the opportunity to in-

County Honor Band Concert Scheduled

The Garrett County Honor Band will present a concert this Friday, April 21, at 7:30 p.m. in the Northern High School cafetorium. Admission is free and the public is invited.

Referendum Fact Committee Meets With Southern Renovation Architect

Members of the Garrett Referendum Fact Committee met Monday night with Kent Gandee of Gandee & Partners, Inc., the architects designing the renovation project at Southern High School. This firm was also awarded the contract of Northern High School in 1985.

Gandee explained that, when Northern High School was renovated, the State paid 100% of the construction and equipment costs. In those days, all renovation projects were done according to the State's allocation because the State was footing the entire bill. The funding suddenly became available for Northern High School's renovation in the spring of 1985 and the project had to begin by July 1, 1985. Final planning by the architect and bidding by contractors had to begin almost immediately. Admittedly, compromises were made and the currently proposed renovations at Northern will address many of these.

The architect noted that, "The current proposal is not the same as the renovations that were cut from the 1985 Northern High School design because the needs and concerns have changed since that time." Eight curriculum spaces and an auxiliary gymnasium are proposed.

A second gymnasium will allow the Northern administration to schedule physical education classes with much less difficulty and crowding, the extra-curricular sports teams additional and more convenient practice time and space, and the community more facilities for adult and youth team and league sports programs. Potential uses for the eight curriculum spaces include permanent classrooms for the three teachers who now travel to whatever space is available for their classes, expanding the space for the drafting and allied health programs, which currently share a classroom, providing a room for the journalism program, expanding the curriculum to include other language courses such as Spanish, which is part of the Board of Education's FY1990 budget request, and anticipating growth indicated by elementary school enrollments.

No architect has been contacted for the Northern project, as it has not yet been funded. After funding has been designated, planning meetings will be held with the Northern High School staff to determine the specific allocation of space.

Planning meetings were held with the faculty and staff of Southern High School. A set of Educational Specifications was developed to determine the amount of space needed for the existing curriculum and support services. This is the first information given to an architect, along with the plans for the existing building.

From these planning meetings, Gandee learned that the Southern faculty was "concerned that the physical education facilities were so spread out and that this, in addition to the location of one of these facilities in the middle of an academic area, caused much disruption." Therefore, much of the original planning focused on turning the auxiliary gymnasium into academic space and placing the auxiliary gymnasium nearer to the main gymnasium. Emphasis was also placed on grouping all classes of a subject area together and grouping related subject areas together and on locating all administrative offices near the main building entrance.

The current set of drawings being considered for adoption were presented to the Board of Education on Thursday, April 13. Known as "Scheme E," they are the result of numerous modifications and refinements, including the involvement of State School Construction Architect Alan Abend. All of Abend's recommendations were considered and several have been incorporated into the subsequent plans.

Allegheny Front Regional Group Convenes Locally

The Allegheny Front Regional Development Corporation (AFRDC) held its monthly meeting in Deer Park, Monday, April 10. At the meeting AFRDC President, Dr. Richard Goldman, recommended that "within the near future a working meeting be held with representatives from West Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, and New York to formally approve justification of Rt. 219 as a four-lane expressway from Toronto, Canada, to intersect with Corridor H in Tucker and/or Randolph counties."

At the present time New York and Pennsylvania officials of the Rt. 219 Association are committed to the completion of U.S. Rt. 219 (Corridor N) as a limited access four-lane expressway from Toronto to U.S. Rt. 48 in Maryland.

The AFRDC (a non-profit corporation) exists to promote through tourism and recreation, development of the economy of the region defined by the north-south axis of U.S. Rt. 219 and the watershed of the North Branch of the Potomac River. The counties represented in the AFRDC are Randolph and Tucker in West Virginia, Garrett in Maryland and Somerset in Pennsylvania.

Oakland Mayor Asa McCain, referring to the Rt. 219 Bypass near Oakland, said, "Let's get in on the ground floor so we can have a say in this matter. It will come eventually, so if we start now we'll have a choice. The interest of the Allegheny Front Regional Development Corporation has the proper prospective on this project."

Tucker County Commissioner Dewey Rice added, "We're very glad that newly elected mayor of Elkins, Steve Sheplar, is becoming involved with Allegheny Front; it shows positive support for economic growth in the Region."

Harry Nojek, on his parcipation with AFRDC, said, "It thrills me to high heaven to be part of an organization that has the foresight for advancement in regional development."

Others in attendance at the April AFRDC meeting at the Deer Park Inn were Mike Wagner, executive director of Tri-County Council of Western Maryland; Elwood Groves, Garrett County Commissioner; Tom Jones, Garrett County Economic Development Corporation; Peggy Jamison, Garrett County Planning Commission; Leo Howard, Barbara Trask, Vicki Burner and Donna Hopkins of Garrett County; Estelle Rice, Sarah Minear, Patty Goldman and Andy Snyder of Tucker County; and Tom Cain, consultant to AFRDC.

State Tax Rate On Real Estate Remains At 21¢

The Commission on State Debt is recommending that the Maryland Board of Public Works hold the state real estate tax rate at 21 cents per $100 of assessed value for the ninth consecutive year. The tax rate for the year beginning July 1, 1989 will be established at the board meeting April 19, 1989. The Board of Public Works, consisting of Governor William Donald Schaefer, State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein and State Treasurer Lucille Maurer, must establish a state real estate tax rate by May 1st each year.

The tax rate is important to taxpayers because it appears as an item on the local property tax bills that will be mailed to taxpayers later this summer. The state real estate tax revenue is dedicated to helping pay the principal and interest costs of Maryland's general obligation bonds. This dedicated revenue source is an important factor in Maryland's long-standing triple A general obligation bond rating — the best available.

Debt service requirements will total $396.3 million for fiscal year 1989, which ends June 30, 1989, and $398.6 million for fiscal year 1990.

The relatively stable amount of revenue needed to pay principal and interest costs in recent years has two important benefits to taxpayers, according to the commission. First, it has allowed the Board of Public Works to hold the state real estate tax rate at 21 cents per $100 of assessed value.

Secondly, it means that fewer general fund dollars are required to supplement the revenue produced by the property tax rate.

The state real estate tax rate set by the Board of Public Works is expected to raise $154.8 million during fiscal year 1990, compared with $144.5 million for the current year.

In setting the rate, the Board of Public Works also took into account $78.5 million in general funds appropriated to the annuity bond fund for fiscal year 1990, or $7.5 million less than the general fund supplement required for fiscal year 1989. The general fund supplement is important to every taxpayer because it includes revenue from state income and sales taxes.

The 21 cent rate is actually the rate needed to raise the additional revenue required for principal and interest payments on state general obligation bonds. Another reason the rate could be held to 21 cents is that the Board of Public Works and the General Assembly have cooperated in limiting bond authorizations and issues.

The Commission on State Debt, chaired by Treasurer Maurer, also includes Comptroller Goldstein and representatives from the State Departments of Assessments and Taxation, Budget and Fiscal Planning, Transportation, and Planning as well as a public representative. It is charged with recommending a state real estate tax rate based on a study of debt service requirements and available revenue.

The state's Capital Debt Affordability Committee, also chaired by Treasurer Maurer, annually reviews Maryland's debt picture and recommends how much new debt should be authorized by the General Assembly.

A TWO-VEHICLE ACCIDENT Saturday night on U.S. Route 40 resulted in one driver being charged with DWI. Police said Vickie L. Brant, of Springs, Pa., was operating the above vehicle, a 1985 Buick Regal, when she struck a car driven by Randy W. Moyers, of Bruceton Mills, W.Va., from behind. Moyers was charged with driving while under the influence and two other violations. Charges are pending against Brant.

Hevner Receives Federal Extension Service Award

Garrett County Extension Director and 4-H Agent Alice E. Hevner was recently presented the Federal Length of Service Award for 20 years with the Cooperative Extension Service. The award was presented at the annual Maryland Cooperative Extension Service Conference held in Columbia.

Hevner, who is entering her 22 year with the CES (the federal awards are delayed one year), has spent her entire Extension career in Garrett County.

"I've seen some changes over the years," Hevner said, "but Garrett still has a very traditional 4-H program compared to what is seen in other areas of the state."

She says that the hardest part of her job is seeing 4-H members who are the children of the first 4-H members she knew after coming to the county. "I soon expect to see the first grandchild of one of my first 4-H members," she laughs.

On a more serious side, Hevner says one of the biggest adjustments in programing she has had to face is the involvement of women in employment outside of the home. "When I began, most of our volunteers were homemakers. More recently, our volunteers are working wives and mothers, and we must plan our programs to fit their schedules," she said.

The theme of the Maryland Cooperative Extension Service Conference was "Foundation for the Future" in honor of the 75th anniversary this year of the Extension Service.

The conference's keynote address — given by David Pearce Snyder, editor of "The Futurist" magazine — focused on the 1990s and the 21st century.

Snyder said that U.S. quality of life will probably continue to decline for a generation. It will take this long for developing technology to be fully incorporated and again raise living standards.

In the meantime, breaking technology will upset the current economic equilibrium as it replaces old ways in skips and starts.

Snyder also projected that in about 40 years U.S. farmers will again face the challenge of feeding the world. Even though developing countries are increasingly developing their agricultural resources, he said, 45 percent of the globe's arable (non-irrigated) land is in the United States.

Dr. Raymond J. Miller, UM vice Chancellor for Agricultural Affairs, pointed out to the conference attendees that 54 percent of CES staff were minorities or women — the highest percentage in the UM system. He also noted the CES staff comes into contact with 1.2 million Maryland citizens each year.

Cross-Lites says:

God will show me the path of life, in His presence is fullness of joy and there are pleasures forevermore.

Numerous Items Noted By County Sanitary Board

Numerous items were discussed at the regularly scheduled meeting of the Garrett County Sanitary Commission on Tuesday, including Upper Youghiogheny, Trout Run, Crellin, Mtn. Lake Park, and Kitzmiller.

Upper Youghiogheny

No work is currently being done on the Upper Youghiogheny improvement project because the contractor is waiting for delivery of the ultraviolet system. The engineer is still looking for an alternative to the fencing system around the sand filters.

Trout Run

The commission has drafted a user charge system for the entire service area at the Trout Run Treatment Plant to cover sewer service charges and distribution costs as well as improvements, maintenance, and an existing debt. Public hearings will be held in the area to discuss the charges.

Ad Valorem Tax

The commission has approved the ad valorem tax rates for Mtn. Lake Park, Trout Run, and Kitzmiller based on the assessment numbers given to the Garrett County Commissioners.

In the Kitzmiller Sanitary District and Water System, the rate will be $1 per $100 of assessed valuation. The rate for the Mtn. Lake Park/Loch Lynn Sanitary District will be $.41 per $100, and the rate for the Mtn. Lake Park/Loch Lynn Water System will be $.84 per $100.

Sanitary Commission Director Wendell Beitzel noted that the rates are necessary to pay off loans for the 1989-90 fiscal year.

Shady Acres

The commission drafted a new sewer use ordinance for the Shady Acres Sanitary District to include provisions for pretreatment of industrial waste, according to state and EPA requirements. Following its review by state officials, the ordinance will be adopted by the commission.

Black-and-white photography has just entered a new era of high performance and quality — thanks to new Kodak T-Max 100 and T-Max 400 films.

New T-Max 100 and T-Max 400 Professional Films are the result of the greatest breakthrough in film technology in 50 years — tabular-grain technology (T-GRAIN Emulsion). Kodak photographic scientists have reshaped silver halide crystals to provide more surface area to catch light. The revolutionary results: films with extremely fine grain can now have high speed; high-speed films can now have finer grain and greater image quality.

Is This The Norm? . . .

What is it about wealth and high-level political status that causes supposedly caring, intelligent human beings to throw all ethics right out the window?

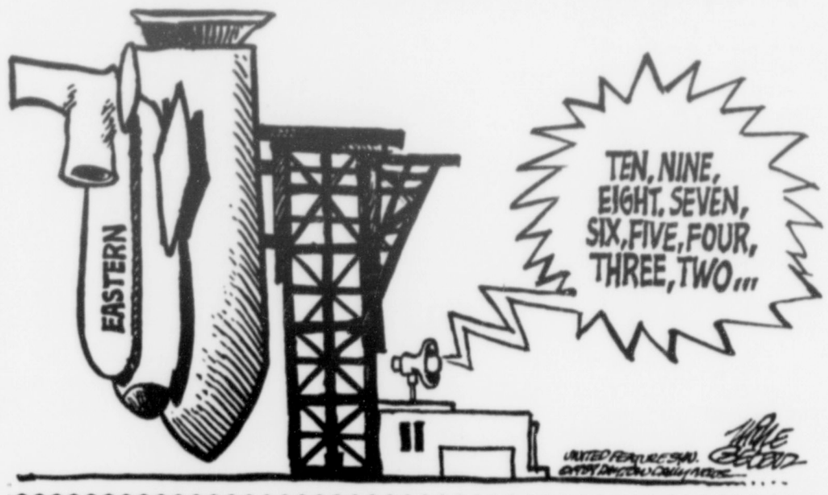

With House Speaker Jim Wright on the hot seat right now, and several others making similar headlines in recent months, we are hearing this word "ethics" a lot lately. Ethics, of course, has to do with human conduct and the difference between doing what is right and doing what is wrong. Despite the fact that Mr. Wright adamantly maintains that he has done nothing unethical, there seems to be overwhelming evidence to the contrary.

While we do not condone Wright's alleged actions, and while we believe he should be forced to step down as speaker of the House if convicted, we fear that he is simply one of many. But he got caught. It was noted yesterday by one broadcaster that the three House representatives next in line to become the speaker if Wright is ousted are all under similar ethics investigations. Our greatest fear, then, is that "everybody's doing it" in Washington, D.C. and unethical behavior has become the norm rather than the exception.

So in that regard, Wright is the fall guy. But we find the picture of fellow Congressmen giving Wright a standing ovation after his emotional denial of the charges, despite the overwhelming evidence against him, an extremely disturbing sight. How many of those applauding have similar mud on their hands?

Although the dirty laundry of Washington is embarrassing to our nation on the world scene, we believe that the ethics issue coming to a head like this will ultimately be good for our country. It will surely make other elected officials think twice before they consider engaging in such activities and it may cause those who are already doing it to stop.

No matter how sophisticated the world becomes, no matter how many advancements we make in science and technology, and no matter how educated and informed we are, the effect of greed on human beings never changes.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

On Thursday, April 13, I asked the Garrett County Board of Education Members to consider requesting that the special referendum election be held on Tuesday, June 6, after schools have been closed for summer vacation.

My concerns were genuine in that I felt it important not to cause undue disruption to the school calendar by providing an additional mid-week break, during a time when it is so difficult for children to learn due to the excitement of the upcoming summer vacation and the nice weather. Further, I believed it would give the citizens more time to hear the issues and concerns and ask the questions which will ultimately decide the fate of the Northern/Southern High School Renovations.

My reply was that if the County Commissioners select May 23, then the Board would not want to ask them to consider changing the date.

As a parent and a teacher, I contacted the County Commissioners concerning the date for the special election. If you share my concern, call the County Commissioners Office to have your voice heard. Either way, I hope to see you at the polls.

Sincerely,
Jim Raley, President

To the Editor:

I am a 12-year-old girl who wants to let off a little steam. My mom and stepdad live in a trailer park on the Fish Hatchery Road in Accident.

Recently my real dad and stepmom have been letting my brother and me visit my mom every other weekend on Friday and Saturday. My dad was going to let my mom have custody of me temporarily until my mom got legal custody papers.

My mom's landlord in the trailer park, the man who rents out spaces, allowed me to stay two weeks on a trial basis. I've decided that I want to live with my real mother in the trailer park permanently.

My dad told me that I could and he wrote a letter for me to stay until there was a hearing giving my mom custody. The landlord would not let me stay. Now I'm with my dad.

This makes me angry. I feel that kids my age don't have any rights to make decisions. It's unfair. I thought that after seven years of separation from my mom, I could finally live with her.

I know I can't fight back, I can't do it myself. I hope that in the future people will understand how it feels to be a kid and have no right to be with the people you love, because someone says no.

I never caused any trouble in the trailer park. But I wasn't allowed to have any friends there. The landlord said he didn't want any trouble between him and my dad. But my dad never caused him any trouble.

There are other kids in the trailer park. I really love my mom and stepdad. I want to live with them.

There was a Constitution written for all the people in America. Why not for kids? Please publish this so everyone knows how I feel.

Sincerely,
April Gregory

To the Editor:

Earlier this month, I attended a meeting of math educators from across the state at Quince Orchard High School in Rockville, Md. This new high school which was opened this year was built for $26 million dollars by the Montgomery Board of Education without receiving any money from the state. Each classroom had a computer and a telephone. There were five computer laboratories with each of the labs containing thirty computers. There was a computer setup where students could use their home computer and a modum on their telephone to copy manuscripts from the school's library computer after school hours. This school also had two gymnasiums, a 2,000-seat auditorium, and a TV studio within the school. While visiting this beautiful school, I thought of some of the comments that I have heard concerning the renovation of Northern and Southern High Schools.

The statement that there should be equitability for the students of Northern and Southern High school students was brought into sharp focus. Is it equitable for students in Montgomery County to have access to computers at their convenience while physics students at Southern do not have adequate lab facilities? I have taught physics at Southern for ten years. Each year I have tried to teach each and every student to the best of my ability, sometimes under adverse conditions involving lab facilities. For the first five years of teaching physics, I taught in Room 222, a room with no lab tables and no storage space. This room is now used for earth science with the same lack of laboratory facilities. For the last five years, I have taught in Room A116, a room with two lab tables, no water, and no gas to burn the bunsen burners. Is it too much to ask that the physics and earth science classrooms at Southern have gas and water in their labs to perform experiments? Must physics students continue to go into the hall to perform their experiments due to lack of space or switch classrooms with the chemistry students to use their lab to boil water due to the lack of gas or water in their classroom? Three of the six science classrooms at Southern do not have water, gas, or student lab tables in their classrooms.

The science students at Southern are not second class students and should therefore not be given second class facilities. If we as a country are to overcome the stigma of having lower math and science achievement test scores than Japan and Germany, we must overcome the problem of inadequate science facilities and give the students the opportunity to learn through science experiments.

The school board has met for over two years with teachers to determine the greatest needs concerning the physical facilities at Southern High School. Our input has been taken into consideration in the formulation of the renovation plan. We are not asking for schools like those in Montgomery County. We do want a school that meets the basic facilities needed to implement the academic curriculum.

I urge each citizen to visit Northern and Southern High Schools and see the conditions and facilities. This important vote on May 23 is not just a referendum on the renovation of Northern and Southern High Schools; but, it is a referendum on the quality of education that we want for our children and grandchildren. Thank you.

Sincerely,
David Mayfield

Maryland With Pride

Gov. Schaefer Speaks Out

A WEEK TO REMEMBER
by Governor William Donald Schaefer

I am not complaining. I love my job. In fact, I cannot think of many better jobs in the world than being the governor of Maryland. But it is hard work. I sit through a lot of long meetings, pore over pages and pages of budget figures, and deliver at least 300 speeches a year. Add to that the rigors of working with the legislature and the press and, perhaps, you can see my point. Being governor can sometimes get you down.

But every once in a while, something comes along to remind you that it's not all work, that there are moments of just plain fun, and that, most of all, being governor is a unique privilege. I had one of those weeks recently and I want to tell you about it. I am not usually a name-dropper but, in this case, I want to mention some very famous people.

Let's start with the horseshoes. I've visited the White House several times with the other members of the National Governors' Association, but I have never been a guest of the president. So when the invitation came to join President and Mrs. Bush on a recent Saturday for the opening of the new White House horseshoes pit, I was very honored. (I spent some time worrying about what one wears to a horseshoe event but that is another story). It was a tremendous afternoon. Everything you have heard about the White House is true. There is a majesty and sense of awe about being in that historic building and on its magnificent grounds.

The president is very gracious. He took time to talk with everyone there. I had on my name tag — Governor Schaefer of Maryland — and he came up with a warm "Hi, Governor" handshake.

Mrs. Bush is a wonderful hostess. She puts absolutely everyone at ease. I am a dog-lover and I knew she was my kind of person when she proudly took me to meet the "first puppies."

Two days later we had the chance to show off some of our famous Maryland hospitality when Mr. Bush, the President of Egypt, and members of the President's Cabinet came to Baltimore for the opening game of the 1989 baseball season. I was so excited I got to the stadium two hours early just to be sure I wouldn't miss anything.

It is obvious that the President likes baseball. And he's pretty good at it. I've tossed out a few balls from time to time (I am very good at it) and I can tell a pro when I see one. It was an exciting afternoon made even better by an Orioles victory!

Just when I thought things might return to normal in Annapolis, the White House called to invite me to the Rose Garden ceremony honoring the Teacher of the Year. Maryland's own Teacher of the Year, Leslie Roche, of Parkland Junior High School in Montgomery County, was one of the top three national winners, and I was extremely proud to be there with her.

By Wednesday, the day of the ceremony, it seemed that the President and I had spent a lot of time together. In fact, by the time we met in the Rose Garden, we had dispensed with the name tags, and he just called me Don. I know it sounds corny, but I was thrilled. It's hard to explain how it feels to talk to a president, much less be on a first-name basis.

I have one more name to drop, and one more evening to tell you about. It was not presidential caliber but it was part of my week to remember. This time the joke was on me, I often try to relax on weekends, get out of the limelight, but when I was invited to Atlantic City to see "Wrestle Mania V," it seemed like a good idea. It was a night I won't soon forget.

First of all, the people: There were 23,000 people there, each one screaming louder than the next. Kids, women, grandfathers — what a group! Donald Trump sat just two seats away and he was having a great time, I can tell you.

And then there was the action — Macho Man versus Hulk Hogan. I have never seen anything like it. All of a sudden Macho Man got up and wacked the Hulk. Hogan was up, down, hurt — he jumped on Macho Man. Macho Man fought back. And, I was standing up screaming and yelling with the rest of them. I would never have imagined I could have gotten so carried away watching a wrestling match.

And, a lot people witnessed my enthusiasm. I did not realize that the television cameras covering the match were focused on my section. So every time I yelled or jumped or took a bite of my hot dog, it was being beamed right back to Maryland. So much for anonymity and escaping the limelight. So much for proper gubernatorial demeanor.

So you can see I had quite a week — maybe one of the greatest I have ever had. There was the fun. There was the work. But most of all, there was awe. That's the thing I will carry with me. What an honor and a privilege it is to represent this great state. And every day is different. Every day brings new opportunities and challenges.

As always, I would like to hear from you. Write to me: Governor William Donald Schaefer, The Statehouse, Annapolis MD 21401.

Yough Board Receives Updates On River Study

The Youghiogheny River Local Advisory Board held its regular bi-monthly meeting last Thursday at Garrett Community College.

Recreational Capacity Study

John Wilson, Department of Natural Resources (DNR), gave an update on the Recreational Capacity Study being conducted by Pennsylvania State University within the Youghiogheny Scenic Corridor.

Wilson stated that the DNR received a number of complaints about the timing of the study, so his department decided to extend the contract with Pennsylvania State University.

The extension of the contract will enable Pennsylvania State University to continue survey work and the field work of surveying rafters. The university will continue to submit drafts of the results of the study to the DNR.

Wilson said that approximately 50 percent of landowners within the corridor who were sent surveys have responded. A draft of assessment of recreational use is currently being prepared. Wilson explained that the continuation of the study will enable the university to evaluate the boating regulations since they have gone into effect.

The new termination date of the contract with Pennsylvania State University is October 15.

Boating Allocation

Karl Christensen, a member of Forest, Park and Wildlife Service and the new manager of the Youghiogheny, updated board members on the recent events concerning the commercial whitewater boating allocation system.

The DNR held a boating workshop on February 10, which was attended by private and commercial boaters, as well as some landowners, to discuss concerns of the DNR, landowners and the boaters. On March 1, the public comment period on the new whitewater boating regulations ended. On March 21, a meeting with boaters and the DNR was held to discuss development of the allocation system for determining how many customers each boating company would receive according to the new boating regulations.

On April 3 the whitewater boating regulations went into effect and outfitters were notified of the allocation system as worked out by members of the DNR and the Forest, Parks and Wildlife Service.

The boating regulations limited the number of customers permitted on the river to 72 per day, with a limit of 12 customers to each outfitter. Thirteen outfitters submitted information to the DNR to apply for an allocation of customers, but only 11 outfitters received an allocation of customers. Three of the outfitters are allowed 12 customers per, accounting for 36 of the allocation limit, and the remaining 36 was split up between the other seven outfitters. The remaining outfitters were allocated customers based upon historical use of the river.

If outfitters do not need or use their limit of customers, they may trade off so long as they do not exceed the limit of 12 customers per outfitter and notify Christensen of how many customers each will have for each day.

DNR Update

Wilson explained that Western Maryland Associates has been awarded the contract to survey properties within the Youghiogheny Corridor.

Representatives of Western Maryland Associates have started meeting with landowners who have requested the surveys and that work on the surveys will begin over the next two months.

Wilson said that the DNR will acquire all of the Penelec property that is located within the Youghiogheny corridor on May 1.

The next meeting of the Youghiogheny River Local Advisory Board will be held on June 8.

Wynne's Way

CRIMES OF OMISSION: SERIOUS VIOLATIONS

I've had it up to my condiments with fast-food restaurant drive-thru services. I really used to enjoy "window dining." To me, the "window" was the only place in the world I could grab a bite to eat and run without hurting anyone's feelings or worrying about dirty dishes left behind. However, I'm sad to say, those days are gone. Now I am but a weary, violated victim of the Crimes of Omission.

For those of you that have not yet experienced the aforementioned "crimes," your time is coming. Let me explain. A Crime of Omission is the negligent act of a drive-thru window attendant who voluntarily chooses to omit necessary (and sometimes asked for) eating utensils, condiments, napkins, etc., from a drive-thru order. And, this practice is running rampant.

About a year ago (strange as it may seem) I began making little scratch marks on the dashboard of my car each time a necessity was omitted from my drive-thru order. To date, I can correctly state that I have been slighted 200 napkins, 50 salad forks, 15 ice cream spoons, 36 straws, 50 packets of salt, 125 packets of ketchup, 36 crackers, 110 croutons, 26 packets of sugar and 21 coffee stirrers. To add insult to injury, my dashboard looks like Godzilla played chopsticks on it.

I just don't get it! If the people who work at these places really believe I "dcserve a break today," why don't they give me butter and syrup with my pancakes? Why don't they give me a fork with my salad? With the exception of a few guys I dated in high school, no one eats salad with their hands. Don't they know this?

And what about those folks who "do it like you do it?" Well, I don't know how the yous of the world do it, but the me, myself and I's like to wipe my mouth after biting into an oversized burger dripping with ketchup, mayonnaise and tomato entrails.

Oh, I don't know. Perhaps the opening and closing of those drive-thru windows somehow depletes the brain of oxygen and the attendants forget the average person prefers a straw when sipping a 32-ounce, sticky, staining beverage in a moving vehicle that tends to make sudden stops. I don't know.

Then, again, maybe working around all that hot grease does something to a person's memory cells. Maybe that is the reason I always get a cola when I ask for an iced tea. Maybe.

Last weekend my family thought it would be fun to grab breakfast somewhere and go for a nice drive in the country. We pulled into a fast-food restaurant that is famous for their breakfast biscuits and placed our order at the drive-thru window. We ordered one sausage biscuit, one bacon and egg biscuit, one sausage biscuit with egg, three hashbrowns, one large orange juice, two coffees and 12 napkins, three salts, six ketchups, two sugars, one coffee creamer and one plastic stirrer. No margin for error, right? WRONG!

When we pulled up to the window to pick up our order, my husband offended the attendant by asking her to make sure all the condiments and utensils had been included.

Convinced we had done everything to ensure our eating pleasure, we took our order and drove off into the sunrise.

Once we got to the main highway I began my familiar ritual of passing out the food. Once again, we became victims of the CRIMES OF OMISSION!

Oh, the attendant had respectfully included our salt, ketchup, sugar, napkins . . . even the stirrer. The problem was the egg had been omitted from the sausage and egg biscuit. The bacon wasn't on the bacon and egg biscuit and someone had forgotten to include two of the hashbrowns.

I used to wonder why people parked their cars and walked into a restaurant for their "to go" foods when the drive-thru windows were so convenient. Now I know. They've grown tired of eating thick, frosty shakes with their car keys and they're tired of wiping their mouths on a road map. They, too, have been victims of the Crimes of Omission and they've come to the same conclusion I have — if you want salt in your sack, put it in yourself!

Deaconess Home Climbing List For Restoration Funds

The owners of a large old structure in Mtn. Lake Park, known as the Deaconess Home, were notified recently that the Maryland Historical Trust has ranked the structure 13th on its list of 39 applicants for restoration funding.

Jim and Amy Britton, who purchased the 100-plus room structure about three years ago, hope to restore it, move into a portion of it, and utilize most of the rooms for bed and breakfast rentals. The Brittons have been working to restore the structure since they purchased it, doing most of the work themselves.

Mrs. Britton, the former Amy Kittle, Mtn. Lake Park, daughter of former Garrett County Promotion Council director, Pat Kittle, stated that she was informed by the Historical Trust that the top 10 ranked projects would probably receive some funding and perhaps the Deaconess Home would also receive some monies this year. She said that hopefully the Deaconess Home project would move up on the list next year.

According to Mary I. Love's book, Once Upon a Mountaintop, the Deaconess Home consists of two large dining area and located on the northeast corner of Spruce and H streets. One of the houses was built in 1881 by the Rev. John Thompson of Philadelphia. The corner house was built about 1900 by Julia Orum, also of Philadelphia, and for a time it was used as a hotel called The Burlington. The two houses were connected by the dining room around 1917. The property was owned and used for several years as dormitories by the Mtn. Lake Park Camp Meeting Association, which sold the property to the Brittons.

Two Remain Hospitalized After Mishaps

Two persons remain hospitalized as a result of separate motor vehicle accidents which occurred in the area this week.

An Oakland man remains in "fair" condition at Ruby Memorial Hospital, Morgantown, W.Va., where he was transferred following initial treatment at Garrett County Memorial Hospital after a head-on collision on Route 219 on Saturday.

Francis W. Hinebaugh, 40, was taken to the hospital by the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad following the mishap.

According to Maryland State Police at McHenry, Hinebaugh was traveling north in a 1978 Jeep C-J, while Charles N. Harsh, 37, also of Oakland, was traveling south in a 1977 Ford Ranger.

Hinebaugh reportedly swerved across the center line and was traveling north in the southbound lane, and the vehicles collided head-on. Police said Harsh attempted to avoid the collision by swerving into the northbound lane.

Harsh was admitted to Garrett Memorial following the crash, but has been discharged according to a spokesman.

The mishap was investigated by Tpr. P.R. Brown.

Mark A. Goller, 24, Confluence, Pa., was listed in "stable" condition at Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, where he was admitted following an accident Tuesday morning on Route 219.

According to police reports, Goller was driving a 1985 Ford Mustang, and was traveling south on Route 219. David A. Gioiosa, 33, Arlington, Tex., was operating a tractor-trailer, and pulled onto Route 219 from the Route 48 ramp.

Goller was unable to stop, and his car ran under the trailer, completely removing the roof of the vehicle.

Cpl. G.A. Berkebile investigated the mishap, and reported that it was extremely foggy at the time of the incident. Gioiosa has been charged with failing to yield the right of way at the entrance to a highway.

Goller was taken to the hospital by the Northern Rescue Squad.

A two-vehicle accident occurred Saturday on Route 135.

According to police reports, Laura C. Bernard, 19, of Oakland, was driving a 1984 Ford Escort, and was following a 1978 Chevrolet Monza driven by Mary J. Paugh, 24, Deer Park.

Bernard reportedly attempted to pass Paugh as she started to make a left turn into a driveway, causing a collision.

Both Paugh and her passenger, Roger D. Tasker, 20, Swanton, were treated and released at Garrett County Memorial Hospital following the accident.

The incident was investigated by Tpr. P.R. Brown, who charged Bernard with driving on the left side of the road in a no passing zone.

A Tunnelton, W.Va., youth was injured in a motorcycle accident on private property near the Elkins-Oakland Road on Sunday.

Police said Roger D. Lightner Jr., 17, was operating the vehicle when it struck a wire fence, causing him to be ejected.

He was taken to Garrett Memorial by a private vehicle, where a spokesman reported that he was treated and released.

Cpl. Richard Graham investigated the mishap.

Two accidents resulted in drivers being charged with driving while under the influence of alcohol.

A single-vehicle accident occurred Saturday on U.S. Route 40.

According to police reports, Randy W. Moyers, 35, Bruceton Mills, W.Va., was eastbound in a 1982 Toyota Supra, and was stopped in the roadway to make a left turn onto the River Road.

Vickie L. Brant, 20, Springs, Pa., was also eastbound in a 1985 Buick Regal, and failed to reduce her speed, striking the Moyers vehicle in the rear.

Brant was taken to Sacred Heart Hospital, Cumberland, following the mishap, where a spokesman reported that she was not a patient.

Tfc. D.G. Riggleman investigated the accident, charging Moyers with driving an unregistered vehicle, unauthorized display of a registration plate, and driving while under the influence of alcohol.

Riggleman reported that charges are pending against Brant.

A single-vehicle accident occurred Saturday on the State Park Road.

Police said Tracey S. Weeks, 26, of Oakland, was southbound in a 1986 Chevrolet S-10 Blazer. As the vehicle entered a slight left curve, it ran off the road, struck a large rock, and overturned.

Weeks was taken to Garrett Memorial by a private vehicle, where he was treated and released.

The incident was investigated by Tfc. R.M. Hershberger, who charged Weeks with negligent driving and driving while under the influence of alcohol.

A single-vehicle accident occurred Friday on the Glendale Road.

Police said Margaret E. Orth, 28, Oakland, was driving a 1987 Subaru GL and traveling east. She stated that a Department of Natural Resources truck was traveling west and straddling the center line. Orth told police she drove off the right side to avoid hitting the truck, then struck an embankment and overturned.

Tpr. P.R. Brown investigated the incident. No ambulance transport was listed on the police report.

State Forest Acreage To Be Auctioned In Effort At Compromise

The Board of Public Works has released 612 acres of state-owned land within Garrett County for auction in an effort to compromise with the "no net gain" law which was repealed by legislative action this year.

Under the "no net gain" law, the Maryland Department of Natural Resources could not purchase land in Garrett County without first selling an equal amount already owned by the state as of June 1986.

Senate bill 602, passed during the 1989 Maryland General Assembly and signed into law by Governor William Donald Schaefer, allows the state to purchase property in the county without releasing equal shares, but it does prohibit the state from purchasing a tract or land easement larger than 100 acres without the approval of the Garrett County Board of Commissioners.

John Nelson, Garrett County Planning and Zoning, said that the release of the land owned by the state is the state's effort to compromise even though the "no gain" law has been rescinded.

The state has released four separate parcels of land, totaling 612 acres. The land is part of the Potomac State Forest, but is not connected to the main body of the State Forest. The land will be auctioned sometime in August.

According to the land consolidation plan prepared by the DNR, the state would try to buy parcels located near the main blocks of land already owned by the state and would sell separate or isolated parcels that are not attached to the state forests. The consolidation plan was conceived while the land bank bill was in effect.

The DNR has acquired approximately 500 acres of privately owned land within the Youghiogheny corridor. The DNR is currently under contract to purchase about 1400 acres of land owned by Penelec (Pennsylvania Electric Company). According to John Wilson, DNR, the purchase should be completed by May 1.

The Youghiogheny River Local Advisory Board is currently preparing a land management plan that will set guidelines for managing and preserving the Youghiogheny Scenic Corridor in its current existing scenic state.

Council Budget

budget in addition to the Council's regular operating budget. He said this budget is a result of the apparent need to renovate the existing information booth located on Route 219, and by establishing this budget, the Council will have the ability to go forward with the necessary studies associated with this renovation. To provide revenue for this budget of $47,500, the Council is looking exclusively to the accommodations tax as its source. Evans said that, although the entire county benefits from tourist dollars spent, the cost of this renovation would be borne by the tourist industry.

It was also noted in the budget proposal that actual costs for FY 1988-89 have exceeded last year's projections, primarily because of the unexpected $17,500 expense of printing 20,000 additional copies of the Vacation Guide last August, plus an increase in postage rates in February of this year.

In Memory of
George B. Friend Sr.
Who passed away four years ago this April 22nd.

How well we remember
On that April day,
When our Heavenly Father
Had called you away.
Although we were saddened
By your quick depart,
We'll hold all your memories
Deep down in our hearts.
And with the passing
Of every Lord's day,
It's just bringing us closer
To coming your way.

Sadly missed but never forgotten.
His Wife, Children, & Grandchildren.

When you were just a baby
You were cute as pie.
Now that you are grown up
You're the apple of our eye!

Happy April 25
Birthday Roger!

GCC Student Of The Week

This week's Garrett Community College Student of the week is Cheryl "Cheri" Bosley, daughter of Fran and Wayne Bosley, Oakland.

Bosley is a 1988 graduate of Southern High School where she was a member of the Girls Athletic Association, the girls' basketball team and the girls' softball team. She also worked in the main office as an aide.

A freshman, Cheryl is enrolled in the Secretarial Science Program at GCC and plans a career as a legal secretary. Last semester she received a 3.47 gpa and was named on the Honors List.

During the summer, she works for the Maryland State Roads Department as a laborer. In her spare time, she likes to swim and play basketball and softball.

When asked to comment on GCC Cheryl said, "GCC has a quiet atmosphere which makes it easy to learn. The people and faculty here are really friendly."

GCC To Offer Genealogy Course

The Division of Continuing Education of Garrett Community College will offer a four-session genealogy course beginning May 3. Each session will meet at the McHenry campus on Wednesdays from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. and include a brown bag lunch break at noon.

Since new sources of information and techniques are constantly being developed, this course will be of value to experienced genealogists as well as beginners, according to a GCC spokesman. Topics to be covered include: use of primary and secondary resources, books, forms and bibliographies, research and compiling historical records, writing accurate and historical facts, and documenting special history records.

The instructor, Dr. Caroline Haley, has taught sociology and anthropology at Texas universities before residing in Garrett County. She became a docent at the National Archives in Washington, D.C. after receiving instruction in the use of the nation's records. Dr. Haley has held workshops and lectured locally including a recent talk to the Cumberland Genealogical Society.

For additional information and registration, persons should contact the Division of Continuing Education at 387-6666, ext. 169.

GCC To Offer Time Management For Secretaries

Garrett Community College, Center for Community and Continuing Education, will offer "A Time for You" workshop for secretaries on Wednesday, April 26, from 1:15 to 4 p.m.

This workshop, on Secretaries Day, will teach time management techniques, analyzing one's use of time, working in a time-effective manner with one's boss and co-workers, and increasing individual and office productivity.

Registration deadline is Monday, April 24. Enrollment is limited. Persons should call GCC, Center for Community and Continuing Education, at 387-6666, ext. 169 or ext. 115, for additional information.

GCC To Present Dramatic Scenes And Monologues

An innovative dramatic form will be presented by the Garrett Community College Theatre Department next weekend when "Lowdowns and Luxuries of Life," a series of monologues and scenes, is presented in the college auditorium.

Performances are scheduled for Friday and Saturday, April 28 and 29, at 8 p.m., and on Sunday, April 30, at 2:30 p.m. According to Ben Sincell, theatre director, the show is rated PG-13 (parental guidance suggested).

Both humorous and dramatic scenes and monologues from various plays and author's works will be included in the program, which will be directed by student director Sonja Yelovich. Other college students in the program are Marcie Beiler, Richard Stevens, Conrad Maust, and Candy Dolan. Set design and lighting will be done by Sincell.

Of the program, Sincell states, "It is giving the students an opportunity to do monologues, a very difficult form of acting because it is all done by one person."

Yelovich, who has appeared in a number of college and community productions as an actress, is experiencing her first time as director. "It has been a very positive experience," she states, "but I think acting is easier. A director has to be everywhere."

Tickets for the performances will be available at the door. Adult admission is $3 and students, $2.

SECRETARIES' DAY — Garrett Community College will be offering a time management workshop on April 26, Secretaries' Day. The theme of the workshop will be "A Time For You," and will teach how to analyze use of time, how to work in a time effective manner with the boss and co-workers, and how to increase individual and office productivity. In the above picture, left to right, Carol Dearden, Sue Smith, and Tammy Manthos of GCC are busy making plans for the workshop. For more information on the time management workshop call the Continuing Education Center at GCC.

Yoder School

dicate a need for alternative schools in the county, but not one suggestion was made in that direction.

Dr. Ryscavage read his proposal for closing the school, citing several factors which contributed to the decision. They included increasing maintenance attention, declined enrollment, serious instructional differences from other county schools, and savings in salary. He stated that the closing of the school will not adversely impact the schools to which the students would transfer (Grantsville Elementary and Northern Middle schools).

Dr. Ryscavage concluded his statement by saying, "The Yoder School has had a long and proud heritage. It is with regret that the Board of Education takes this action bringing to a close this kind of service to the young people of Garrett County."

Another agenda item which was considerably lengthy was the discussion of the bonding referendum for the renovation of Southern High School and the enhancement of Northern High School. The architect for the SHS project was present to answer questions and present the latest set of schematic drawings, and a copy of the House bill was presented to board members.

The group also discussed the Garrett Referendum Fact Committee, which was formed for the purpose of informing citizens about the need for these projects in hopes of passing the referendum.

One parent suggested to Dr. Ryscavage that the committee should be expanded to include parents from both ends of the county to provide a layview, and perhaps people who are not involved in the school system at all.

The board approved this suggestion, and also listed several people to be contacted to serve on the committee.

Another item on the agenda was a report on the new computer education grant program and current computer usage in the county elementary schools.

According to a survey, 86 percent of the county elementary teachers have used computers with their students in math, 54 percent in reading, 35 percent in spelling, and 33 percent in writing.

Difficulties listed by teachers while using computers with their students included limited access to the computers (40 percent), insufficient teacher training (28 percent), and poor reliability of the computers presently used (21 percent).

Forty-five percent of the teachers indicated an interest in implementing an "electronic blackboard" in their classrooms. The concept requires having a computer located in the classroom with a projection device which would allow the entire class to view the computer's screen from their seats.

A report was also made on the revisions to the vocational agriculture program at both high schools. The current program is outdated, and the schools need a college-oriented program.

The new program will begin in the 1990-91 school year, and was designed to allow other students besides agriculture students to take courses.

The program designers attempted to make all the agricultural courses semester courses, and tried to keep prerequisites to a minimum.

John Morris, assistant superintendent of administration, reported that tuberculosis screening has become a requirement for all new board of education employees, as well as those who have not been screened in the last five years.

twice in the abdomen. It was later determined that the gunshots came from the police revolvers. Police said he also sustained two self-inflicted gunshot wounds, one of which was to the head.

Police found two weapons in the house following the incident, including a .32-caliber handgun and 30.06 high-powered rifle.

Brammer is the only West Virginia state trooper shot to death in nearly 10 years. A service was held Tuesday in Kingwood for the 16-year state police veteran. Over 1,100 people reportedly attended the service, including approximately 350 West Virginia State Police officers and 210 police offers from other states.

A service for Layton was held yesterday in Terra Alta.

Richard Capan, Oakland, reported the theft of several items from the job site of a newly constructed house on the Red Run Heights Rd. According to a report filed by Deputy Sheriff Russell Drenning, a hydraulic stone cutter, an extension cord and a hildegun were removed. The items are valued at $910. The theft apparently occurred between April 10 and 13. The investigation is continuing.

Theodore Evans, Oakland, reported that two black angus calves, valued at $400 each, were removed from a pasture on the Spring Glade Road on the night of April 16. Deputy Denver Welch is investigating. There are no suspects at this time.

State Police Arrest Three On DWI Charge

Several arrests, including three for driving while under the influence of alcohol, were reported by Maryland State Police at the McHenry detachment this week.

Charles Rea Allen Jr., 40, Keyser, W.Va., was arrested for DWI by Tpr. P.R. Brown at 10:20 p.m. on Friday.

Tpr. J. Resh arrested Mark David Troy, 30, Listonburg, Pa., for DWI on Saturday at 2:10 a.m.

Francis Wade Hinebaugh, 40, of Oakland, was arrested on Sunday at 12:35 a.m. by Tfc. R.J. Resh.

Tpr. Brown arrested Mickey Edward Fisher, Markleysburg, Pa., for possession of a controlled dangerous substance last Thursday.

Brown reported that Fisher was stopped for a routine traffic violation, and suspected marijuana was found in his vehicle. He was later charged with driving with a suspended license.

Georgia Weimer, of Oakland, was charged with two counts of making a false report to a police officer.

According to police reports, Weimer falsely reported that she had been sexually assaulted at her residence on March 21.

Comptroller Seeks Owners Of Unclaimed Funds

Most people scan the newspapers to find money-saving ads and cents-off coupons. "But 19,975 Marylanders whose names will run in newspaper ads across the state in the next two weeks might find something even more lucrative," said Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein.

"We are running one of our largest unclaimed property ads ever to reach these individuals, who are due unclaimed funds from banks or other businesses," Goldstein said.

Ads carrying 71 of those names due property worth $27,772 are in The Republican today and will appear again in the April 27 issue.

Financial institutions and insurance companies are required to report those items, plus unclaimed funds such as insurance benefits, unclaimed stock dividends, and other unclaimed funds.

The unclaimed property doesn't include real property such as boats or cars, except for the contents of unclaimed safe deposit boxes. "The contents of safe deposit boxes listed in the current ads include everything from sterling flatware and diamond jewelry to odd cufflinks and Indian Head pennies," Goldstein said.

Financial institutions and insurance companies must report these items to the Comptroller's Office if they remain unclaimed for five years. "We advertise the names of the apparent rightful owners in the county of last known address," Goldstein said.

"However, Maryland's law is custodial, meaning that there is no time limit under which the property or its monetary equivalent may be claimed."

INTRODUCING
Reproductions & Adaptations Of Shaker Antiques

The quest for perfection. In their quest for perfection and simplicity, the Shakers created some of the most celebrated furniture designs in American history. Shaker Country is Lane's tribute to the creativity, originality and spirit that have made Shaker antiques among the most prized of today's collectibles. It is also a celebration of the unique ways in which the shaker style adds depth and dimension to contemporary interior design. On the whole, our Shaker collection reflects the surprisingly strong compatibility of 20th century and Shaker design. Both base their aesthetics on the simple idea that form follows function. As you page through our catalogue, you'll see what we mean. Shaker Country can create an environment of unique harmony and balance when mixed in contemporary settings in today's home.

Track season is underway for Southern High School, as Coach Fred Gregg's boys' team and Coach Bob Quick's girls' squad competed twice this past week.

The Southern girls captured second place in a triangular meet Friday against Beall and Mt. Savage, while the boys were trounced by Beall on the Mountaineers' track. The girls recorded 62 and one-half points, while Beall won with 79 and one-half and Mt. Savage placed third with 36 points. The boys lost to Beall, 113-33. There was no Mt. Savage boys' team in the event.

The Ram boys and girls each finished second in a triangular meet at Allegany yesterday against the Campers and the Spartans of Bishop Walsh. In the girls' competition, Allegany scored 109 and one-half, Southern recorded 46, and BW finished with 22 and one-half points. The Allegany boys won easily with a score of 120, followed by Southern with 37 and Bishop Walsh with 25.

Northern Girls Defeated Despite Early 9-0 Lead

After the first inning, it appeared that the Northern High School girls' softball team was going to pick up its first win of the season after an 0-4 start, but the Huskies saw their 9-0 first-inning lead disappear, as Meyersdale came back to record a 13-9 victory.

Coach Bob Yunker's players started and finished all of their scoring for the afternoon in that first inning, as the Red Raiders came back for four runs in the third inning, four in the fourth, two in the fifth, and three in the seventh.

Audra Speicher was hit by a pitch to lead off the game for Northern. Jennifer Birkby followed with a walk and, after a pop-out by Karen Wilhelm, Christy Jones drove in Speicher with a single. Michele Beeman then plated Birkby with a single, Kelli Iden singled home Jones, and Cara Wachter walked to load the bases. Laurie Stanton and Speicher were then walked to force home two more runs, after which Birkby singled again to score a run. Another run scored on the play when the leftfielder bobbled the ball. Wilhelm then singled home Speicher and Birkby later came home on a wild pitch to make it 9-0.

Singles by Miller, McKenzie, and Smith, combined with three walks, led to Meyersdale's four runs in the third inning.

Five straight singles and strong base running yielded four more runs in the fourth and three walks, a single, and two errors in the fifth gave Meyersdale a 10-9 advantage and all they needed for the win.

Sophomore Tracey Teats relieved Birkby on the mound to halt Meyersdale's scoring in that inning, but the Raiders added three insurance runs in the seventh on four walks, a sacrifice fly, and a wild pitch.

The Huskies attempted to rally in the bottom of the seventh, as Teats led off with a single to center and Stanton followed with another single. But Speicher lined hard to the shortstop, which yielded a double play. Birkby followed with a single and Wilhelm walked, but Christy Jones lined to short to end the game.

Southern Jayvees Lose To Knights, Lions, Top Union

The Southern High junior varsity baseball team opened its season last Thursday by dropping both ends of a doubleheader to host Valley, 3-0 and 5-2, coming back Friday with two big wins over Union High School's varsity at Union, 21-8 and 13-1, and then falling to the visiting Tucker County jayvees on Monday, 5-3. They will attempt to improve their record to 3-3 this Friday when they host Petersburg at home following the varsity game.

Valley's Roger Lough tossed a one-hitter against the Rams in the first game last Thursday. He struck out seven Ram batters enroute to the win over Southern's Bobby Evans.

Casey Shoemaker and Bo Dye paced Valley's hitting with a two-run homer and a double, respectively.

B.J. Shaffer took the loss on the mound in the second game, as Richard Goldsworthy struck out eight batters for Valley. Jeff Wilson rapped an RBI double for the Black Knights while J.T. Lee added an RBI single. Shawn Ryan recorded a pair of hits for the Rams.

The pair of wins upped Valley's record to 5-1.

James Bateman was not only the winning pitcher for the Rams in the opener against Union on Friday, but aided his own cause by smacking a home run, a double and a single, as the Rams finished with 17 hits. Britten Martin added a double and two singles, B.J. Shaffer and Garth Glotfelty each had three singles, and Randy Livengood finished with a pair of doubles.

Junior Hawk rapped a pair of homers to drive in five of the Tigers' eight runs, while John Qualls doubled and singled.

David Kurtz was the winning pitcher for the Rams in the second game, as he recorded eight strike-outs. Jason Rinker led Southern's hitting with a triple and a double, while Shane Skipper and Joe Healy each added a pair of hits.

Qualls, Brian Martin, and Michael Conrad each hit doubles for the 0-4 Tigers.

Both games were called after five innings because of the 10-run rule.

Shawn Chenoweth stroked a two-run homer for Tucker County to lead the Lions to their 5-3 win over the Rams on Monday. Chuck Rapp added an RBI double, as Bob Cutwright gained the win over Bobby Evans on the mound.

Southern out-hit the visitors, but left too many runners stranded. Randy Livengood homered, Martin smacked three singles, and Tommy Ritchie finished with two singles.

Southern's team consists of only five sophomores from last season's squad, two first-year sophomores, and 12 freshmen to make up a 19-player roster.

SOUTHERN JAYVEES OPEN SEASON — The Southern junior varsity baseball team opened its season last Thursday and is now 2-3 on the season, having lost a doubleheader to Valley and a single game to Tucker County, but sweeping a doubleheader over Union High School's varsity. Meeting Slated For Northern Area Wrestlers

There will be a meeting this Sunday, April 23, at 6:30 p.m. at the Grantsville Fire Hall to discuss the possibility of establishing a non-profit organization to support Northern Garrett County wrestling programs.

The main topic of discussion will be fund-raising efforts to provide summer wrestling camp scholarships to local youth. Other related topics concerning off-season activities will also be covered.

Wrestlers of all ages and their parents are welcome to attend the meeting. Those youth who are already planning to attend a wrestling camp, and their parents, are particularly encouraged to attend.

Rams Roll Over Central Preston For Second Win

The Southern Rams recorded their second win in five starts this season by rolling over visiting Central Preston Friday afternoon, 11-5, behind a strong pitching performance by freshman Brett Rice.

Rice yielded six hits, struck out eight batters, and walked only three to raise his personal mark to 2-1 for the season.

Coach Jim Bosley's Rams assumed a 2-0 advantage in the first inning when Rice singled and Jamie Colaw followed with a two-run homer.

Central Preston responded with a single run in the third, but Southern came back in the bottom of that frame with five runs. Sacrifice flies by Colaw and Shawn Nesselrodt accounted for two runs, a pair of Central Preston errors yielded two more, and the fifth was recorded on a two-out single by Charlie Plauger.

Central scored three times in the fifth and once in the sixth, but Southern answered with one in the fifth and three in the sixth to keep things even.

Nesselrodt led off the fifth with a double and scored when Marshall Pike reached on an infield error.

Dave Uphold and Colaw walked in the sixth inning, Colaw after being hit by a pitch, and Kevin Green followed with a three-run homer to score the final runs of the game.

Green also had a single for the Rams, Nesselrodt finished with a pair of doubles, and Rice aided his own cause by smacking two singles.

The Rams will entertain Petersburg in a single game this Friday at 4:15 p.m., host Berkeley Springs in a doubleheader on Saturday, beginning at 1 p.m., and then travel to Central Preston for a single game on Monday, set to begin at 5:30 p.m.

Safely Home
I am home in Heaven, dear ones; Oh, so happy and so bright!
There is perfect joy and beauty in this everlasting light.
All the pain and grief is over, every restless tossing passed.
I am now at peace forever, safely home in Heaven at last.
Did you wonder I so calmly trod the valley of the shade?
Oh! but Jesus' love illumined every dark and fearful glade.
And He came Himself to meet me in that way so hard to tread;
And with Jesus' arm to lean on, could I have one doubt or dread?
Then you must not grieve so sorely, for I love you dearly still.
Try to look beyond earth's shadows, pray to trust our Father's will.
There is work still waiting for you, so you must not idly stand;
Do it now, while life remaineth — you shall rest in Jesus' land.
When that work is all completed, He will gently call you home;
Oh, the rapture of that meeting, Oh, the joy to see you come!

Lakers Sweep Two Doubleheaders, Fall To Montgomery-Rockville

The Garrett Community College baseball team played three doubleheaders this past week, sweeping two of them and dropping both ends of the other one to leave their season record at 12-15. The Lakers are slated to host Charles CC in a twinbill this afternoon.

Garrett's first double win occurred Friday over Catonsville CC, as Bill Cassella pitched a two-hitter in the opener to win 1-0, and the Laker offense took control in the nightcap by recording 15 hits and a 15-7 win. The Lakers then lost to Montgomery-Rockville on Sunday, 4-3 and 5-2, before rolling over Frederick CC yesterday at Frostburg State College, 10-2 and 14-1, as Paul Wilson tossed a no-hitter in the second game.

Cassella struck out five Catonsville batters and walked only two enroute to his third win in five starts.

The only run of the game was scored in the fifth inning when Jeff McIntyre singled with two outs and then scored on Craig Clevenger's double.

After being held scoreless in the first three innings of the nightcap, the Lakers erupted for 10 runs in the fourth frame to put the game away. Eric Diehl led off with a solo homer to tie the score at 1-1. Mike Harbaugh followed with a walk, McIntyre singled, and Clevenger was hit by a pitch to load the bases.

A squeeze bunt by Warren Hook brought Harbaugh home and then Tony Warner smacked a grand slam to clear the bases. John Smith then doubled, Diehl walked and Harbaugh and McIntyre followed with run-scoring singles. Clevenger then doubled home the ninth run and Scott Browning singled home McIntyre for the tenth.

An RBI single by Browning in the sixth made it 11-1 and four more runs were scored in the seventh as Browning and Hook each rapped RBI singles.

Henry Heran smacked a pair of homers for Catonsville, one a three-run blast in the seventh.

Although John Smith held Rockville, the defending Region XX champions, to just four hits in the opener on Sunday, and although the Lakers out-hit Rockville 10-4, the visitors managed to squeeze home the game-winning run in the seventh.

Rockville moved out to a 2-0 lead without a hit in the third inning, but the Lakers tied the score in the bottom of that frame when Warner doubled and came home on a single by Smith. Smith reached third when his hit went by the right-fielder and pinch runner Warren Hook came home on a sacrific fly by Cajetan Stepanic.

Rockville made it 3-2 in the sixth on an RBI single by Bart Clarr after two walks, but again the Lakers came back to tie in the bottom of the inning when Smith singled, Harbaugh walked, Stepanic singled to load the bases, and McIntyre squeezed in a run.

Rockville's winning run came in the seventh when Santine reached on an error, Jim Simon doubled, and Santine scored on a squeeze play by Thomas. It appeared that the Lakers might come back a third time when they had runners on first and second with just one out in the bottom of the seventh, but a double play concluded the contest.

Warner doubled and singled and Smith and Woodring each had two singles for Garrett.

Rockville scored single runs in the first, third, and fifth innings of the second game before the Lakers reached home plate once in the sixth when Diehl walked and pinch runner Scooter Browning moved to second on a single by Harbaugh. Stepanic walked to load the bases and Browning scored on an error. The Lakers had the bases loaded with no outs, but the side was retired on a strike-out, a line drive, and a fly.

After Rockville added two more runs in the seventh to take a 5-1 lead, the Lakers added a final run in the bottom of the inning when Smith singled and came home on a double by Harbaugh.

The highlight of the Lakers' double rout yesterday over Frederick was Wilson's no hitter in the second game.

The Cougars jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the top of the third inning in the first game, but Garrett quickly tied the score on an RBI by Stepanic that scored Diehl and an RBI double by McIntyre.

The Lakers added two more runs in the fourth as Dwayne Woodring walked, stole second, went to third when Harbaugh reached on an error, and then scored on a double-steal with Harbaugh taking second. Diehl then sent Harbaugh home with a single.

A triple by Stepanic, a walk to Browning, a single by Woodring, a single by Warner, and a two-run single by Harbaugh in the fifth made it 7-2.

The Lakers recorded their final three runs in the sixth when Darryl Dupert led off with a home run, Stepanic and McIntyre followed with singles and later came home on a single by Browning.

Cassella, who tossed the first six innings for the Lakers, recorded the win to up his personal mark to 4-1.

Leading Garrett's hitting were Dupert with a homer and a single, Stepanic with a triple and a single, McIntyre with a double and a single, and Browning and Warner with two singles each.

The second game lasted only five innings because of the 10-run rule.

The only Frederick run was scored in the first inning when Wilson walked the leadoff hitter, who later scored on an infield error.

The Lakers broke the game wide open in the bottom of the second when they scored 10 runs. Highlights of the inning were five stolen bases, two double steals, a three-run homer by Warren Hook, and an RBI double by Chris Miller.

Harbaugh and Bucky Riggleman stroked RBI singles in the bottom of the third when the Lakers added three more runs, and Harbaugh rapped an RBI single to score Woodring for a run in the fourth, the final score of the game.

George's Gulf volleyball team, of Connellsville, Pa., captured the championship in the Spring Open Women's Volleyball Tournament held April 15 at Garrett Community College by defeating the team from Reel Video, McHenry, in the finals, 15-10 and 19-17.

George's Gulf had earned a spot in the finals by stopping Nelis, 15-10, 12-15, 15-2, while Reel Video won the other semi-final match over Brenda's Body Shop, 15-8, 15-1.

Plans have now been made to hold a Mixed Volleyball Tournament at GCC on Saturday, April 29. Any interested persons should contact Coach Quinn at (304) 782-6703.

Huskies Win Three Straight Before Being Scalped By Indians, 15-1

After losing three of their first four games, the Northern Huskies came alive this past week to win three straight games before being bombed by top-ranked Mt. Savage yesterday, 15-1.

The Huskies flattened Berlin Friday afternoon, 13-5, on the Pennsylvanians' diamond, topped East Preston on Monday, 5-1, at Northern, and blanked Turkeyfoot on Tuesday, 10-0, at Confluence, Pa. Coach John Helmick's team is 4-4 on the season and is slated to host Valley on Monday.

The Huskies were down 3-2 to Berlin after the first inning, but came back for three runs in the second frame, highlighted by Dave Yoder's two-run homer. Lee Holloway's RBI single later in the inning gave the Huskies a 5-3 lead.

Berlin pitcher Brian Marker walked in four Northern runs in the fourth inning to put the game out of reach for the host team.

Yoder finished with a homer and a single, John Sherbin rapped a triple and a double, and Tony Bittinger and Holloway each finished with two hits. Dan Sines gained the win on the mound over Sam Wildeman.

Holloway, a sophomore, accounted for four of the Huskies five runs against East Preston on Monday afternoon, as he ripped a pair of home runs, one a three-run shot in the second inning. He also led the Husky defense, turning one double play from his second base position and five assists to stop East Preston from scoring.

Todd Wagner finished with a pair of singles and Dave Yoder added a double to complete Northern's hitting.

Wagner and Kevin Selby, who took the mound in the fourth, combined on a four-hitter and nine strike-outs, as Selby earned credit for the win.

Wayne Fint gave his team its only run of the day when he rapped a solo homer in the fifth inning.

Sherbin needed only 58 pitches on Tuesday against Turkeyfoot, as he gave up only one hit (a first-inning single), and fanned seven batters, and walked only two to pace the Huskies to victory.

Northern's hitting was not overly impressive, as the Huskies recorded only six hits off the Berlin pitcher, Koontz, but Koontz also yielded 13 walks.

Northern went on top 3-0 in the first inning as Dave Yoder singled, moved to second on a groundout, and came home on a double by Sherbin. Danny Sines followed with a single to plate Sherbin and came home later on a bases-loaded walk to Tony Bittinger.

The Huskies scored five runs in the third, although they recorded only one hit in that frame, and then Tom Savage stroked a two-run double in the fifth to complete the scoring and conclude the game because of the 10-run rule.

Gibson Reflects On Lakers' Season, Takes A Look Toward Next Year

The Garrett Community College men's basketball team recently finished its 1988-89 season with a record of 18-16.

"When we started this year, I thought we were capable of a 20-win season," commented Laker head coach Dennis Gibson. "I still think we were capable of a 20-win season...we just didn't make the breaks we needed. Last year's team won 21 games with less talent, which is a tribute to their work ethic."

GCC was one of only four teams in Region XX to accept an invitation to the year-end region tournament. "We played in the tournament just like we did all year," said Gibson. "We played good enough defense to win...we just couldn't put the ball in the hole with any degree of consistency."

Aaron Davis (6-1, Suitland HS/Forestville) received First Team All-Tournament recognition at the Region XX Tournament. Davis, an outstanding player for two years at Garrett, averaged 10 ppg, 8.2 assists, 4.5 rebounds, and 4.2 steals. Playing 34 minutes a game, Davis had only two turnovers per outing, an amazing statistic when one considers he handled the ball and ran the offense.

"Aaron is the best true point guard we've had in my 10 years at GCC," said Gibson. "He often got overlooked because he didn't score more. But I'll tell you, there's no other guard in the region I'd rather have handling the ball for me."

Davis also received an invitation to play in the Region XX All-Star game and was named to the All-Maryland JUCO second team.

The most improved Laker this season had to be sophomore Kerwin Thompson, (6-0, Catonsville HS), who led the team in scoring with a 17.6 average and also collected 4.2 rebounds per game. He shot nearly 50 percent from the field and almost 40 percent from beyond the three-point line.

"Kerwin's given us two good years," noted Gibson. "A lot of times this year he had to carry the entire offensive load, especially when Miller was in foul trouble."

Forward Romir Miller (6-7, South HS/Pittsburgh) showed flashes of brilliance this season, as he averaged 17 ppg and 7.5 rebounds, but was plagued by foul difficulties in many contests. According to Gibson, Miller flourished when he was given a bigger role down low. "Ro's post-up game is his strong suit, but he's really improved his outside shooting and near the end of the year was a legitimate three point threat," Gibson said.

Miller hit nearly 50 percent of his three-pointers, scoring on 20 of his 41 long-range shots. He was given Honorable Mention on the All-Region XX team.

Sophomore Eric Rice (6-0 Southern HS/Oakland) was a valuable weapon coming off the bench for the Lakers. He won the "Sixth Man Award" in the Arby's Classic to open the season, but soon ran into difficulties with a pesky ankle sprain.

"I feel bad for Eric," Gibson said. "He really worked on his game this past summer and was poised to be our three-point threat coming off the bench. He came back slowly from the ankle injury, but he gave us some valuable minutes in some key games and hit some big baskets this year."

Of the freshmen, Travis Bohrer, Bobby Gregg and Mark Nuckols had the biggest impact. Bohrer (6-7 Allegany HS/Cumberland) scored 10 ppg and snared an average of seven rebounds an outing. He'll spend the off season improving his strength and agility.

The high point of Gregg's (6-4 Friendly HS/Fort Washington) season came at the Hurricane Classic in Louisburg, N.C., where he was named to the All-Tournament team. "Bobby's a tireless worker who played much of the year out of position at center," said Gibson, who said he would like to utilize his talents at small forward next year.

Nuckols (6-4 Midland Trail HS/Ansted, W.Va.) may have been the most athletic Laker. He saw action primarily at small forward, but also played some at point guard, shooting guard and power forward. "Mark could be an outstanding shooting guard if he improves his range this summer," Gibson said.

Steve Galusky (6-4 West Preston HS/Masontown, W.Va.) saw increased action as the season went on. Making the move from high school center to college guard, Galusky improved his range and, according to Gibson, has an uncanny ability to always be around the ball. He'll spend the off-season working on his ball handling skills.

Freshmen Terry McDonald (6-1 Westminster HS/Westminster) and Greg Turman (6-6 Plainfield HS/Plainfield, N.J.) also gained considerable playing time during the season. McDonald saw action at the point and shooting guard slots, while Turman spent most of his season at center.

Gibson and assistant coach Dave Martin are already hard at work on the recruiting trail, looking for the players who will allow Garrett to continue its winning tradition. As usual with college basketball programs, the emphasis will be on recruiting inside players. However, with the losses of Davis, Thompson and Rice, the Lakers are also going to need impact players in the backcourt.

GCC already has a slight jump on the recruiting game, as freshman Todd Montgomery (6-8 Bridgeport HS/Bridgeport, W.Va.) will have just less than two years of eligibility remaining after taking a medical red shirt this season. Montgomery played only four games when he went down with a leg bruise that was complicated by a blood disorder.

Gibson noted his appreciation to State Farm Insurance Agent Rob Michael, Kelly's Appliance and Furniture, Glotfelty Enterprises, First United National Bank and Trust, Garrett National Bank, Deep Creek Pharmacy, Doerr Construction, Naylor's True Value Hardware, Arrowhead Grocery and Deli, Browning's Foodland and Arby's for their support this year.

"Those folks are the backbone of our financial support," he said. "Of course, there are a number of others who help us out through our halftime programs, and we're indebted to them as well.

"I'd also like to thank our season ticket holders and all of our fans. The guys on the team and I really take notice when we have a good crowd. We hope to see you all next season," he concluded.

Bassers Hold Tourney At Lake

The Garrett Bassers Association held its second tournament of the year on Sunday at Deep Creek Lake, as the 19 participating members caught a total of 36 fish, all of which were returned live into the lake after weighing.

Doug Schenk was the winner of the event, followed by Tony Slovak and Dave Friend.

The Bassers will hold an open team walleye tournament this Saturday, April 22, from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m., with cash and prizes awarded to the winners. Persons may call 387-6501 or 334-4517 for information.

The only point scored by the Southern boys was by Matt Reddinger, who topped Joe Baisden in singles, 8-6.

Huskies Win

A sacrifice fly by Savage gave him three RBIs on the day, while Holloway recorded a two-run double.

The Husky bats were nearly silenced yesterday by Dennis Skidmore of Mt. Savage, who allowed only two hits and four walks, and struck out nine in going the distance. It was the Indians' fifth win in as many starts.

A two-run homer by Dave Kennell in the first inning gave the Indians a 2-0 lead, although singles by Northern's Wagner and Sherbin in the bottom of that frame narrowed the gap to 2-1 when Wagner stole home. But those were to be the last hits and runs for the Huskies on the afternoon.

Mt. Savage picked up five more runs in the third on a two-run homer by Mike Davis and a two-run single by Rick Burley. A hit batter, three walks, and three singles led to five runs in the fourth and a three-run blast by Scott DeHaven in the fifth concluded the scoring, as the game was called because of the 10-run rule.

Danny Sines took the loss on the mound for the Huskies, who were out-hit 14-2.

THE AERODYNES, Garrett County's own girls' gymnastics team, recently completed its spring season of competition, participating in gymnastics meets in Crofton and Joppa in Maryland and in Philippi and Elkins, W.Va., and bringing home scores of ribbons and trophies for their efforts. The team is part of the Garrett Gymnastics Club, presently based in Loch Lynn, and is coached by the club's director, Tammy Tressler. Nan Gangler is the assistant coach. Several members of the team are planning to attend Woodward Gymnastics Camp, near State College, Pa., in June and will be conducting various fund-raising efforts over the next several weeks to help cover the costs. Members of the team, pictured above, left to right, seated, are Sara Sincell, Andi Bender, and Brianne Miller. In the second row, same order, are Betsy Spiker, Aaron Buser, Alayna Beahm, Dawn Scheffel, Sheila Butt, and Geni Uphold. In the back row, same order, are Carla Fint, Bridgette Nolan, Kara Freyman, Mandi Guy, Jennifer Reeves, Julie Severe, Amanda Mountain, and Vicki Dunham. In the photo at left, Aaron Buser demonstrates excellent form in the vault. At right, Dawn Scheffel works out on the uneven bars. The other events for girls are balance beam and floor exercise.

ENROUTE TO WEST VIRGINIA CHAMPIONSHIPS — Two members of the Garrett Gymnastics Club's Aerodynes have qualified to compete in the Class IV West Virginia State Gymnastics Championships, which will be held in Charleston on May 6. Participating in that event will be Amanda Mountain, pictured above left, and Sara Sincell, right. The two advanced to the championships by achieving specific overall point totals in previous qualifying meets. Amanda is the daughter of Dave and Frances Mountain, Oakland, and Sara is the daughter of Don and Suzanne Sincell, Mtn. Lake Park. Pictured at left, Alayna Beahm demonstrates a pose in a floor exercise routine, while at right, Andi Bender and Brianne Miller were photographed in the midst of their back hand springs, also a necessary skill in the floor exercise.

Fact Committee

Committee members voiced questions they had heard raised in the community. When asked what it would cost to merely renovate the existing main building at Southern High School, Gandee estimated in excess of $5.5 million. "The existing structure is sound and a significant part of the renovation includes replacing the electrical, heating and plumbing systems which are now in some parts of the facility over 35 years old," he said. The lifespan of the renovated Southern High School will be nearly 40 years. Gandee feels that the Southern High School project will be completed at or below its budgeted cost, thereby assuring adequate funding for the proposed Northern High School project.

Gandee's calculations show that it would cost $7.16 million to get the same renovations and additions at Northern High School now as were received in 1985 for $5.61 million. Figures provided by the State Department of Education place the rates for renovation of Southern at $43 per square foot for the newest part of the existing building to $52 per square foot for the oldest part of the existing building.

The formula used by the Inter-Agency for School Construction (IAC) was developed the same time the agency was established during Marvin Mandel's occupancy of the Governor's mansion. Figures are fed into the formula to determine the amount of State allocation without considering factors that would vary widely across the State such as the configuration and condition of the existing building, the school's curriculum, and the community's growth and development.

Although building an entirely new structure for Southern High School was considered, Gandee felt that avenue was not warranted in Garrett County. The existing structure is sound. Also it would cost $15 million to $16 million, not including the site development costs, to construct a new high school.

Differences in the "cafetoriums" at the high schools were also addressed. The floor at Southern High School must be removed, as it is vinyl asbestos tile and the cost to add three tiers while the floor is torn up is not substantial. At this time, there are no plans to carpet the Southern cafetorium since it is also a food service area. Northern High School has a poured terrazzo floor in the cafetorium which costs today around $9 per square foot. There was no reason to remove that floor during the 1985-86 renovations as it was in excellent condition, in which it remains today.

Other detailed discussions with Gandee took place which the members of the Garrett Referendum Fact Committee said they wish to share with the general public. For information about the projects at Northern and Southern High Schools, Joyce Bishoff (826-8687) or Mary Lou Stemple (334-3030) can be contacted. Betty Vance will schedule someone from the Speakers' Bureau to meet with any group or organization. She can be contacted during working hours at 334-3926, 826-8490 (Accident) or 895-3236 (Grantsville).

Rev. Reneslacis Succeeds Husband In Pastorate

The Rev. Earlean M. Reneslacis was recently elected, by unanimous decision of the voting members, to be pastor of the Kitzmiller Assembly of God. The congregation had been pastored for eight years by her husband, Rev. Juris V. Reneslacis, until his death on Christmas Day 1988. During the months of her husband's illness and following his death, Mrs. Reneslacis took over the pastoral duties of the church.

Mrs. Reneslacis is the daughter of Muriel Mills and the late L.R. Mills. A native of Spotsylvania, Va., she received a diploma in Christian Education from Eastern Bible Institute and a B.S. degree in Bible from Valley Forge Christian College. She is licensed with the Potomac Division of the Assemblies of God.

She and her husband were married in August of 1962 and began their first pastorate in Emmaus, Pa., in January 1963. After being there for several years, they pastored Emmanuel Assembly of God in Allentown, Pa., for 11 years. They lived and worked on the campus of Valley Forge Christian College before coming to Kitzmiller in 1980. Mrs. Reneslacis worked closely with her husband in all areas of church ministry during those years.

The Reneslacises have two children, Rachel and Jonathan. Rachel received a master's degree from Washington University in St. Louis, Mo., where she now resides and works. Jonathan is a junior at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in Lauringburg, N.C., where he is majoring in math.

Byron Addresses Confusion Over Prison Proposals

In an effort to clear the mounting confusion over prison proposals for Allegany County, U.S. Congresswoman Beverly B. Byron (D-MD) held a meeting last Friday with Federal Bureau of Prisons Director J. Michael Quinlan, Maryland State Delegate Casper Taylor, Allegany County Commissioner Arthur Bond, and representatives of Senator Paul Sarbanes, Senator Barbara Mikulski, and Governor William Donald Schaefer.

"Bureau of Prisons Director J. Michael Quinlan confirmed this morning that the plans for the medium security facility which we've been working so diligently for in Allegany County over the past four years will not be changed," Byron said. "There has been an awful lot of confusion and frustration over the past three days and that's unfortunate because the Cumberland community has worked so well with the Bureau of Prisons to find a site. But we now have assurances from the director that the original proposal is still on track.

"We're all very pleased to acknowledge that $50 million has been earmarked for the 600-700 bed facility and it could be completed by the fall of 1991," Byron said.

Rumors of a second federal facility to house prisoners serving time for drug related crimes sparked questions from the Cumberland community. The Congresswoman received confirmation from the Bureau of Prisons, however, that no such facility is planned. According to Director Quinlan, prisoners serving time for drug related crimes are dispersed among 55 federal facilities throughout the nation. Funding has already been secured to construct nine more prisons throughout the country to house the growing prison population.

"I'm glad that this confusion has been cleared up," said Sen. Mikulski. "We know now the plans haven't changed for a prison in Allegany County. We will continue to work with the local community, the Bureau of Prisons, and the Governor's office to keep this facility moving forward."

KICK-OFF FOR THE CHILDREN'S BOOK FUND CHALLENGE — Jack King (right), representing Bausch and Lomb, recently presented Nancy Pagenhardt with a $500 check to kick-off the challenge to raise $10,000 for children's books. The books will be purchased when the goal has been reached. They will be available at the Ruth Enlow Library in Oakland and circulated to the various branch libraries in Garrett County.

School Funding To Be Topic Of MPTV Program

Why do Maryland schools have so much more money to spend on students than others? And just how are schools affected by inequities in the funds made available to them?

Persons desiring the answers to these questions may want to tune in to Maryland Instructional Technology, and Maryland Public Television presentation of "Public Education: The Money Factor" on Monday, April 24, at 10 p.m. The program, a local follow-up to the PBS series "Learning in America," focuses on Maryland funding issues, spotlighting three Maryland schools that typify the inequities in the State funding formula. MPT newsman Dave Durian is host to a panel of experts, including Delegate Howard P. Rawlings, State Superintendent of Schools Joseph L. Shilling, Baltimore County Superintendent Robert Dubel, Caroline County Superintendent William Ecker, and Baltimore City Superintendent Richard Hunter. The second half of this hour-long program will provide an opportunity for viewers to call in with questions for the panelists.

The local Maryland Public Television channel is 36 Oakland.

First United Reports 21.5% Higher Earnings

"First United Corporation's first quarter 1989 earnings increased by 21.5 percent over the same period last year, due largely to a stable economy and a strong demand for credit," according to Richard G. Stanton, president and chief executive officer of First United Corporation, a multi-bank holding company headquartered in Oakland.

Net income for the quarter was $1.22 million. Earnings per share of common stock rose to $.78 per share versus last year's $.64 per share. Year-to-date average return on assets and equity were 1.51 percent and 17.85 percent, respectively.

Stanton cited increases in loan growth, and improvement in Trust Department and fee income as contributing factors to the earnings increase.

"The good performance First United has enjoyed would not be possible without the loyal support of shareholders, customers, employees, and directors," he said. "We sincerely appreciate the continued support that will be so important to us as we move forward."

During the first quarter the Corporation paid a cash dividend of $.60 per share, a 20 percent increase over the dividend paid for the same period last year. Also, a quarterly cash dividend of $.34 per share was declared by the Board of Directors at its meeting of April 5, 1989. The dividend will be paid on May 1, 1989, to shareholders of record as of April 12, 1989.

The market value of the Corporation's common stock was $30.50 as of March 31, 1989. This represents a 30.7 percent increase over the asked price one year ago, after accounting for the five percent stock dividend issued on August 1, 1989.

As of March 31, 1989, the Corporation reported assets of $328.6 million and capital resources of $28.2 million or $18.07 per share. First United Corporation has 1,742 shareholders and 1,563,088 shares outstanding.

Good Food and how to prepare it!

April is Cancer Control Month

DAIRY PRODUCTS

Milk and milk products are the main source of calcium in our diets. They also contain many vitamins and minerals which are essential to a healthy diet. However, when fortified with Vitamin A and D, skim milk products also contain these essential benefits. Choose fortified low fat milk, skim milk and buttermilk in place of whole milk, skim evaporated milk, low-fat yogurt in place of ricotta cheese, half and half instead of table cream for coffee, sherbet more often than ice cream. If you enjoy cheeses, parmesan, part-skim mozzarella, neufchatel, pot and farmer are all cheeses with lower fat content.

MOCK SOUR CREAM

8 oz. low-fat cottage cheese
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon milk

Combine in a blender and whip until smooth. Chill. Yield: 1 cup.

BREADS

Breads are a good source of carbohydrates and fiber. They are low in fat if you spread honey, jam, fruit butters, low-fat dips or reduced calorie cheeses on them. For the maximum fiber benefit, choose breads and cereals made from whole grain products. Some suggestions: whole wheat crackers, bran muffins, brown, rye, oatmeal, pumpernickel, bran, and corn breads, whole-wheat English muffins, and bagels. Other good sources of fiber are whole wheat breads and pitas (pocket bread), multigrain breads, and corn or whole wheat tortillas.

CORNMEAL, WHOLE WHEAT AND RAISIN MUFFINS

4 tablespoons oil (cottonseed, corn, safflower, sesame or soybean)
⅓ cup sugar
1¼ cups skim milk
1 egg
1 cup whole wheat flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 cup cornmeal
½ cup raisins

Mix together the oil and sugar; add milk and egg and stir until well blended. In a large mixing bowl, combine flour and baking powder. Add the liquid to flour mixture, stirring just until mixed. Stir in cornmeal and raisins, using just a few strokes. Dip batter into muffin tins. Bake in 425 oven for 20-25 minutes. Yield: 1 dozen.

Line muffin cups with paper liners or spray with no stick cooking spray lightly to reduce fat.

OLD-FASHIONED MOLASSES BREAD

1 cup all-purpose flour
1 cup whole-wheat flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon baking soda
2 teaspoons baking powder
⅔ cup skim milk powder
⅓ cup wheat germ
½ cup brown sugar
¼ cup chopped nuts
½ cup raisins
⅓ cup finely chopped dried apricots
3 eggs
¾ cup orange juice
½ cup vegetable oil
½ cup molasses
2 bananas

In large bowl, combine first 11 ingredients. In food processor or electric mixer, whirl eggs until foamy. Add orange juice, oil, molasses and bananas; process until mixed. Pour into dry ingredients and stir just until moistened. Pour into two 8x4" non stick cooking sprayed pans. Bake in 325 oven for 1 hour or until firm. Let cool on wire rack, then remove from pan to cool completely. Yield: 2 loaves.

BREAKFAST

Breakfast can be one of your most nutritious meals of the day. Whole-grain toast, muffins or cereal will give your body needed fiber. Fresh fruits are low in fat and high in vitamins and minerals. Boil or poach eggs rather then frying them. Reduce intake of bacon, sausage, pastries and croissants.

BUSY DAY BRAN MUFFINS

1 egg
1 cup low-fat milk
¼ cup vegetable oil
1 cup all-purpose flour
1 cup 100% bran cereal
3 tablespoons sugar
3 teaspoons baking powder
¾ cup raisins or chopped dates (optional)

Spray 12-cup muffin pan with no stick cooking spray or line with paper baking cups. Blend egg with milk and oil; set aside. Combine dry ingredients in medium bowl; make a "well" and add liquid ingredients. Stir lightly with a fork just until moistened. Batter should be lumpy. Fold in raisins. Fill muffin cups about ⅔ full. Bake 25-30 minutes in 400° oven. Yield: 1 dozen.

APPETIZERS

Appetizers are meant to whet the appetite for the meal to come or when several are combined, to take the place of a complete meal. They should have a low fat calorie count as they do not need to be "filling."

CUCUMBER PATE

1 large cucumber, peeled, seeded, cut in cubes
2 stalks celery, cut-up
1 small green pepper, seeded, cut-up
1 medium onion, cut in quarters
1 cup low-fat cottage cheese
½ cup reduced calorie mayonnaise
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
¼ cup boiling water
¼ cup cold water

Spray 5 cup mold with all natural no stick cooking spray. Chop cucumber, celery, green pepper, onion in food processor. Set aside. Blend cottage cheese and mayonnaise in processor until smooth. Dissolve gelatin in boiling water, stir in cold water. Add cottage cheese mixture and chopped vegetables. Mix well, pour into mold, refrigerate until set. Unmold and serve with rye, snack bread or low salt crackers. Yield: 4½ cups.

LOW FAT VEGETABLE DIP

1 cup plain low fat yogurt
3 green onions, chopped
¼ teaspoon dill weed
1/8 teaspoon garlic powder
Dash of fresh ground pepper

Combine all ingredients in bowl or blender. Refrigerate several hours. Serve with raw vegetables. Yield: 1 cup.

ENTREES

Entrees are the main course at a dinner or luncheon and are the mainstay of the daily diet. Traditionally, entrees contain either meat, seafood or poultry. Vegetable entrees are becoming more commonplace, however, and are nutritious as well as filling.

EGGPLANT AND CHEESE PIE

1 large eggplant, cut lengthwise, into ¼" (very thin) slices
½ cup diced green pepper
½ cup diced onion
½ cup sliced mushrooms
1 large tomato, diced
Dash each of oregano leaves and garlic powder
2 teaspoons grated parmesan cheese
2 oz. each low-fat mozzarella cheese and low-fat sharp cheddar cheese, shredded

On baking sheet, arrange eggplant slices in a single layer, broil, turning once, for 3 to 5 minutes (slices should be crisp and brown). Remove eggplant from broiler and set oven temperature to 350 degrees. In 9" nonstick pie pan, arrange eggplant in a circular pattern, overlapping slices, press edges of eggplant together to resemble a pie crust. Spread vegetables evenly over eggplant and sprinkle with oregano and garlic powder. Sprinkle cheeses on top, ending with the parmesan. Bake until cheese is melted and browned, 20 to 25 minutes. Cut into pie-shaped wedges and serve. Yield: 6-8 slices.

VEGETARIAN CHILI CASSEROLE

3 cans (28 oz. each) tomato sauce
1 can (28 oz.) whole pack tomatoes
3 cans (15 oz. each) Great Northern Beans (drained)
2 cans (27 oz. each) dark red kidney beans (drained)
1 cup chopped onion
1 cup chopped green pepper
1 cup chopped zucchini
1 cup bean sprouts
1 cup chopped red cabbage
Chili powder to taste

Put all ingredients in 3-quart dutch oven and mix. Be sure tomato sauce covers everything. Simmer on low heat for 1 hour. Serve over a bed of brown rice. Yield: 10 servings.

MEAT

Beef is a rich source of nutrients including iron, protein and the B vitamins. However, beef can also add unwanted fat to your diet if care is not taken in its selection and serving. Be sure to choose cuts that are low in fat and trimmed well. Look for meat with a minimal amount of white marbling. Low fat cuts include tip round, eye of round, and some chuck roasts. Trim additional visible fat. Buy lean ground beef or ground round and drain well after cooking. Broil rather than fry hamburgers. Braise lean beef cuts or use in stews. Put in refrigerator overnight to congeal the fat so it can be removed before reheating. Lean pork also contains plenty of nutrients. Choose lean cuts with little or no trimmable fat, such as cuts from the loin. Cut back on the highly processed, high fat sausage and bacon. The same is true for veal and lamb. Veal cutlets tend to be lower in total fat, however, as do several cuts of veal steak and chops.

HEALTHFUL BEEF AND VEGETABLE SALAD

12 oz. cooked beef tip roast, cut into thin strips (2 ⅔ cups)
1 carton (8 oz.) plain low-fat yogurt
⅓ cup (2 oz.) pared, seeded, finely chopped cucumber
¼ teaspoon dill weed
1 clove garlic, minced
2 cups fresh green beans (7 oz.) cut to 1" length
3 cups (10 oz.) cauliflowerets
12 cherry tomatoes (6 oz.) halved

Prepare dressing by combining yogurt, cucumber, dill weed and garlic in a small bowl, cover tightly and refrigerate. Blanch green beans and cauliflowerets for 3 minutes. Combine meat strips, green beans, cauliflowerets and tomatoes in 2 quart serving bowl. Cover tightly and refrigerate 2-4 hours. Serve with yogurt dressing. Yield: 6 servings.

VEAL CUTLETS WITH PLUM SAUCE

1 pound veal cutlets, cut 1/8 to ¼" thick
4 ripe purple plums, halved and pitted
½ cup port wine
1 tablespoon mango chutney and sugar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ teaspoon salt

Cut 2 plums into 8 wedges each; reserve. Chop remaining plums. Place chopped plums in wine in large saucepan. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat, cover tightly and simmer 15 minutes. Meanwhile place each veal cutlet on flat surface. Cover with waxed paper and flatten with bottom of sauce pan, mallet or cleaver to 1/8 inch thick, reserve. Place cooked plum mixture in blender container or food processor fitted with steel blades. Add chutney and sugar, cover and process 15 to 20 seconds. Return mixture to saucepan; add reserved plum wedges. Cook, covered, over low heat 5 to 7 minutes. Meanwhile heat heavy nonstick frying pan over medium high heat 3 minutes. Quickly cook cutlets, 3 to 4 at a time, 1 minute or to desired degree of doneness, turning once. Remove veal to warm platter. Sprinkle with lemon juice and salt. Serve with warm plum sauce. Yield: 4 servings.

PASTA

Pasta is a grain which is a good source of complex carbohydrates, protein, and many other vitamins and minerals. Whole wheat and vegetable pastas have more fiber and Vitamin E than refined pasta. When cooking pasta, omit salt and cut back on sauces made with butters and cheeses. Use more tomato-based sauces and those that include vegetables.

SHRIMP AND VEGETABLE PASTA

¾ lb. cooked small shrimp
1 medium zucchini, sliced thin
1 medium onion, chopped
1 small head broccoli, in flowerets
1 large carrot, sliced thin
8 oz. linguine
2 tablespoons margarine, low fat
3 cloves garlic
½ cup grated parmesan cheese

Steam broccoli and carrots until crisp-tender. Set aside. Saute garlic in margarine. Add zucchini and onions, saute 2-3 minutes. Add shrimp and other vegetables, heat through. Boil linguine in water just until a al dente (8-9 minutes). Serve vegetable mixture over linguine. Top with grated cheese. Yield: 10-12 servings.

MINESTRONE SALAD

12 oz. whole wheat elbow pasta
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 (16 oz.) can Great Northern Beans, drained and rinsed
1½ cups no-oil Italian dressing
2 cups broccoli flowerets, steamed and refreshed in ice water
½ cup chopped green onion, including tops
½ cup chopped red and/or green bell pepper
1 cup zucchini, cut into rounds and sliced in strips
1 cup carrots, cut into rounds
Lettuce leaves, sliced tomatoes

Cook pasta in water to which lemon juice has been added. Drain and combine with beans and dressing, refrigerate overnight. 2-3 hours before serving, add remaining ingredients and keep at room temperature. Serve on lettuce garnished with tomatoes. Yield: 8 servings.

SNEEZE, SCRATCH SNIFFLE, COUGH

Yes sir, it's in the air. That time of year so dreaded by so many allergy sufferers is once again here. But, take heart friends, it's not nearly so bad as it once was. Not too many years ago there was nothing to do but suffer miserably through the season. Now a physician who has carefully analyzed a specific allergy problem can usually prescribe a helpful medication to control the uncomfortable symptoms.

Enjoy springtime more this year. Consult your physician and then closely try to follow the advice he gives you.

CHAIN REACTION

With great ceremony, the boy gave the lead domino a gentle poke. A rapid series of sharp clicks proceeded down the line, paused briefly at a gap too large, then continued onward. Then, abruptly, everything was still.

He was tickled speechless. He clapped his pudgy hands together and gave me a big, proud smile.

Giving our faith to God is like pushing over that first domino. It starts a chain reaction—one that results in a richer life, greater happiness and a deeper confidence in ourselves and in the future.

Why not worship this week?

Let God start a chain reaction in your life.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE FOCUS
April 23, 1989

Background Scripture: Philippians 4
Devotional Reading: Psalms 148:1-6a

How many joyful people do you know? Are you one of them?

At this moment, I can't think of anyone I know who could be described as "joyful." I know some people who seem to be "happy"—myself among them. I know a few people who are occasionally joyful, but no one is that way the majority of the time. Yet, in his letter to the Philippians, Paul repeatedly counsels his readers to "Rejoice in the Lord" (3:1), "Rejoice in the Lord always; again I will say, Rejoice" (4:4). And Paul represents himself as a joyful person: "...and in that I rejoice" (1:18), "Yes, and I shall rejoice" (1:19), and he asks them to "complete my joy by being of the same mind..." (2:2). Of Epaphroditus, he says: "So receive him in the Lord with all joy..." (2:29).

YOUR REQUESTS

So, why is it that joy is such a scarce commodity among Christians? Some people respond by saying they would be more joyful if they had more over which to be joyful. In other words, it is hard to be joyful when there are so many problems and concerns in the world. The implication is that joy is dependent upon the absence of negativities in life. When we have joyful experiences, we will be joyful. But, when our experiences are something else, there is no way that we can be joyful.

Of course, if that were true, then Paul would not ever have been joyful, would he? Even when he wrote this joyful letter to Philippi, his outward circumstances were pretty discouraging. But, if Paul had considerable problems, he also had considerable resources with which to meet those problems and in this letter he chooses to concentrate on his resources, not his problems. He doesn't ignore the bad, but neither does he concentrate on it either. This is the same advice he gives to the Philippians: "Have no anxiety about anything, but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known to God. And the peace of God which passes all understanding, will keep your hearts and your minds in Christ Jesus" (4:6,7).

THINK ON THESE

In the lives of each of us there are both "good news" and "bad news." It is up to you which you will choose for the focus of your life. Focus it on the negatives and you will never be able to rejoice. But, if you choose to focus on that which is positive and uplifting, you will share Paul's happy gift of rejoicing in all things. So, "whatever is true, whatever is honorable, whatever is just, whatever is pure, whatever is lovely, whatever is gracious, if there is any excellence, if there is anything worthy of praise, think about these things" (4:8).

'Baywatch' demonstrates flip side of lifeguards

Parker Stevenson a lawyer, lifeguard

By Candace Havens

Lets face it, watching Parker Stevenson run around in a bathing suit is not a hard thing to do. In Baywatch: Panic at Malibu Pier, a movie premiering Sunday, April 23, on NBC, Stevenson can be seen as a lawyer in a business suit and a lifeguard in a bathing suit.

Baywatch is about a group of Southern California lifeguards. No, Stevenson's character is not schizophrenic and this isn't a campy sex romp on the beach. It is about real people with real jobs, but people who also happen to lifeguard.

"The character I play (Craig Pomery) is based on a couple of actual lifeguards," Stevenson said in a recent interview. "75 percent of the guys that are lifeguards do it part time. They have other jobs that they do during the week, so they usually lifeguard on the weekends.

"I've met a bunch of them and they are either in real estate, physicians, or attorneys, and on the weekends they lifeguard because they like being at the beach."

If Baywatch goes into series Stevenson wants to be right in the thick of things. "What better job could you ask for? You get up to go to work every morning and you go to the beach. I'm just afraid someone would find out how much fun I'm having.

"I've been on the road away a lot for the last couple of years and the idea of doing a series in Los Angeles five days a week in as luxurious a place as the beach is hard to beat," he said.

Parker Stevenson stars as a lifeguard who has bigger interests than the beach in Baywatch: Panic at Malibu Pier, Sunday, April 23, on NBC.

Edward James Olmos delves into the immigrant experience as host of The Learning Channel's new series New to America, premiering Sunday, April 23.

TV CLASSICS

Knotts' Fife character full of malapropisms

By John Haakenson

It was called The Andy Griffith Show but, to many, the most memorable character from that 1960s comedy classic was not Andy, but rather the bumbling Barney Fife.

Don Knotts' portrayal of the hapless deputy sheriff remains a television classic. After The Andy Griffith Show, Knotts found semi-stardom in motion pictures like The Reluctant Astronaut and The Shakiest Gun in the West, but never again latched onto a character quite so enduring—and endearing—as the intrepid Mr. Fife. (Let's not even mention Knotts' tenure on Three's Company.)

One of Barney's trademarks was the ill-timed malapropism, an art that Carroll O'Connor later refined as Archie Bunker. Here's a sample of some of Barney's blarney:

Pepperoni: "pepperelli"
Compulsions: "compelsions"
Introvert: "inovert"
Smithsonian: "Smith Brothers Institution"
Kleptomaniac: "kleptomenerac"
ESP: "extra-sensitive perception"
Boudoir: "boodoor"
Inoculated: "inarculated"
Naive: "nave"

Barney also displayed his temper from time to time. Even boss Andy was not immune to Barney's wrath and, when that happened, Fife was likely to explode in this manner:

"Oh, you're funny, you are. Why don't you put a flower in your lapel and squirt water?"

"You're a riot, you know that? Why don't you two team up? Call yourselves Frick and Frack."

Anyone as colorful as Mr. Fife could hardly get by without a nickname. Barney had dozens, including the following:

"Barn; The Scamp; Barney the Rabbit; Peter Cottontail; The Chicken; Wild Bill Fife; Fast-Gun Fife; Fife the Fierce; Barney the Beast; Barney Fife the Bulkhead; Tiger Fife; Foxy Fife; Cream Puff; Barney-Parney-Poo; Scoop Fife; and Tweeky."

Some people get no respect.

Grandparents are grand in TV land

By Donna Gooch

Everyone benefits from grandparents—even fictional television characters. The following list of elders offer support not only to their adult children. The series wouldn't have been the same without these active and offbeat actors. See if you can match the series and grandparent.

SERIES:

2. Beverly Hillbillies
3. Scarecrow and Mrs. King
4. Soap

g. Zeb
h. Joe
i. Endora
j. Katherine

ANSWERS:

Mouseketeers adopt new look in series revival

By Stoney Black

They're baaaaaack! Just when you thought it was safe to turn on the TV in the afternoon, a new group of smarmy kids with teeth-filled smiles and a rodent as their mentor make their cable debut.

You won't see Annette or Cubby in the all-new Mickey Mouse Club. In fact, the T-shirted, mouse-hatted gang of old would feel strangely out of place in this modern show airing on The Disney Channel.

The club is holding its first meeting Monday, April 24, and will continue daily, Monday through Friday.

Naturally, the show centers around a group of talented kids, ages 11 to 14, who will provide entertainment. However, the show sheds its quaint clubhouse in favor of a more up-to-date, glossy look. Taping is done in Orlando, Fla., in a neon-filled palace complete with a beach, a cityscape and a local hangout.

The show favors eclecticism in its format. Each day features a different theme: Monday is Music Day; Tuesday is Guest Day; Wednesday is Anything-Can-Happen Day; Thursday is Party Day and Friday is Talent Day.

Children from around the country will have the opportunity to perform and be inducted into the Mickey Mouse Hall of Fame.

Harvard Nod

Harvard Law School's Professor Alan Dershowitz gave a nod of approval to NBC's Night Court in a recent article for the American Film Institute's American Film magazine. Wrote Dershowitz, "There is ... one show about law on television that really tells it as it is—Night Court, that wild and wacky spoof of courts, judges and the legal bureaucracy. In the same way that Al Pacino's ...And Justice for All was more realistic than the dozens of pretentious and tendentious 'classics' about law that civics teachers inflict on their pupils, so, too, Night Court captures the frenetic energy, the burlesque atmosphere and the absolute craziness that passes for justice in many of our lower-level urban courts..."

Chocolate Candy

Candice Bergen is a real team player, said Murphy Brown co-star Joe Regalbuto. "She has none of the ego that could be associated with a star of her stature," he said. "She's one of the guys. You have to watch her, though. If you're wearing a jacket she likes, she'll want it. And, worst of all, if she sees you with chocolate of any kind, she takes it. She's a nut about it."

HOROSCOPE

April 23 through April 29

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20)
Life isn't as bad as you think. You have a lot to be thankful for. Those worrisome thoughts from the past few weeks should subside; fun is just around the corner.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20)
You may have health problems to deal with this week. Take care and get plenty of rest. A child will make your world a little brighter.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22)
Forget your money problems for a while. If you really want something, you are industrious enough to get it. Don't belittle others this week.

LEO (July 23 - August 22)
Take a look at those around you and say hello. You have become extremely anti-social. Your problems are not that bad in the scheme of things.

VIRGO (August 23 - September 22)
You will make great strides toward improving your personal appearance this week, and it will pay off. Be frugal because something great is just around the corner.

LIBRA (September 23 - October 22)
A promotion or some type of recognition at work will happen in the next few weeks. Family members feel neglected. Take them on a short trip.

SCORPIO (October 23 - November 21)
Don't be surprised if someone gives you something special this week. Remember, flattery will get you everywhere. Take preventive health measures.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 - December 21)
Losing a few pounds and buying some new clothes will cheer up your dour disposition. Don't let others get you down. Stand up for yourself.

CAPRICORN (December 22 - January 19)
Give people a break. Your attitude needs some major adjusting. Your family cares about you; don't take advantage of their kindness.

AQUARIUS (January 20 - February 18)
You will have a great night out with a loved one this week. Get ready for some really great news over the next few weeks.

PISCES (February 19 - March 20)
Think before you speak this week at work. Money problems are not as bad as you think. Things will straighten out soon.

ARIES (March 21 - April 19)
This is a good week for you to re-evaluate priorities and find out what is really important to you. Health matters could get out of hand if you don't take care of yourself.

Ben Kingsley plays a famed Nazi hunter in the title role of HBO Pictures' Murderers Among Us: The Simon Wiesenthal Story, Sunday, April 23.

Ben Kingsley attracted by landmark roles

By Chad Andrews

He is intense, articulate and direct, with a presence as powerful as the famous personalities he has portrayed. He minces no words when he speaks of his life, his roles or his love for his work. Suffice it to say, there is nothing extraneous about Ben Kingsley.

An Oscar winner for his portrayal of the peace-loving Mahatma in Gandhi, Kingsley's most recent role was that of the famed Nazi hunter Simon Wiesenthal in Murderers Among Us: The Simon Wiesenthal Story, which premieres Sunday, April 23, on HBO. "I've always been attracted by those landmarks on the human plateau such as great pain, great love, great endurance, great integrity," he said. "It's those parts I find attractive, and in turn, those are the parts nearly always offered to me."

This role, among his numerous historic characters, was one of Kingsley's favorites. "He's in my top 10," he said. "I suppose there's some kind of justice in ensuring that a cry of pain which lasts forever is heard forever. I was always sincerely hoping for an opportunity to articulate that cry of pain."

"A belief that is illustrated, I think, by Wiesenthal's life is that somehow one doesn't look at the terrible apparent injustices of the Holocaust and conclude that it's a bleak and tragic world. One dedicates one's life to bringing back balance into it."

The son of an Indian physician and an English model, Kingsley grew up in England expecting to go into medicine like his father. But instead he turned to drama, joining an amateur drama society after high school. Work with two repertory companies followed, including the Royal Shakespeare Company. Following Gandhi, he spent more than a year starring in the one-man play Kean, based on the 19th century tragedian, Edmund Kean. "What do I like about acting?" Kingsley asked. "That it is controlled passion. No, that's not what I like about acting. That's what I love about acting."

Scott Nemes: Grant Schumaker on 'It's Garry Shandling's Show'

By Shelia Gillilan

BIRTHPLACE: Los Angeles, Calif.
BIRTHDATE: February 22, 1974
HEIGHT: 5'6"
HAIR/EYES: Brown

Anyone who has ever wished to be in show business has dreamed that a little bit of the Hollywood magic would happen to him—that he would be walking down the street, or eating at a restaurant, or doing anything normal, and someone would come up to him and say, "You should be in show business."

Back in 1982, some of that Hollywood magic happened to Scott Nemes. "It's a weird story," he said. "Seven years ago I was roller skating for Jerry Lewis and muscular dystrophy and someone came up to my mother and said, 'Do you want your son to be in show business?' and that was it. That was the big day."

After that, Scott got an agent and started acting in commercials. He did an astonishing 38 commercials in only four months.

Nemes went on to work on the stage, in the movies and in television. He is best known for his role as the outgoing, likeable and sometimes sarcastic Grant Schumaker on the Showtime and FOX series It's Garry Shandling's Show. The actor believes he is a lot like the role, only he is more outgoing than the character.

Nemes goes to school on the set when he is working, and goes to a regular school when he is off. He considers working with the wide array of guest stars on the series a great education in itself. "It's like school," he said.

In his spare time, Nemes enjoys going to movies, dancing, and playing and watching basketball. "I'm one of the biggest Laker fans," he said. "I live and breathe the Los Angeles Lakers."

Nemes hopes to do some producing or directing when he gets older, but whatever he chooses to do, he has a philosophy that will put him on the right road. "Whatever you want to do in life, do it the best you can do it and try your hardest," he said. "That's the only way you'll succeed."

Maybe that's the real secret to that famed Hollywood magic.

THE FRIENDS OF 4-H AWARDS are presented each year to businesses, individuals or organizations who have given time, money or knowledge to the 4-H program. This year 4-H honored the Garrett National Bank for their 20-plus years of support to the 4-H members through their participation in the Annual 4-H Livestock Sale. Accepting the award on behalf of the bank was Bonnie Sines, bank representative. Shown presenting the award to Ms. Sines is Peggy Evans of the Red House 4-H Club. The second recipient unable to be in attendance was the Potomac Valley Farm Credit A.C.A. For the past 11 years they have challenged 4-H clubs and members to do their best during the Garrett County Fair by presenting a plaque to the 4-H Club with the highest percentage of member participation at the fair.

Local Adventist Teacher Attends Weekend Events

Seventh-day Adventist elementary schools from West Virginia and Western Maryland participated last weekend in a Bible Conference, Education and Science Fair held at Huttonsville, W.Va., April 7-9.

Mrs. Edith Buresh, teacher for the Mountaintop Adventist School, Route 5, Oakland, attended as an observer. The local school began operating only last fall and it is hoped students will be able to participate next year.

Activities included a Bible Bowl where students demonstrated their knowledge of the Scriptures; physical fitness events; practice for a choral music festival to be held April 29 in Charleston, W.Va., and displays of art, social studies and science projects.

The weekend was sponsored by the Education Department of the Mountain View Conference on Seventh-day Adventists and is held annually to encourage excellence in Christian education.

New Scholarships Available For Future Therapists

A new scholarship program with awards of up to $2,000 a year is available to students who agree to work with handicapped children in Maryland public schools.

"There is a statewide shortage of occupational and physical therapists," said Dr. Shaila R. Aery, Secretary of Higher Education. "This program is designed to encourage more people to work in this field."

Recipients must be Maryland residents who are enrolled full-time in an undergraduate program leading to a state license as a physical therapist, physical therapy assistant, occupational therapist or occupational therapy assistant.

The program is administered by the State Scholarship Administration of the Maryland Higher Education Commission. Applications will be accepted in June. Awards will be made in July for the coming academic year.

Students may request application forms by calling 974-5370 or by writing: State Scholarship Administration, Maryland Higher Education Commission, Annapolis, Maryland, 21401.

Bloodmobile Nets 88 Pints During Southern Visit

The third annual bloodmobile visit to Southern High School was held Friday, April 7, as 94 students and faculty members attempted to donate blood, with 59 of them being first time donors. A total of 88 units of blood was collected.

Martin Green, assistant principal, was the first donor and other faculty members and students were scheduled by 15-minute intervals from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Anne-Marie Gouhier, the Fulbright exchange teacher from France, who is currently teaching French, was the last person to donate for the day.

Students from the Allied Health class and Student Council assisted the Johnstown Bloodmobile staff and local Red Cross volunteers. Students who assisted were: Rodney Pike, Joy McCain, Bonnie Ruston, Becky Cummings, Marcy Polce, Darrin Riley, Marci Stemple, Tonya Elliott, Serena Werdebaugh, Courtney Smith, Zack Gibson, Anna Sisler, Lori Whitacre, Ginger Zimmerman, Jennifer Glotfelty, Melanie Barr, Teresa Friend, and Christine Bittinger. Student Council members, Don Mason, Allen Reams, and Lynn Savage assisted with the set up of the beltline. Mrs. Shipe's Food Service class assisted with the preparation of the items for the canteen.

"Even though most of the students, especially the first timers, were nervous, very few experienced serious reactions to donating," stated David Mayfield, Student Council advisor. "Many students indicated a willingness to donate blood again in the future."

Legal Rights Of Volunteers To Be Examined

Governor William Donald Schaefer has announced that the Governor's Office on Volunteerism and the Young Lawyers' Section of the Baltimore City Bar Association have formed a partnership to examine the relevant legal rights and responsibilities pertaining to volunteers and volunteer agencies in Maryland.

Scheduled for completion next spring, the partnership will publish a handbook on "Volunteers and the Law in Maryland" and present a series of town-hall meetings throughout the state to discuss matters pertaining to volunteer immunity. The handbook and meetings will be presented free of charge as a service to Maryland volunteers.

"We are very pleased that Baltimore City's Young Lawyers' Section has agreed to commit the time and energy to examine this complex issue," Governor Schaefer said, adding "I'm confident that this project will greatly benefit Maryland volunteers by clarifying for them their rights and responsibilities."

David Beller, chair-elect of the Young Lawyers' 1989-90 Bar Year, has enlisted volunteers from three law firms, the Attorney General's Office, and the Baltimore City Solicitor's Office to help research, write, and edit the handbook. Audrey J. S. Carrion, a civil defense litigator with Piper and Marbury, will serve as the general editor.

For further information on "Volunteers and the Law in Maryland," persons should contact the Governor's Office on Volunteerism, at (301)225-4496.

Local Teachers To Attend Program On Drug Abuse

The Drug Free Schools Project will hold an in-service training program for Garrett County elementary school teachers at the McHenry House at the Wisp on Friday, April 21. The program is part of the awareness portion of the project. Guest speaker for the afternoon will be Commander Len Fogelsonger.

Fogelsonger is a registered pharmacist and a commander in the United States Navy. He is presently working with the development and installation of automated medical information systems in the Department of Defense Medical Treatment Facilities in the United States and overseas.

CDR Fogelsonger graduated from the University of Pittsburgh School of Pharmacy in 1970. While attending college he became interested in alcohol and drug abuse prevention, working with hundreds of drug addicts in numerous heroin rehabilitation clinics. He continued his education in the field of drug dependency and treatment.

Fogelsonger has given over 2,000 hours of lectures on the Pharmacology of Alcohol and Substances of Abuse and has talked to over 10,000 Maryland Students on the "Facts About Drugs and Chemicals" and "Dependency and the Adolescent."

A statement made by Fogelsonger to the President's Commission on Alcohol and Substances Abuse was: "Every parent, teacher, athletic director, school administrator, student, and leaders of community organizations should be aware and understand the effects, symptoms and side effects of alcohol and substances of abuse. Drug education, beginning at the kindergarten level and continuing through college, with reinforcement and open discussions at home on a constant basis, is the only answer to our society's drug problem. Prevention through education, so that an educated decision (choice) can be made by our children, is our only real hope of prevention."

Green Shores is the program to create forest buffers around the Chesapeake Bay, and it is one of the efforts of Governor William Donald Schaefer's One Million Marylanders campaign to help clean up the Bay. Forest buffers are strips of trees planted along the banks of a stream or waterway and are the most cost-effective methods of waterway protection. Maryland's Arbor Day on April 5 highlighted tree planting activities and more plantings are scheduled throughout the state.

According to the Maryland Department of Natural Resources, Green Shores can help clean up the Bay with its plantings since trees, shrubs and grasses hold soil and prevent rains from washing soil into creeks and streams that feed the watercourses leading to the Bay. It's the filtering action of trees growing in buffer strips that reduces sediment in waterways and prevents the pollutants found in run-off and subsurface groundwater from entering bodies of water. Pollutants and excessive amounts of nutrients like phosphorous and nitrogen are a problem in the Bay. The Chesapeake Bay Agreement among Maryland, Virginia and Pennsylvania governors requires a 40 percent reduction in nutrients in the Bay during its first phase. To help achieve the goal of planting 7,500 acres in this first phase, the Department of Natural Resources' Forest, Park and Wildlife Service will plant trees and tree seedlings at nearly 70 sites on more than 300 acres this year.

Foresters from the Maryland Forest, Park and Wildlife Service (MFPWS) will oversee the plantings of some 150,000 tree seedlings and 4,000 larger, balled and burlapped trees to achieve the Green Shores goals this year. Of nearly 70 sites, 24 are on state lands, 30 on county lands, 12 are municipal sites and there is one federal site. These trees will be planted by volunteer groups, school children, Boy Scouts and government employees. Plantings will be marked with an emblem developed in a Maryland school children's contest. The winning design of Alfonso Holton of St. Mary's County's Chopticon High School will alert citizens to a Green Shores planting site.

The Garrett County Green Shores planting site is in Big Run State Park, about which information can be obtained by calling 334-5728.

More than 95 percent of the land in Maryland drains into the Chesapeake Bay. "With over 200 years of abuse and neglect, the Chesapeake Bay needs Marylanders to help clean it up," a DNR spokesman said. "Governor Schaefer's One Million Marylanders program offers 10 ways for citizens to help in the clean-up effort. Planting trees support that effort and can provide benefits for years to come."

For more information on Green Shores, persons should call the Green Shores coordinator for the Maryland Forest, Park and Wildlife Service, Jeff Horan, at (301) 974-3776, or their local forester.

In Memory Of My Dad

CLARENCE BATEMAN

who went to be with the Lord
April 17, 1988

My Own Dear Dad
He was always quick to understand,
He always lent a helping hand.
He shared my problems and my play,
And helped me many times a day.
He believed in me when others doubted.
He was a loyal pal and a good, good scout.
All that I am or hope to be,
All that is "good" that happened to me,
I owe to my Dad.
And Mom would agree, for Dad picked her out and gave her to me.
So here's to my Dad. I hope I was as kind to him as he was to me.

Sadly missed and loved by Daughter, Ann Wiles

"Reading Is Fun" Program Concludes At Dennett Road

The culmination of the tutorial reading program, "Reading Is Fun," at Dennett Road Elementary School was Thursday, April 13, during B.E.A.R. Week (Be Enthusiatic About Reading) as tutors, participating teachers, and highest readers were honored. The group was entertained by the Rev. John Grant who played and demonstrated the bagpipes. Brad Stewart, P.T.A. president, presented certificates and were treated to a party.

"For the past 12 years, students at Dennett Road Elementary have been participating in a tutorial reading program whereby fourth and fifth grade student tutors listen to first, second, and third graders read," stated Mrs. Barbara Flinn, Chapter I resource teacher who coordinates the program. "The program has grown yearly from, in 1977, a total of 30 readers/tutors reading 210 books, to this year a total of 97 tutors and 1,003 books read. A program of this magnitude to be successful takes much organization and cooperation between teachers and students," she said.

The largest number of books read per class was 227 by Mrs. Foley's first grade. Second largest was Mrs. Kratofil's grade one which read 223 books. Third largest was Mrs. Fitzwater's grade three, 209; followed by Mrs. Rickman's grade 3, 133; Miss Miller's grade two, 100, and Mrs. Stover's grade two, 66.

Individuals reading the most books were all first graders. Chris Cornelius read 40 books, Jesse Liller read 31, John Hauser, 30, Todd Tasker and Jimmy Teets each read 27 books, and Richard Cornelius read 25 books.

One hundred and three prizes were awarded to students for each five books read. Seventy-three children received parties for each 10 books read. These children also received a Reading Award and were congratulated for their effort.

"We feel strongly that the Reading Is Fun program is an enjoyable and beneficial experience for both tutor and tutee. It is our goal to get the younger children 'turned on' to reading, to enjoy reading, and to give them some needed extra practice. This we did. We are pleased with the success of this program," stated Clark Sharpless, principal.

Women's Rights Advocate Will Speak At FSU

Ellie Smeal, founder and president of The Fund for the Feminist Majority and former president of the National Organization for Women, will deliver an address Friday, April 28, 8 p.m. in Tawes Hall, Room 232, Frostburg State University. The title of Smeal's address is "Prospects for a Feminist Majority," and the address will center on the necessity of promoting feminist and minority representation at every level of government.

Smeal, a nationally-known advocate of women's rights, often testifies before Congressional committees on a variety of issues and has been involved in a number of landmark court cases for women's rights.

Her leadership has been acknowledged by a number of media including being named in the 1983 World Almanac as the fourth most influential woman in the United States; by Time magazine in a 1979 cover story as one of the "50 Faces for America's Future"; and in U. S. and World Report as one of the six most influential Washington lobbyists.

Under Smeal's direction, The Fund for the Feminist Majority is sponsoring a "Feminization of Power Campaign," a nationwide effort to inspire women to seek leadership positions, to promote a National Feminist Agenda, and to heighten awareness of the feminist majority.

Prior to assuming the Fund presidency, Smeal served a two-year term as president of NOW and currently presides as NOW's Advisory Chair. During her term as president of NOW, Smeal led the National March for Women's Lives in Washington, D.C. — the largest march in the history of the women's rights movement prior to the march that was recently held on Sunday, April 9, and drew an estimated 300,000 people. During the same two years, she directed NOW's legislative strategy concerning support for the Civil Rights Rstoration Act and the Family and Medical Leave Act. She also worked extensively for workers' rights, stopping Apartheid in South Africa, nuclear disarmament, and the reduction of military spending.

Under her leadership, NOW increased its membership from 35,000 to over 220,000 and its annual budget from $500,000 to approximately $10 million.

Smeal authored an authoritative handbook on the "gender gap," or differences in the voting behavior between men and women, entitled "Why and How Women Will Elect the Next President," after the 1980 Presidential elections.

In 1984, while Smeal served as Chair of the Women's Trust, an independent political action committee, the Trust sponsored the Gender Gap Action Committee, co-chaired by actor Paul Newman and Congresswoman Patricia Schroeder. The Trust's "Women on the Ticket Campaign" helped to win Geraldine Ferraro the Democratic vice-presidential nomination.

Smeal appears frequently on television and radio and has been a guest on every network news show and many national television shows.

Her visit to Allegany County is being sponsored by Frostburg State University Faculty Development, The FSU President's Fund, and the Allegany County Chapter of the National Organization of Women. Her address on Friday at FSU will differ substantiively from her appearance as keynote speaker at the 1989 Maryland NOW Conference, "Facets of Women's Lives," being held at Allegany Community College Saturday. The public is invited and there is no cost.

Dr. E. Garbisch Will Speak At FSU On Wetlands

The Frostburg State University Department of Biology will present a guest lecture by Dr. Edgar Garbisch, founder and president of Environmental Concern Inc., this evening, at 7 p.m. in Tawes Hall, Room 335, on the University campus. The lecture is open to the public and free of charge.

Garbisch will speak on "Wetland Restoration, Enhancement and Construction." His presentation will focus on basic functions and values of wetlands and will offer examples of wetland restoration and enhancement. Also included in his program will be examples of construction of wetlands for stormwater management, wastewater treatment, shore erosion control, habitat development on dredged materials and mitigation of wetland losses through development.

In 1972, Garbisch founded Environmental Concern Inc., a corporation which provides landscaping and consulting services for wetland improvements, restorations developments and mitigation, as well as for habitat development for waterfowl, gamebirds and songbirds. The company is noted for its pioneer work in using landscape techniques to help control erosion on shorelines.

The lecture is part of a series offered by the FSU biology department and is funded by the Faculty Development Committee. Refreshments will be provided at 6:30 p.m. by Beta Beta Beta, a biology honorary at FSU.

For additional information, persons may contact Dr. Ronald Barry at 689-4167.

CAMPBELL COMPANY BEGINS CONSTRUCTION — The Campbell Company Real Estate Agency of Keyser, W.Va., has begun construction of its new office/apartment complex at 450 South Mineral Street. Because the Keyser area and its architecture were greatly influenced by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, Tom Campbell, broker/owner of the agency, decided to pattern the new structure after the old Keyser Depot, located under Memorial Bridge on Armstrong Street. The interior and its furnishings will also carry the railroad theme throughout. The existing Campbell Company office, which was located on the same site as the new one, was moved 40 feet eastward, and serves as temporary quarters until construction is completed. The old office will be moved to a permanent home at Parkeside in New Germany (Garrett County).

Math-Science Academy Teachers Being Sought

The Maryland State Department of Education announced last Friday that it will immediately begin screening teachers interested in participating in the first annual Governor's Academy for Mathematics, Science and Technology.

The academy, a proposal by Governor William Donald Schaefer that was strongly endorsed and funded by the Maryland General Assembly, is intended to encourage teacher interest in math and science and develop a cadre of outstanding teachers in Maryland in those two disciplines.

Both elementary and high school teachers are being urged to apply for the summer academy that is scheduled June 25 through July 21 on the Baltimore County campus of the University of Maryland in Catonsville.

The Department of Education seeks to attract outstanding high school teachers of advanced courses in mathematics or science and superior elementary teachers who are certified and want to expand their backgrounds in math and science.

Participants in the four-week summer institutes will receive stipends of $1,200.

Areas of study will include biotechnology, environmental issues, probability and statistics, geometry and measurement, genetics, and other related topics. Participants are urged to reside on the campus during the institute and to attend various planned evening events related to their studies.

Commenting on his vision for the academy after $500,000 in funding was approved by the General Assembly, Governor Schaefer said, "These institutes will offer teachers the opportunity to study in a collegial environment with peers, to expand their content knowledge and to familiarize themselves with new and emerging technologies."

All program costs, including room, board, materials and expenses, will be paid for those accepted. A maximum of 30 high school and 30 elementary teachers will be selected.

Teachers interested in applying may obtain application forms from June Danaher, chief of the science and mathematics section of the Maryland State Department of Education, 200 W. Baltimore St., Baltimore, Md. 21201. Additional information about the program may be obtained by calling (301) 333-2313.

The deadline for applicants is May 12.

Sarbanes Seeks To Restore Social Service Funds

Senator Paul Sarbanes has announced his co-sponsorship of a bill which would "offer real support to the states in their efforts to provide essential social services." The legislation would restore funding to the Social Services Block Grants (SSBG) Program, whose effectiveness has been significantly diminished by inflation and a series of funding cutbacks.

"These grants are vital to the health and security of children, mothers and older Americans across the country," said Sarbanes. "The SSBG Program has lost 50 percent of its purchasing power over the last 10 years, greatly limiting the availability of needed social services. We must reverse this trend and renew our commitment to ensuring the adequate protection of our Nation's most vulnerable citizens."

In a meeting with the Maryland Congressional Delegation, which Senator Sarbanes chairs, Governor William Donald Schaefer cited the problems created by the increasing cost of providing social services coupled with the decrease in available SSBG funds. The State of Maryland applies its SSBG dollars toward foster care and protective services for children, day care and family services, and providing various types of assistance to the elderly. The legislation calls for the restoration of $200 million to the SSBG Program in each of the next three years.

Byron Votes For Hatch Act Reform

U.S. Congresswoman Beverly B. Byron voted in favor of H.R. 20, The Federal Employees' Political Activities Act, on Monday. The measure, which passed through the House unanimously, alters the Hatch Act of 1939 allowing federal employees greater participation in political activities.

"This important legislation will lift some tough restrictions that have been placed on federal workers," Byron said. "It will allow the nearly 3 million federal and postal employees to become actively involved in political campaigns during their off-duty hours.

"At the same time, H.R. 20 guards against the misuse of official information and prohibits on-the-job campaigning," the Congresswoman added. "This legislation strikes the proper balance between the right of federal and postal employees to participate in the political life of this nation at all levels and the right of the public to impartial, non-political administration of the law."

All members of the Post Office and Civil Service Committee, along with 309 other members, co-sponsored the legislation.

Byron said, "Federal and postal employees deserve the same Constitutional protection of the right to free speech and association as is allowed to all other Americans. This legislation moves us in that direction."

Michael C. Hinebaugh, 18, Mt. Lake Park, was found guilty of theft. He was fined $25 and sentenced to 30 days in the Garrett County Jail. Judge Turney then suspended the sentence and placed Hinebaugh on 18 months probation. The charge was filed by Lisa Culp, assistant manager of Sheetz store, on January 19, after Hinebaugh apparently stole some items from the store valued at less than $300.

A charge of harassment against Darrell O. Martin Jr., 38, Oakland, was placed on the stet docket. The charge was filed by Diane Deane DeLauder, Corinth, W.Va., after several incidents which occurred in January and February. Robert C. Hesson represented DeLauder.

Topics Set For Young Farmer Discussion Meet

Topics ranging from animal rights to agricultural trade have been selected for the American Farm Bureau Federation's Young Farmer and Rancher 1990 discussion meet. Competition will begin at the local level this summer and conclude during the AFBF annual meeting, next January 7-11, in Orlando, Fla.

The discussion meet was developed to give Farm Bureau members between the ages of 18 and 30 the opportunity to gain valuable experience in discussion techniques.

Discussion meet winners from state Farm Bureaus are eligible to participate in the national competition held during the AFBF annual meeting. The winner of the final round of the round-robin discussion will be determined Sunday, January 7, and announced at the Young Farmer and Rancher award program to be held Monday, January 8, said Mark Landmark, AFBF director of YF&R activities.

The topic to be discussed in each round is randomly selected from the four designated topics and announced shortly before the round begins, so each candidate needs to be prepared on all four subjects, Landmark said.

The 1990 Discussion Meet topics are: How the animal rights movement will affect agriculture; Have farm cooperatives run their course, or are they still a necessity?; What effect do policies of the European Community have on American agriculture?; and What effect will a continued deficit have on America?

Any Garrett County young farmer between 18 and 30 who is interested in learning more about discussion meet competition should contact Garrett County Farm Bureau President William F. DeWitt at 334-4337, or Garrett County Extension Agent Jim Simms at 334-1990.

The owners of such tractors may write to John Harvey, Du Pont Company, EAD, Walker's Mill 5-170, Barley Mill Plaza, Wilmington, Del. 19880-0037.

Growing Broccoli in Your Home Garden

Broccoli is now one of the most popular vegetables that is eaten raw. Broccoli is very easy to grow as long as you follow a few growing practices. In our area it can be grown as a spring crop or planted in July for a fall crop.

Broccoli needs soil containing good fertility. After you set out your plants, they should be sidedressed with a high nitrogen fertilizer; 10-10-10 at a rate of two pounds per 100 feet of row is very helpful. Mix four to five tablespoons of household borax in the fertilizer for each 100 feet of row. Set the plants 12 to 18 inches apart.

Growing Beets

Beets are quite hardy and will grow under a wide range of climatic conditions but need a mellow, loamy soil for best results. They also need plenty of plant food, so unless the soil was well fertilized at the time of preparation, make another application along the row at planting time. The idea is to keep the beets growing steadily. Use a fertilizer relatively high in potash, such as 5-10-10. Lime the soil if needed.

Since beets are hardy, the spring crop can be planted soon. Sow moderately heavy in the row and thin to two to three inches between plants. Some plants thinned out may be used for greens. Successive plantings may be made at three week intervals to insure a steady supply of fresh, tender beets for table use.

Southern States Meeting Held For Oakland Store

Robert Schmidt Jr. and Kevin Stahl, both of Oakland, were elected to the local board of directors at the Southern States Annual Membership Meeting of Oakland Southern States held recently in Mt. Lake Park. Over 200 stockholder-members and their families attended the session.

Elected to the Southern States Farm Home Advisory Committee were: Evelyn Wildesen, Deer Park, and Glenna Miller, Oakland.

Elected as delegate to a District Election meeting to be held this fall was Lee Shillingburg, Oakland. Hubert Custer, Deer Park, was chosen alternate.

The report on local operations and services rendered to farmer-members in the community was given by Rex Hoalcraft, manager of Oakland Southern States. He reported that total volume for their operation for the past year was about $1,832,000.

The session also included a special recognition ceremony for the newly elected and retiring board members and Farm Home Advisory Committee members. Those retiring include: Lee Shillingburg, Pam Crosco, Elwood Sanders, and Mrs. Fred Stoner.

Safe driving awards were presented to Kevin Louie and Arthur Thomas Bernard III.

AFBF Head Says U.S. Should Move On Farm Bill

The United States should not wait for progress under the current multilateral trade talks before writing a new four to five year farm bill, the president of the American Farm Bureau Federation said last week.

"The European Community, Japan, the Cairns group and the world need to be aware that the United States is concerned about the lack of progress under the Uruguay Round," AFBF President Dean Kleckner said. The U.S. can not continue to wait for the trade talks, he continued. "We need to move on the next farm bill."

The leader of the nation's largest general farm organization told reporters at a news conference that the next farm bill should not be "based on what we hope will happen in the GATT (General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade) talks. I think we have to assume a continuation of what we have now in world trade and go on that basis," he said.

Kleckner emphasized that Farm Bureau has not changed its support for eliminating trade-distorting agricultural subsidies. "We haven't changed our underlying position," he said. "What has changed is our hopes for the GATT talks. The progress of the talks during the first two years has been disappointing, largely because of the European Community's refusal to consider fundamental changes in its agricultural support system."

Kleckner does not anticipate a major agreement to come out of the GATT talks taking place in Geneva, Switzerland, this week. The short-term proposals that the European Community has been making are not enough. "We need to concentrate on the long-term and agree only on short-term as a means to get to what we've agreed to on the long-term," he said.

"What we need out of this negotiating session, is some agreement by the world, mainly the EC, as to some substantial change. Not just some weasel words that can be interpreted in many ways. We still have almost two years left in these talks. We should not walk away, but I don't see a lot of progress coming out of the GATT meeting this week."

Kleckner voiced support for the direction of current farm policy that has taken place under the Food Security Act of 1985. "In general, the 1985 farm bill has been a good farm bill," he said. "The thrust of the farm bill has been to do three things: make us competitive in the export market, reduce the stocks on hand and maintain farmers' income. It's been doing those three things."

He also called for continuation of the export enhancement program. "We need to continue the export enhancement program to counter the export subsidies of the Europeans. We can't unilaterally give that up."

Budget Cutting Major Concern Of AFBF Official

Substantial reductions have already been made in agricultural spending and further cuts in next year's budget could hurt a farm bill that has helped agriculture, according to the American Farm Bureau Federation.

"Agriculture has borne its fair share of budget cuts," AFBF Washington associate director Grace Ellen Rice said in her testimony to the House Appropriations subcommittee on rural development, agriculture and related agencies.

She pointed out that USDA budget outlays are almost $10 billion lower than last year's level.

"There's a misperception across America that agriculture is a cause for the deficit dilemma and that's wrong," Rice said

In fact, USDA spending amounts to but four percent of the federal budget, Rice said. Also, farm price and income support spending only add to a little more than one percent of federal spending — and that number's going down as well.

Rice illustrated agriculture's cuts in farm program spending with 1986 outlays of $25.8 billion dropping to a projected $13.8 billion this year. CCC outlays in 1990 are pegged even lower, at $11.6 billion.

Farm Bureau is concerned about several Administration proposals to reduce ag programs. "The proposed reduction in target prices represents a major modification of the 1985 farm bill," Rice said. Not only does Farm Bureau oppose the move, but Rice added the cuts could "also weaken the United States' position in the current GATT negotiations."

Alternatives suggested by the Administration for a $1.1 billion reduction in 1990 farm spending, besides a five percent reduction in target prices starting on this year's crop, include decreasing the level of production of program crops eligible for deficiency payments, reducing non-target commodity outlays from five percent to seven percent, producer assessments or reducing the cash disbursements for loans and unspecified changes in the sugar program.

Rice said these proposed changes need to be studied carefully. "Modifications for the sake of deficit reduction do not necessarily translate into good farm program policy."

DEEP CREEK REALTY

DEEP CREEK REALTY

THAT SETTLES THAT!

"It's not over 'til it's over!" is a popular expression. Since there are numerous steps in the home buying process, how do you know when "it's over"?

The final step is called the "settlement" or closing. Technically, settlement takes place upon the transfer of title to the buyers and the disbursement of funds to the sellers.

If a real estate transaction is conducted for "cash", the entire process may only take a matter of days from start to finish. If the purchasers secure a new loan on the home, several months may pass from the time they make their home selection to the date of settlement.

Here is an explanation of the two terms: 1) transfer of title and, 2) disbursement of funds. Transfer of title is the process of determining that the sellers have "good title" to the property (the right to sell it), and the preparation and signing of a "deed" by the sellers giving title to the buyers.

"Disbursement of funds" is the process of securing the money needed to pay the purchase price and the actual transfer of that money to the sellers.

The transferring of title and disbursement of funds is the final step in the home buying process. At that point the purchasers become the owners and the sellers are relieved of ownership. The real estate agent is the catalyst which produces this final result.

Body Condition Scoring

What is body condition scoring? The body condition of a cow can be an indication of her energy reserves. Body condition scores are estimates of the quantity of fat tissue under the skin of certain areas of the cow's body. Cows are scored visually and via palpation of the tailhead and loin areas. There are several scoring systems, but the one used most commonly is based on a scale of 1 to 5. A body condition score of 1 indicates an extremely thin cow and 5 an over-conditioned or fat cow.

Why do we recommend body condition scoring? Body condition can be an indication of cow's ability to produce milk. A properly condition fresh cow has the potential to produce more milk than if she is too thin or too fat. The energy in one lb. of body fat is equivalent to 7 lbs. of milk, thus conditioning can be important to achieving peak milk yield.

When do we score cows? It is suggested cows be scored 4 to 5 times during lactation:

1. 100 to 60 days prior to dry-off
2. At dry-off
3. At calving
4. 21 to 40 days post-partum
5. 90 to 110 days post-partum

The first three checkpoints are times many dairymen are paying more and more attention to as they look to increase production in the herd.

What are recommended scores? A condition score of 3.0-3.5 is recommended for first-lactation heifers. Cows should freshen with a score of 3.5-4.0 for optimal production. If condition is a problem, evaluate lactation ration and the dry cow ration. Critical to conditioning is feeding the late lactation cow for both production and condition and then maintaining the condition through the dry period.

Future important? There are strong indications body condition scoring is going to be an important management tool as producers look toward the commercial use of BST. Condition scoring is just one of many management tools available to enhance production and profit.

Consumer Priorities in 1989

Convenience! Convenience! That's the key word to describe one of the most important priorities of today's consumer. The beef industry does considerable consumer research to determine the direction that beef information and promotion programs take.

The most important factors and trends impacting American consumer's attitudes and behavior about food purchases and consumption are:

—time
—diet, health and nutrition
—convenience
—quality/food safety

When consumers were asked to rank the importance of factors in their food selection, they ranked:

1. taste (88%)
2. product safety (83%)
3. nutrition (72%)
4. price (65%)
5. ease of preparation (39%)

Crop Progress Is Delayed By Wet Conditions

Wet conditions continued to hamper field activities in most areas of the state for the week ended April 15. Thirty-five percent of the acreage had been prepared for spring planting, behind last year's 38 percent at this time. Some scattered frost occurred in early mornings, but the extent of frost damage to fruit trees is unknown at this time. Topsoil moisture was rated adequate to surplus. Subsoil moisture was adequate. There was an average of 3.3 days suitable for fieldwork.

Planting of acreage intended for field corn was one percent complete, two points behind last year at this time. Sweet corn acreage was five percent planted, ahead of last year's three percent. Potato acreage was 53 percent planted behind last year's 83 percent and the average of 63 percent. Green peas were 56 percent planted, four points behind last year at this time, but the same as the average. Eighty-six percent of the peaches were in bloom, ahead of the normal of 70 percent on this date. Apples were five percent in bloom, 18 percent below last year at this time. Strawberries were six percent in bloom.

Fifty-three percent of the acreage intended for oats was planted compared with 61 percent last year and the five-year average of 33 percent. Wheat, barley and rye were in mostly good condition. There were scattered infestations of powdery mildew in wheat.

WEATHER

Maryland's weather for the week ended April 14, was cool with light precipitation north central and west and heavier amounts in the rest of the State.

Precipitation averaged 0.40 inches. Western and north central Maryland received 0.13 inch, southern Maryland and west of the Bay received 0.33 inch and the Eastern Shore received 0.89 inch.

Temperatures averaged 43.8 degrees, 8.5 degrees below the normal of 52.3 degrees. Minimum temperatures for the week were mostly in the mid 20's to low 30's with extreme western Maryland in low teens. Maximum temperatures reached the high 50's to low 60's.

Crop Insurance Bill Introduced By Sen. Mikulski

Senator Barbara A. Mikulski, D-MD, has introduced the Crop Insurance Revitalization Act of 1989, a bill to strengthen the level of federal crop protection offered to farmers.

"This legislation will provide farmers with the crop insurance they need to see them through the hard times of drought and other natural disasters. It will improve their access to the current program and offer them a product strong enough to protect them against the loss of their crops," said Senator Mikulski, who first learned of the problem when she met with Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Wayne Cawley and other Maryland farmers on the Eastern Shore early last year.

"The current crop insurance program does not provide farmers with the protection they need. Everywhere I go I hear farmers talk about the problems they have getting crop insurance information and about how protection levels are inadequate," she said.

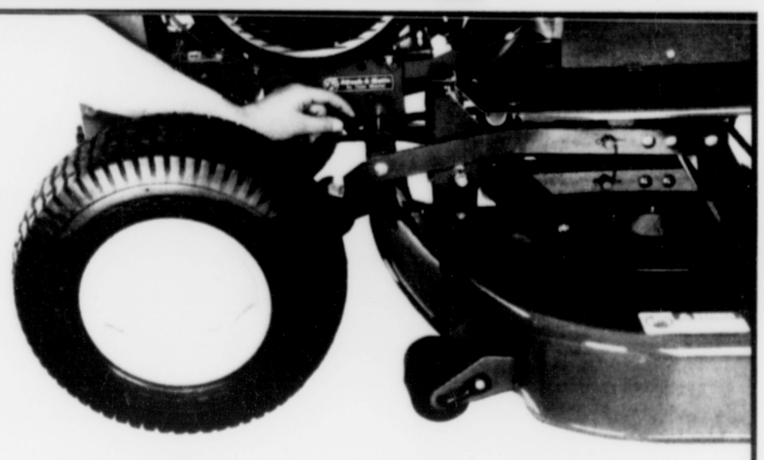

The Mikulski bill, which is being co-sponsored by Senator Paul Sarbanes, D-MD, will:

*strengthen the level of crop insurance protection offered to farmers by providing for adjustments in the methods by which the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation (FCIC) calculates price elections and yields, and allow farmers to exclude drought years from production history records.

*improve the flow of information to farmers by requiring FCIC to train and certify insurance sales agents and by providing access to information about the program through local Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) offices.

After learning about the problems farmers are having with the federal crop insurance program last year, Mikulski asked the Maryland Department of Agriculture for their recommendations for improving the program. In response, Secretary of Agriculture Wayne Cawley put together a task force of farmers, agents, USDA and state officials that produced a comprehensive report on the program. Many of their recommendations are included in the Mikulski bill.

Nationally the participation rate in the crop insurance program is under 25 percent, and in Maryland it is only three percent.

Cheryl Ison Becomes Bride Of Henry Ford In August Ceremony

Cheryl Elizabeth Ison and Henry John Ford were united in marriage on August 20, 1988, at St. Mark's Lutheran Church, Oakland. The double-ring ceremony was performed by Pastor Ray Ursin. Wedding music was provided by Marcette Danner, organist, and Jim Chisholm, soloist.

The bride is the daughter of Arlie and Nancy Ison, of Mtn. Lake Park. The groom is the son of John and Maureen Ford, of Reisterstown.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a white taffeta and crystaline organza gown featuring royal leg-o-mutton sleeves adorned with Chantilly lace appliques, seed pearls, and iridescent sequins.

The heavily beaded Elizabethan bodice featured an illusion yoke of English net accented by a notched bridal collar of embroidered Chantilly lace and pearls. The full bridal skirt fell from a dropped waist and swept into a semi-cathedral train accented by an organza wire ruffle flounce.

The bride wore a fingertip-length veil with a headband trimmed with sequins and pearls. She carried a cascading silk bouquet of pink, white and burgundy roses accented with baby's breath, white ribbons and pearl strands.

Cheryl Woleslagle, of Gainesville, Va., was the matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Cindy King and Marie Stemple, of Oakland; and Maureen Binns, of Germantown, sister of the groom.

Mark Prokop, of Burtonsville, served as the best man. Ushers were Walter Ford, of Reisterstown, brother of the groom; Nat Binns, of Germantown, brother-in-law of the groom; and Ed McChonnaughy, of Norfolk, Va.

The flower girl and ring bearer were Colleen and Nat Binns Jr., of Germantown, niece and nephew of the groom.

A reception followed the ceremony at the Deer Park Fire Hall. The reception was catered by Evergreen Hall Catering. The cake was baked and served by Laura Voyles, of Jeffersonville, Ind., aunt of the bride. It consisted of three tiers and five heart-shaped side cakes trimmed with pink roses surrounding a water fountain containing pink water.

The groom's parents hosted a rehearsal dinner at the Silver Tree Inn. The bride was given a bridal shower by the matron of honor and bridesmaids.

Following a honeymoon in the Poconos, the couple established residence in Ellicott City.

The bride is a 1984 graduate of Southern High School and a 1988 graduate of Frostburg State University. She is currently a graduate student of nuclear chemistry at the University of Maryland.

In Loving Memory Of My Son
DARRELL CALVIN BEITZEL who was taken from us suddenly
April 23, 1972

To some, you may have been forgotten, to others, just part of the past.
But to us who loved and lost you, your memory will always last.
Seventeen long lonely years have passed, since our great sorrow fell.
The shock we received that night, we remember well.
Your end was sudden, it made us weep and cry.
But the saddest part of all, you did not have time to say goodbye.
Our hearts still ache with sadness, our secret tears still flow,
What it meant to lose you, no one will ever know.

Sadly missed by

Local Attorney Attends Seminar

Local attorney, Paul C. Sullivan, attended the Worker's Compensation Seminar conducted recently in Baltimore presented by the Maryland Institute for Continuing Professional Education of Lawyers, Inc. The seminar was designed for attorneys who have intermediate or advanced experience in handling worker's compensation claims.

In addition to reviewing the new significant Maryland appellate decisions concerning worker's compensation, the seminar also covered topics including the recovery of benefits related to stress caused in the work place, the 1988 amendments to the vocational rehabilitation sections of the Maryland Worker's Compensation statute, and the more intricate legal issues involving appeals of decisions from the Maryland's Worker's Compensation Commission to the Maryland Circuit Courts.

The faculty included specialists in worker's compensation, primarily from the Baltimore area, and also Commissioner G. Joseph Sills Jr., a commissioner with the Maryland Worker's Compensation Commission.

Sullivan is the managing partner of Sullivan & Sullivan, P.A., and has limited his practice to motor vehicle accident litigation and the representation of claimants in worker's compensation cases in both Maryland and West Virginia. His offices are located in Swanton and Cumberland.

Oil, air, fuel filters prolong the life of your car's engine

Until the 1950s, car owners expected to overhaul their engines after a mere 20,000 miles. Today, a gasoline engine can run well over 100,000 miles and a diesel can last up to 500,000. What causes the difference? One reason is engine filters.

Oil, air and fuel filters, among the simplest and least expensive parts in an engine (filters cost only $4 to $15), are now installed in every car engine. Replacing filters can help prevent damage ranging from $100 to $1,500, making filters the best insurance a car owner can buy against premature and costly engine repair bills.

The most common causes of engine wear are dirt, dust, rust, metal particles and other contaminants. When these particles enter the engine, they can damage the expensive moving parts.

Filters are designed to remove these elements. Constructed from specially treated, pleated filter papers, they come in a variety of shapes and sizes. As oil, air and fuel pass through these pleats, contaminants are retained in the filter.

The experts at Wix filters, Gastonia, N.C., have some tips that can help keep your car's engine running with a minimum of maintenance.

• Replace the oil filter with each oil change, and as often as every 3,000 miles. The oil filter is critical to the engine's performance because it removes impurities from the engine's lubricating oil.

Since the thin film of oil that separates the moving parts is only a few thousandths of an inch thick, it's important that the oil be clean. Dirty oil can cause engine wear, damage the oil pump or even result in engine seizure.

• Change the air filter every 10,000 miles, more often in dusty areas. The air filter cleans the air entering the engine, catching dust, water and bugs.

As the air filter becomes clogged, air flow to the engine is restricted. This can cause poor engine performance or even engine shutdown.

• Replace the fuel filter every 10,000 miles. The fuel filter removes dirt from fuel as it enters the engine. Without the fuel filter, these contaminants could damage the carburetor or fuel injectors.

Filters are replaced as a unit. While they can be changed at a service shop or garage, filter maintenance is a relatively easy job. Car owners may want to buy the filters from their local auto parts store and do it themselves.

If so, Wix recommends that car owners only buy filters of top quality construction. Things to look for include solid construction, good quality gaskets, good instructions and a strong warranty. Wix, for instance, warrants the filter and the engine against filter-caused damage.

Car owners should also be careful to use the correct replacement filter and to follow the manufacturer's installation directions carefully.

Either way, car owners practicing these three simple steps of preventive maintenance will find their money well spent — not on engine repairs!

Expert advice on tires and wheels

Even though winter's snow and slush melt away with the warmth of spring, the same does not hold true for damage to your vehicle's tires and wheels.

Engineers of The Kelly-Springfield Tire Company offer the following suggestions to help maintain your tires and wheels for the best performance.

•Take the time to inspect your tires and make certain that reinforcing belts are not exposed. Because most radial tires are steel belted, rusting can cause wire corrosion leading to separtion and tire failure, if cuts or other rubber damage expose them to the elements.

•When inspecting your tires, Kelly-Springfield's engineers recommend you check for irregular tread wear, which could be caused by misalignment due to winter road conditions or the way in which the tire was used.

The frequency of tire rotation should follow the tire manufacturer's recommendations.

•Check to ensure tires have the vehicle manufacturer's specified air pressure. Assuming there was no loss of air pressure throughout the winter, tires could be over-inflated for summer due to warmer weather.

Faster speeds for extended periods of time will cause more heat buildup in the tire. If the tire is at low pressure, it could result in premature tire failure.

Because more states are changing to the 65-mile-per-hour speed limit, it is most critical that tires have the proper inflation.

•If removing snow tires, be sure to check and clean them before storage. Tires should be stored in a cool, dry area, away from electrical motors and direct sunlight. Reduce air pressure if tires are mounted on wheels.

•When washing the salt from your vehicle, be sure to include your wheels and tires. White walls should be cleaned with a recommended cleaning agent.

When you replace the old wiper blades with new ones, regular cleaning with a mild detergent of the wiping edge can increase their efficiency...and their life.

Saving on auto premiums

When it comes to saving money on consumer purchases, insurance is no exception. In fact, the Insurance Information Institute (I.I.I.) has 17 ways to save money on auto insurance.

1. Deductibles: Choosing the largest reasonable deductible is one way of reducing premiums. (The deductible is the amount of a claim the insured agrees to pay.)

Raising the collision deductible to $500 from $200 could lower the collision portion of the premium about 20 percent. Raising the deductible to $1,000 from $200 could reduce the premium about 45 percent. Discounts may vary by company. Consumers should ask themselves if they could afford to pay the higher deductible in the event of a claim.

2. Collision coverage: Older cars—at least seven years of age—may not be worth as much money because of depreciation. Consequently, old cars may not be worth insuring for collision.

3. Desirable cars: Consumers shopping for a new car should keep insurance costs in mind. Premiums usually are higher for autos with high collision or bodily injury claims severity and frequency, or that are the common target of thieves.

The Insurance Institute for Highway Safety compiles loss data on close to 200 automobile makes and models. Consumers can obtain this information for comparison shopping by writing to: The Insurance Institute for Highway Safety, Publications Dept., Watergate 600, Suite 300, Washington, DC 20037.

4. Multi-car discount: Consumers insuring more than one car in the household with the same insurer can save up to 20 percent.

5. Insuring young drivers: It is generally cheaper to insure young drivers on their parents' policy rather than separately when young people are away at school. This is because young drivers who attend school at least 100 miles from home are infrequent users of the family car.

6. Mature driver credit: Drivers aged 50 and older may quality for up to a 10 percent discount. The discount may vary by company. Statistics show that older drivers are involved in fewer accidents.

7. Passive restraints: Some companies offer discounts ranging from 10 percent to 30 percent for vehicles equipped with automatic seat belts and air bags.

8. Good driver discounts: Savings are available to motorists with accident and violation-free records, and to motorists driving fewer than a certain number of miles per year. Discounts vary by company.

9. Car pooling: Commuters who share driving responsibilities may qualify for discounts.

10. Education: Motorists who successfully complete driver training or defensive driving courses may be eligible for discounts of as much as 10 percent.

Young drivers could qualify for a "good student" discount of up to 25 percent. Being a good student generally means maintaining a "B" average and being on the dean's list or honor roll.

11. Account credit: Consumers who insure their homes and autos with the same company could be eligible for a discount of up to 10 percent. Discounts may vary by company.

12. First accident allowance: If a customer achieves five accident-free years, some insurers offer a "first accident allowance," which guarantees that a motorist's rates won't go up after the first at-fault accident.

13. Anti-theft device credits: Discounts of five to 15 percent are offered in some states for autos equipped with a hood lock, and an alarm or a disabling device (active or passive) that prevents the car from being stolen.

14. Sole female driver: Citing favorable claims experience, some companies offer 10 percent discounts for a female, ages 30-64, who is the only driver in a household.

15. Non-smokers and non-drinkers: Some companies offer discounts to policyholders who abstain from drinking and smoking.

16. Uninsured motorist (UM) coverage: In states where UM isn't required, consumers with applicable health insurance may choose to decline UM coverage.

17. Optional coverage: Consumers could decide not to purchase medical payments coverage if their health insurance is comprehensive enough to cover potential claims.

Make sure to examine car's hose clamps during spring checkup

A quick spring car care checkup is one way of helping to prevent major breakdown problems during the upcoming hot summer season.

Most automobile owners remember to examine major parts of the vehicle for problem areas; however, hose clamps, which play an important role in keeping these parts in good working order, are oftentimes completely overlooked.

Hose clamps are located in many areas under the hood of an automobile, including the radiator, heater, fuel line, vacuum line and emission control system.

Not replacing worn clamps can lead to overheating or other serious breakdowns, according to the Ideal division of Parker Automotive, a manufacturer of automobile hose clamps, thermostats and flashers. Their recommendation to all car owners is to look for, and replace, any missing, damaged or rusty clamps, and tighten any loose ones.

One thing a car owner should keep in mind, however, is that soft hoses, such as the silicone hose used on fuel injection systems, require special clamps. Ideal manufactures such clamps, which have a special protective liner for these soft hoses.

Hose clamps are inexpensive too. Readily available from any parts outlet, they are easily installed with a screwdriver or nut-driver.

An inexpensive investment in hose clamps today could help prevent a more expensive car repair in the future.

FRONT-WHEEL DRIVE TIRE ROTATION

Do you have a front-wheel drive vehicle? If you do, when was the last time you rotated your tires? Car Care Council reports that front-wheel tires wear faster than the rear ones because most of the car's weight is in front—plus those tires also steer and drive the car. For optimum wear, tires should be rotated about every six to eight thousand miles.

RECOGNIZING SIGNS OF BRAKE WEAR

Fading, squeaking, pulling or grinding are signs of brake wear. If these symptoms are ignored, you're headed for trouble. Car Care Council recommends giving your car's brakes an annual once over.

Rates, which assume a driver who has driver's education and who is the vehicle's principal owner and operator, are for liability coverages required by Maryland law: $20,000 bodily injury for individual or $40,000 bodily injury per occurrence, $10,000 for property damage, $2,500 for personal injury protection, and $20,000 for bodily injury per individual, $40,000 per occurrence, and $10,000 property damage for uninsured motorists.

CHECK BELTS AND HOSES FOR SIGNS OF WEAR

Just changing your anti-freeze/coolant once a year may not be enough to avoid overheating or, worse, major engine damage. Car Care Council suggests checking your belts for adjustment and wear. Normal life expectancy is three to four years.

Heater hoses also deteriorate so, when you pop open your hood, check for leaks, cracks, rotted rubber or faulty clamps. For even greater peace of mind, get a professional flushing of the system.

Brakes deserve preventive maintenance

Brake failure is the leading cause of motor accidents due to mechanical deficiencies. The vast majority of these failures can be traced to neglected maintenance. Car Care Council offers this basic information to help owners better understand their vehicles' braking systems.

When you step on the brake pedal, you create friction that resists the wheels from turning. Eventually, friction causes the brake parts to wear out and require replacement. You can make your brakes wear better and keep repair costs down by using good driving habits.

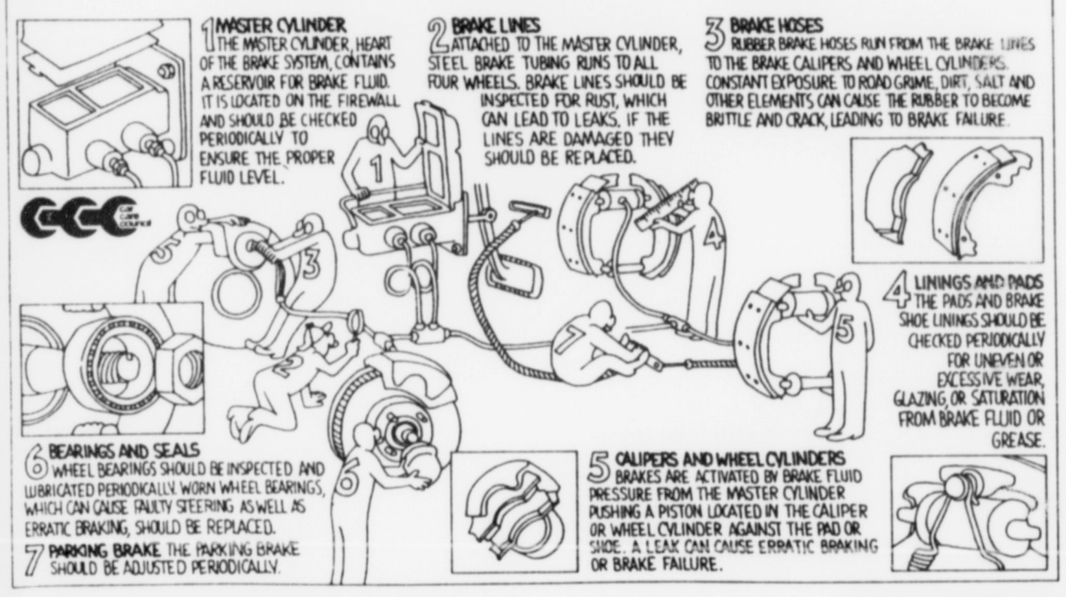

When you stop, let the vehicle slow gradually instead of stopping suddenly. Never ride the brakes on long hills.

For maintenance, check the fluid level in the master cylinder once a month, and add heavy duty brake fluid if the level is low.

Be aware of the symptoms of brake trouble and seek the advice of a qualified technician when brakes act erratically. You cannot put a price tag on the security of knowing you have a good braking system under foot.

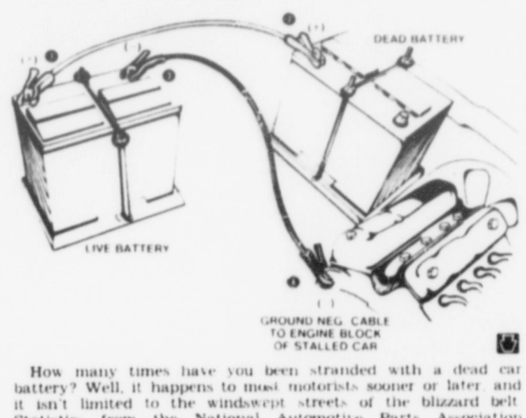

In order to take care of your car's braking system, you should understand it. Use the accompanying diagram to familiarize yourself with its major components.

For further information, send 25 cents along with a self-addressed, stamped envelope to: BRAKES, Car Care Council, One Grande Lake Drive, Port Clinton, OH 43452. SC895329

Dead Battery? . . .

Jump Starting the Correct Way

How many times have you been stranded with a dead car battery? Well, it happens to most motorists sooner or later and it isn't limited to the windswept streets of the blizzard belt. Statistics from the National Automotive Parts Association (NAPA) in Dearborn, Mich., indicate that the need to jump start dead batteries is just as frequent in the sunny South as it is in the wintry North.

But, if you don't know how to jump start safely, NAPA auto experts advise against trying it. The wrong hookup can be hazardous.

To do it right, first make sure the two cars have the same kind of electrical systems — most common is 12-volt negative ground, and that they're not touching each other. Then, check the vent caps of the dead battery to make sure they're free of grease and dirt, and cover them loosely with a damp cloth. Now follow this four-step hookup procedure as illustrated:

1. Clamp one end of the first booster cable firmly to the positive post of the good battery.
2. Clamp the other end of the same cable to the positive terminal of the dead battery.
3. With the remaining cable, attach one end to the negative terminal of the good battery.
4. Clamp the other end of the second cable to a bolt or bracket on the engine block away from the battery — NOT to the negative post.

With the last connection, sparks may occur — and you don't want this to happen too close to the battery where they might ignite the invisible hydrogen gas that's normally present around the battery's vent caps. (The purpose of the cloth covering the vents is to inhibit sparks.)

After you've made the proper hookup, try the starter for no more than 10 seconds. If the engine doesn't kick in, allow the cable to cool for 25 seconds before trying again. Even the best all-copper heavy-duty cables and clamps can get very hot when carrying high-current loads without a rest. If after three tries your engine hasn't started, something other than a dead battery is probably wrong.

Other precautions cited:

- Don't smoke or use an open flame near the battery.
- Don't try to jump start if ice has formed in the cells.
- Don't jump start amid heavy gas fumes.

CYCLE TIPS

Be Alert to Traffic Conditions

Riding in traffic requires an acute awareness of potential hazards on the part of the rider.

To ride safely in traffic a motorcyclist needs to develop the ability to identify possible hazards and special traffic conditions so that he can alter his course to avoid a problem.

Experts at Kawasaki Motors Corp., from its Santa Ana, Calif., headquarters, offer the following suggestions for a trouble-free ride:

1. Spotting hazards. Cars, trucks and other vehicles can present problems, because they often make fast moves to which you might have to react. Watch pedestrians and animals also. They can be unpredictable. Even stationary objects such as chuckholes, guard rails, hedges and bridges can be hazards.

2. Intersecting traffic. Always check traffic from left and right before you ride through intersections. Scan oncoming traffic for vehicles which may be turning in front of you.

Check to see if vehicles are following behind you at unsafe distances. Try to determine the speed of the oncoming vehicles, so you can anticipate their movements.

When approaching an intersection with limited vision, slow down and proceed with caution.

As a general rule, if you are unsure as to what other traffic is going to do, slow down or wait prior to advancing through the intersection.

3. Spotting situations requiring lane change. Freeway on-ramps require forethought. As you approach, be aware of the traffic both in front of you and behind you. Quickly diagnose the traffic pattern into which you want to merge.

If you plan to move into the passing lane, be on the lookout for any situation that might encourage traffic in the right lane to hastily merge into yours.

Motorcycle riders have fewer advantages in special traffic situations than do automobile drivers, so knowing what those advantages are and how to use them in combination with the regular rules of the road, Kawasaki suggests that it will enable you to become a confident, safe rider.

TIRE ROTATION

Incorrect wheel alignment, worn suspension parts or improper inflation all can cause uneven tire wear. Attention to these, plus rotation of the tires, says Car Care Council, is the safest way to go.

Help prevent vehicle fires by keeping check on faulty wires

The two main causes of car fires, other than accidents, are faulty wiring and/or leaking fuel. Poor insulation on wires, causing a short, can start a fire if the circuit is improperly fused.

Leaking fuel is the other culprit, according to Car Care Council. An important aspect of tune-up services is the inspection of all fuel lines and connections.

Increased fuel pressure on newer cars, combined with higher under-hood operating temperatures, makes this a critical precautionary service.

"Most car fires are caused by fuel line connections, generally at the fuel filter or the carburetor," says John Kennedy, President of the National Association of Fire Investigators.

"Sometimes it's faulty material, even substandard fuel lines but, more often than not, it's merely a matter of the installer having failed to tighten connections properly."

Fuel injection requires higher fuel pressures, thereby requiring a top quality fuel line. As fuel injected engines grow older, and those hoses age, we can expect to see an increase in the incidence of that kind of fire, too.

A leaking fuel pump diaphragm which allows fuel to spray on a hot exhaust manifold is another cause of car fires.

Do not ignore the lingering odor of gasoline in your vehicle. Inspect for leaks at once, says the Council, and make sure all wiring is properly insulated.

VEHICLE FIRES often are the result of mechanical neglect, warns Car Care Council.

CARE AND FEEDING OF YOUR CHILD SAFETY SEAT

Child safety seats are the most effective weapon against the number one killer of young children — traffic accidents. Unfortunately, over 75 percent of the child safety seats in use today are not used correctly. Since a safety seat won't protect your child if it isn't used properly, you should consider taking the following precautions.

1. Whether your safety seat is new or you've been using it awhile re-read the instructions to make sure that the seat is installed properly. If you have lost the instructions or have any questions, call the manufacturer and ask a customer service representative for assistance.

2. Check the routing of the safety belt through the safety seat frame against the diagram provided in the instructions. Incorrect routing of the belt is the major reason most seats are improperly installed.

3. Always fasten your child into the safety seat harness system and the seat to the car with the seat belt. Doing one without the other will not protect your child.

4. Install the safety seat in the middle of the rear seat — the safest seating position in the car — whenever possible (provided the car does not have a folding armrest and does have a seat belt in that position).

5. If the safety seat you have requires a tether strap — use it. The seat is ineffective without it. If you think installing a tether strap is too much trouble, don't buy a seat that requires one.

6. Check the label attached to your safety seat for the seat's weight and height capacities to be sure it's the right size for your child. If your child has outgrown the seat you have now, purchase a seat in the next size category.

7. Use caution when securing your seat to the car with a manually adjustable seat belt (the kind that you pull to tighten.) At a certain angle that type of buckle can work its way loose, leaving the seat unsecured. To solve the problem, turn the buckle up-side down before clipping it into the other end of the belt. That will defeat the loosening mechanism and keep the belt tight against the seat.

8. Use the safety seat every time your child rides in a car. It's not only the safest way to travel with your child, it's also the law or soon to be the law in all states and the District of Columbia.

Spring is the time to tune up your car for warm weather months ahead

Auto maintenance advice takes the heat out of summer driving

The dog days of summer are on their way, and it's time to take the moth balls out of your swimsuits. But, while you are preparing yourself for the hot months ahead, don't forget to get your car in shape as well.

Since it is often difficult to know when your car needs attention, the following suggestions from Car Care Council will aid you in knowing what needs to be done to your auto and when to do it.

1. Watch to see if your engine is hard to start, uses gas excessively, is sluggish, smokes, or is excessively noisy.

2. Be sure that your cooling system is in good condition. The advent of more hot weather could bring about the failure of a hose, belt or other components. How long has it been since you checked your antifreeze/coolant?

3. How about the condition of your tires? Heavy loads at high speeds on hot surfaces are hard on tires. To avoid failure, make sure tires have plenty of tread and are properly inflated.

4. How's your oil? Oil is not only a lubricant, it is a coolant as well. And clean, well filtered oil will help your engine survive the heat.

5. Check your transmission. Does it slip when you shift gears? Is it noisy? Does it shift erratically? For those who tow a trailer, it is especially vital for your transmission to be in the best working order possible.

6. Be sure that brakes stop evenly, and are not making any "funny" noises.

7. Watch to see that lights are working and that they are focused correctly. Also check turning signals and windshield wipers for smearing or streaking.

Now that you've determined some of your car's problems, you will need to find a competent auto repair shop. If this task seems overwhelming, it doesn't have to be. The National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence, an organization that is highly respected in the automotive industry, is an independent, non-profit group which gives voluntary certification exams to technicians.

Motorists can be assured of finding competent automotive service and repair by asking for ASE certified technicians when visiting service stations, car dealerships and independent shops.

Businesses that employ ASE certified technicians usually display the ASE outdoor sign, a large white sign with a distinctive blue seal onto which are printed the initials A, S and E.

Even if your car is in tip top shape, safeguarding it from summer heat is very important. The most common complaint from summer drivers is that the heat affects a car's radiator, causing it to boil over. However, automotive experts believe that heat can affect the entire car, not just the coolant in the radiator.

Tires that are "overheated" can blow out or shred if the recommended air pressure is not maintained.

Strong sunlight combined with pollutants and salt can damage a car's finish. Washing your car regularly is the best way to combat this problem.

Keeping your car in the best condition possible with regular checkups is the best way to assure a car's longevity and the best way for you to enjoy a safe, happy spring and summer!

PROPER WASHING AND WAXING retain the showroom shine and increase the resale value of the vehicle.

Guess who uses retreads!

The United States government is a big user of retreaded tires on all types of aircraft—from the F14 fighter plane to the Blue Angels, the spectacular U.S. Navy flying team.

Retreaded tires are also used on commercial aircraft, 4x4s, recreational vehicles, school and municipal buses, emergency vehicles, race cars, taxis, all kinds of trucks and millions of automobiles.

Here are some interesting facts you may not know, from the Tire Retread Information Bureau:

• Retreads are absolutely as safe as comparable new tires and can be driven at the same speeds as new tires. They are processed according to Federal Safety Standards.

• Retreads are available in high performance sizes in all tread designs.

• With proper maintenance and care, retreads can give you about the same mileage as new tires, and they look just like new tires.

It's a good idea to comparison shop for retreaded tires and to ask for a written warranty. The warranty may be for workmanship, mileage or some combination of the two.

For more assurance, look for a dealer who's a member in good standing of the American Retreaders' Association, National Tire Dealers and Retreaders Association and/or Tire Retread Information Bureau.

Once you have retreads installed on your car, be certain your wheels are properly aligned, and check your tire pressure regularly to add miles to the life of your tires.

For a free brochure about the features and benefits of retreaded tires, send a stamped, self-addressed business-size envelope to the Tire Retread Information Bureau, 26555 Carmel Rancho Boulevard, Suite 3, Carmel, CA 93923.

Understand Your Insurance Coverages

Most owners of autos in this country carry automobile insurance of some sort. But how many understand what they have?

The Allstate Insurance Company recommends that consumers read their policy and, if any questions arise, they should contact their agent or company for the answers.

The following definitions of coverages may be helpful for a general understanding. Although there are many different types of coverages available, and minor differences may exist among companies, these are the six basic types of coverages that most drivers should consider.

Liability

Bodily injury and property damage liability coverage will pay for all damages — up to the policy limits — that an insured person may be legally obligated to pay because of bodily injury or property damage to others arising from accidents from an insured vehicle. These coverages will also provide defense costs, if necessary.

Medical Payments

This coverage is designed to pay medical expenses — up to policy limits — incurred within a specified time period from the date of the accidents. It covers both the driver and passengers in the insured vehicle.

Personal Injury Protection

This coverage is available in states that have no-fault insurance and provides coverage for medical expenses, lost wages and loss of services —up to policy limits. The car owner's coverage normally covers the named insured, the spouse and relatives resident in the household. Other passengers are covered through their own Personal Injury Protection or the owner's PIP, depending on the state.

Collision

Collision coverage pays for loss to the insured vehicle caused by a crash. It covers up to the actual cash value of the auto less the deductible stated in the policy.

Comprehensive

This coverage will pay for damages to an insured vehicle from causes other than a collision. It covers up to the actual cash value of the auto less the deductible, if applicable. Such things as glass breakage, falling objects, windstorm, hail, flood or vandalism are some of the typical perils insured against.

Uninsured Motorist

This protects an insured against injuries — up to policy limits — which are caused by an uninsured driver. The coverage will pay damages the insured is legally entitled to recover from the owner or operator of an uninsured auto.

There are several other coverages which may be available and may suit the particular needs of the insurance buyer. Once again, a consultation with the agent or company is the surest way to gain a complete understanding of the policy.

QUICK FIXES

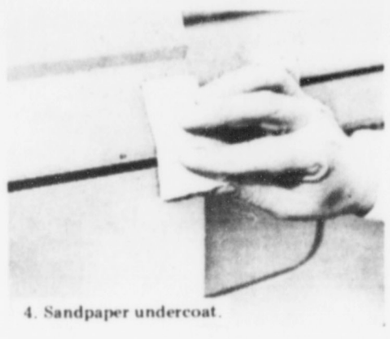

1. Use grinder to clean rust spot.

2. Feather edge of adjacent paint.

3. Apply undercoat.

4. Sandpaper undercoat.

5. Apply final finish coat.

Periodic 'touch-up' painting on the family car can avoid costly auto bodyshop bills — especially in seacoast states or up north, where winter road salting speeds rusting

Touch-up painting is easy when you use a Dremel Moto-Tool with an abrasive wheel point to carefully prepare the metal surface for repainting.

Begin by grinding clean the exposed areas down to bare metal. Carefully 'feather' the edges of good paint adjacent to the rust spots. Then apply a coat of automotive undercoat. When dry, sand the undercoat lightly, and again feather the edges. Finally, apply the matching final coat and rub out with 0000 sandpaper after paint has dried completely.

Don't take your tires for granted

It's quick, it's easy, it's free and, best of all, even the home mechanic who's all thumbs can do it.

The "it" is checking the pressure in your car's tires, something you should be doing on a regular basis says Saab-Scania of America, Inc., importer of Swedish-built Saabs.

Air is still free at many service stations, and inexpensive tire gauges are even available in supermarkets, says the Swedish car maker, warning that improper tire inflation takes its toll of tires through uneven wear and, in some cases, accidents.

In addition to forcing you to replace tires more frequently, an underinflated tire creates more rolling resistance. More simply put, it means that your car burns more gasoline trying to push itself along on underinflated tires.

Telling figures

Estimates show that a tire underinflated by only five pounds of air increases fuel consumption by as much as seven percent, according to one industry source.

What is the right amount of air to put in your tires?

This depends not only on the tire but on how you plan to drive your car. Most manufacturers list recommended tire pressures in owner's manuals supplied with their cars.

If you don't have an owner's manual for your car, look inside the glovebox or on your car's sun visor for a sticker listing pressures.

Check tire pressure in morning

Recommended pressures normally apply to cold tires, meaning that you should check your tire pressures early in the morning, before you begin your drive.

Also listed on the table are recommended tire pressures for cruising at certain speeds with a given number of passengers and amount of baggage. The rule of thumb here, as Saab advises owners of its cars, is to increase tire pressures as anticipated cruising speeds or loads rise.

If underinflating a tire is bad, what about overinflation? The answer is that putting too much air in your tires is not advisable because, like underinflation, this can also cause tires to wear prematurely, decrease ride comfort, alter your car's handling performance, and reduce the tires' contact patch, that small square of your tire in contact with the road's surface at a given moment.

How do you know if your car's tires need more or less air? One way is that an underinflated tire will often show wear on the outer surfaces of the tread.

An overinflated tire will show wear by the smoothing of the tread in the middle of the tire, but your best bet is keeping a tire gauge in your car and taking readings regularly.

Replace tires as necessary

By Federal law, all tires sold in this country must incorporate wear indicators in the form of smooth, treadless strips running across the width of the tire, which become visible as the tire's tread reaches the point that indicates the tire should be replaced. Saab's advice here is don't play with fire; when it is time to replace worn tires, do so at the first opportunity.

Designate A Driver

Keep friendships alive.
When your get-together includes driving, take turns not drinking.

National Safety Council

Interpreting noises helps find trouble

Ominous car sounds tell you something may be wrong; understanding their cause can help you and your mechanic find and correct the problem before it becomes serious. Here are some of the more common noises, listed by Car Care Council.

•A "clunk" from under the car when you start forward or back up could be a warning that a universal joint is failing. That's serious if it breaks and the drive shaft drops while you're driving.

If you have a front-wheel drive car, you'll also get a clunking sound if you have a looseness in a CV joint (like a universal joint that connects the front wheels to the transverse axle).

•When you apply the brakes and hear a squeal or a scraping sound, that could indicate worn brake linings or pads. If allowed to continue, it could result in damaging drums or rotors, making the repair more expensive.

•A thumping sound from a tire could be caused by flat spots on the tread due to improper balance or alignment. It also could be tread separation, which could result in a blowout.

•The sound of ticking in the engine usually is a valve lifter, generally heard when the engine is idling.

•A sudden screech from under the hood could be a worn or loose drive belt.

•A knocking or pinging from under the hood when you accelerate could be from low grade gasoline, incorrect timing or other tune-up adjustments.

•A whining sound as you move from a standstill to normal driving speed could be coming from the transmission and could mean that you are low on transmission fluid. You probably won't hear this sound when the car is idling or in neutral.

•A spitting sound or rumble from somewhere under the car could be an exhaust leak. This is a potentially dangerous situation, due to poisonous exhaust fumes that could seep into the car.

•If you raise the hood and hear a steady snapping sound that speeds up if the engine runs faster, it could mean a spark plug wire is loose or shorting out. The snapping sound is a spark jumping from the bad wire to the metal of the engine.

•If you turn on the ignition switch and hear a clicking sound, but the starter does nothing, your battery may need charging or replacing. It also could be loose or corroded connections. The clicking comes from the starter solenoid, which isn't getting enough voltage to engage the starter.

•A whirring sound (when the car doesn't start) could be the starter drive. Replacing this part normally will correct the problem.

Keep car in good shape by consulting owner's manual

Motorists may crave high ticket cars and more expensive options, but economy is still a premium point.

And, because it is, a record three out of four motorists pull up to self-serve gasoline — all the more reason why smart motorists make their own routine inspections.

"What gas stations attendants once performed routinely now must be done by the owner," says James P. Steiger, a director in the Technical Affairs Division of Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association (MVMA).

"However, car and truck producers have made life simpler by reducing the frequency for such routine maintenance as oil changes and spark plug replacements," Steiger says.

"In many cases, the requirement for lubrication or replacement of points and condensers hs been eliminated. Most cars today don't even have a carburetor, and many of today's drivers can't even remember when brakes didn't self adjust."

Steiger reminds motorists that their best bets for staying out of trouble and keeping cars in peak operating condition are contained in the vehicle's owner manual.

"The manual may be one of the best circulated and most ignored publications in the nation, or even the world," he says.

The manual tells you that the crankcase oil should be changed on most vehicles every 7,500 miles under normal driving conditions.

More frequent oil changes are recommended for engines with turbochargers and cars that tow trailers or often travel dusty, unpaved roads.

"Oil is the life blood of your vehicle," Steiger says. "It is especially critical to keep your oil fresh and full in today's smaller engines, machined under much closer tolerances than the big power plans of the '60s and '70s."

Since the start of the '80s, vehicle manufacturers have recommended the use of an "SF" classified oil. In addition, motorists should check their owner's manual for the use of a higher viscosity oil in the summer.

Spark plugs wear much longer, according to Steiger, because, with the use of unleaded detergent gasoline, there is no lead or carbon build-up on the plugs.

While the carburetor is becoming a relic, it is vital to keep those fuel injectors clean. Some pumps advertise an injector cleaning additive contained in the gasoline.

On the subject of pump labeling, MVMA suggests that you make certain of the ingredients in the fuel. Some additives are not desirable.

PREVENT COOLING SYSTEM PROBLEMS

When was the last time you checked your cooling system? If you can't remember, you're overdue. Prevention is the best plan to avoid cooling system problems, says Car Care Council.

Suspicious Fires Severely Damage Business, House

Two structure fires occurred this past week in the county, one of which has been labled by local fire investigators as arson and the other as "suspicious."

The first occurred late Wednesday at the Sumerfield Cable Television receiving station near McHenry, when a person or persons apparently broke into the building, removed various cable television supplies, and then set the building on fire at about 10:55 p.m.

Deep Creek and Friendsville volunteer fire departments were called to the scene along Rt. 42 about one mile off U.S. Rt. 219 and quickly brought the blaze under control; however James Martin, fire investigator for Allegany and Garrett counties estimated the loss to be $40,000.

The destruction halted cable service to some 600 McHenry area customers, according to Michael Diehl, company owner. A return to full service by the company was expected to take about two weeks.

The second fire occurred Monday evening near Red House, when a single-story log house belonging to James M. Reckart sustained an estimated $30,000 damage.

Gorman and Oakland fire fighters were called to the house at 5:35 p.m. and discovered flames coming through the roof of the structure. The house is located just off U.S. Rt. 50 about one mile east of U.S. Rt. 219 at Red House.

Guy Carola, fire investigator for Garrett and Allegany counties, said that no one was home at the time of the fire and there was no insurance on the dwelling. He said the fire appears to be "suspicious in nature" and his investigation is continuing.

Also responding to the scene were the county air cascade vehicle, currently being housed at Oakland VFD, and the Southern Rescue Squad. There were no injuries reported.

IT'S PLOWING TIME AGAIN, and in Garrett County such a task might be done as it was 100 years ago or it may be accomplished with more modern means, as examples of both were captured in this photo at the John Yoder farm near Oakland by Craig Phillips. Although much of the mid-western states are already experiencing severe drought conditions, the water table in Garrett County has rebounded considerably over the past several weeks and local farmers are hopeful that the extreme dryness of last year's growing season will not be repeated. Of course, we will no doubt receive our annual June or July frost, but it just wouldn't be Garrett County without that.

County Grand Jury Meets For March Term

The Garrett County Grand Jury convened for its March term on April 17 and 18. Committees visited the library, county roads, hospital, courthouse, and Garrett County Board of Education.

Following the introduction to county activities, the group heard from public officials who provided information regarding their areas of concern. Officials included Pat Glover, treasurer; Sheriff M. Van Evans; Al Ringer, board of education; and Sybilla Sharps and Edith Brock, Ruth Enlow Library.

Ms. Glover presented an overview of the county accounting policies. Tax accounts are computerized, making it more efficient in presenting information on the current status of Garrett County financial income, disbursements and investments.

Ms. Glover stated that 36 percent of county revenue comes from the lake district, and noted that 95 to 97 percent of the county revenue has been collected.

In this department, the Grand Jury recommended that the commissioners look at the possibility of moving all license purchases to D.M.V.

Sheriff Evans presented an overview of the sheriff's department. The staff has increased to 14 deputies and three detectives, including one drug officer. There is a great need for additional space because the prisoner load is at the maximum for male prisoners.

The Grand Jury's recommendation was that microfilm be used for the filing system because of a space shortage. Extra space used by the outside agency could be used for prisoner and office space.

Ringer presented the renovation needs of Southern High School. Because of changes in the state law and inflation, these needs are being presented to the Garrett County citizenry by referendum in the near future.

Ms. Sharps and Brock presented the history of the

A NATIONAL CHAMP — Nathan Rickman, 10-year-old son of Jack and Norma Rickman, Oakland, captured first place in the Middle Atlantic AAU Eastern National Wrestling Championships, held in Wilkesbarre, Pa., last weekend. Nathan competed in the 80-pound midget division to win his second Eastern National title, having won his first in 1987. He was one of 8,500 wrestlers from 13 states who attempted to qualify for the national event by participating in one of 24 district tournaments. The top three district finishers advanced to one of four regional sites and the top three regional finishers moved on to the Eastern Nationals. Nathan finished first in the Charlestown districts and second in the western regional at Millersville, Pa. He defeated his first opponent at the national event, 15-2, and then defeated the second, third, and fourth place finishers while not allowing them to score a single point. He also avenged his only loss of the season, which was in the finals of the western regional, by stopping Aaron Warner, Mechanicsburg, Pa., 5-0. His final record for this season was 19-1.

Native Crafts To Be Demonstrated At Whitewater World Championships

Visitors to the 1989 World Whitewater Canoe/Kayak Championships, June 11-25, will find the world's most outstanding canoe and kayak racers competing on the Savage River. When not watching the athletes, spectators will find some of the finest craftpersons in Western Maryland making and explaining their art on the banks of the river.

The crafts exhibit was organized to allow visitors to learn about the rich traditions still alive in the Appalachians. Exhibitors will also have their products on sale, providing visitors an opportunity to take back mementos of their stay in the area.

Craftpersons were selected by a jury of recognized experts in the field. Criteria for selection included relevance to the frontier theme of the '89 World's, and each exhibitor will be dressed in frontier costume as he or she demonstrates and explains the craft. Another objective of the organizers of the Championships was a varied display to acquaint visitors with a wide range of

Fact Committee Releases Figures On Effects Of Bond Issue On Taxes

Information is being compiled by members of the Garrett Referendum Fact Committee to show Garrett County taxpayers what their potential tax increase would be upon passage of the May 23 referendum, the outcome of which will determine whether or not the county will float bonds to renovate Southern High School and add on to Northern High School.

Although the referendum question limits the amount that could be borrowed to $6.9 million, the Committee uses a figure of $7 million. This is the first figure that was discussed by the authorities and it continues to be used by the Committee for the sake of consistency in the information being distributed.

Upon passage of the referendum, much analysis would have to be completed to determine the county's financial situation and, therefore, its bond rating, according to a Fact Committee spokesman. Then the Board of County Commissioners, with the advice of bond counsel (Alex, Brown & Sons) as to timing, could offer up to $6.9 million of bonds for sale on the bond market. The prevailing rate of interest and the bond rating Garrett County receives would, for the most part, determine the interest rate payable on the debt. Estimates based on the best information currently available indicate Garrett County would pay approximately a 7.11 percent interest

Man Shot While Turkey Hunting On State Property

The Garrett County Sheriff's Department reported that a Gaithersburg man was shot while hunting turkey on state owned property.

Robert McQuin, Gaithersburg, was shot last Saturday around 6:30 a.m. McQuin was apparently hit from behind by a blast from a shotgun. A man then approached McQuin, said that his name was Baker, and that he had a four-wheel drive vehicle which he would get and come back for McQuin.

McQuin's hunting partner, Charles Newhall, heard the shot and returned to where McQuin was to see what had happened. The man that identified himself as Baker apparently never returned.

Newhall transported McQuin to the hospital, where Detective Randy Sines and Deputy

Bloodmobile To Visit Grantsville Monday, May 8

Grantsville area residents may donate on Monday, May 8, from 12:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m., when the American Red Cross bloodmobile will be coming to the Grantsville Fire Hall.

Anyone who weighs at least 110 pounds, is between 17 and 70 and is in generally good health can give blood.

"The whole process is totally safe," said Lela Bender, blood program chairman for Northern Garrett County. "The Red Cross uses only sterile, disposable needles and supplies. These are used only once and then discarded."

Once blood is donated, it is sent to the laboratory for processing. Here it is typed to determine its ABO and Rh factors, screened for the presence of hepatitis B, syphilis, risk factors for non-A, non-B hepatitis, the HIV and HTLV-I antibodies and tested for atypical antibodies.

"Because whole blood is separated into parts including red blood cells, white blood cells, platelets and plasma, you can save up to four lives each time you donate," Mrs. Bender said.

The Johnstown Region needs at least 450 units of blood per weekday to fully supply all the hospitals in its region.

Maryland Dove To Launch Flotilla To 1989 Whitewater Championships

Governor William Donald Schaefer has announced that the Dove, a reproduction of the vessel that brought the first settlers to Maryland, will be the first of a series of vessels scheduled to carry the International Canoe Federation's official flag to the site of the 1989 World Whitewater Canoe/Kayak Championships in Garrett County.

The whitewater championships will be held on the Savage River June 11 through 25, with more than 30 countries represented, including the Soviet Union.

"We are fortunate to have such an important international sporting event as the world whitewater championships right here in Maryland," said Governor Schaefer. "As the Dove leads the participants out the Chesapeake Bay to sail up the Potomac River, spectators along the river are in store for a great experience."

On May 27, the Dove will depart from St. Mary's City leading a flotilla of approximately 150 sailing craft up the Potomac River to Washington, D.C.

Arriving in the nation's capital on May 28, participants in the 1989 World's Flag Flotilla Passage up the Potomac will enjoy a riverside festival planned to acknowledge their presence.

The flag flotilla will continue

Renowned Author, Educator To Speak In Local Schools

Dr. Bettie B. Youngs, Ph.D., will give a presentation on adolescent growth and development on Monday, May 8, 7:30 p.m. at the Southern High School Cafetorium and Tuesday, May 9, 7:30 p.m. at Northern Middle School Cafetorium.

Well known for her work on stress and self-esteem and their effects on young people, Dr. Youngs has been invited by the Garrett County Board of Education to give two presentations that will be open to all Garrett County parents. Her presentation will focus on the development of self-esteem as young people mature, and its role in achievement, happiness and success. She will define stress in the developing years as it involves the complexities of contemporary society, the strains of growing up, and the pressures that take a toll on children.

A frequent guest on radio and television talk shows, Dr. Youngs is a former Iowa educator, Teacher-of-the-Year, and professor at San Diego State University. She is currently the executive director of the Phoenix Educational Foundation of Solana Beach, Calif. She has published over 100 articles and is the author of a number of bestselling books, including Stress in Children, Helping your Teenager Deal with Stress, and Achievement, Happiness, Popularity and Success: A Self-Esteem Book for Young Adults. Dr. Youngs' presentation is free and is open to the public. All parents are encouraged to attend.

Local Woman Jailed On $200,000 Bond After Husband's Body Found

An Oakland woman is being held in the Garrett County Jail in lieu of $200,000 full cash bond for the murder of her husband nearly two years ago.

Juanita Irene Stinson, 56, was arrested by Maryland State Police last Friday following an extensive investigation which began in July of 1987. She was charged by the Garrett County State's Attorney's Office.

A body which has been identified as that of her husband, Charles William Stinson, 58, was found in a 26-inch deep grave behind the Stinson home on the Oakland-Deer Park Road approximately two hours after the woman's arrest. It had been cut up into seven pieces, with each piece placed in a separate garbage bag.

The body was taken to the State Medical Examiner's Office in Baltimore, where positive identification was made. The cause of death was determined to be multiple gunshot wounds, according to James L. Sherbin, state's attorney for Garrett County.

Charles Stinson was first reported missing in July of 1987, and had not been seen since May of that year. Until the body was found, Mrs. Stinson maintained that her husband was out of town on one of his frequent business trips. He reportedly installed well casings in gas wells, and was often out of town for months at a time.

At one point, Mrs. Stinson produced two letters that she said he had mailed to her from Africa. She told police that Stinson had "just taken off", and that he was "overseas and didn't want to be bothered".

However, investigators doubted Mrs. Stinson's statements, not believing that the man would leave his flourishing business and thousands of dollars of equipment which was stored in a building near their home.

A joint investigation by the state's attorney's office and the Maryland State Police at the McHenry detachment began when Stinson's business associates reported that he had disappeared.

Extra officers were added in a final push to crack the case last week. It was believed that a police officer befriended Mrs. Stinson as part of the investigation, and was eventually told about the murder. However, Sherbin reported that this information was inaccurate and misleading, but that there was an "undercover police operation involved in the case".

Stinson was born June 6, 1929, in Portsmouth, Ohio, and was the son of the late French and Mabel (Sexton) Stinson.

He was a member of St.

Renowned Kayak Builder Ordered To Leave Friendsville Location

The kayaks built by Jesse Whittemore are world-renowned. Paddlers from all over the United States have ordered boats from Jesse for years, knowing that they will receive a top quality product, built by a knowledgeable boater.

Jesse's business is located in the town of Friendsville, on the corner of First and Chestnut streets. The building that he rents was formerly a hotel, later converted into a bar, and has been used by Jesse to build kayaks for the past five years. Jesse has enjoyed his life in Friendsville, running his business, helping out with the fire department and making many friends within the town and throughout the area.

At the end of the month of March, Jesse received a letter from a lawyer, Ralph Burnett, representing the Town of Friendsville, dated March 29, informing him that he had until May 1 to "cease and desist" with his business.

The letter stated that Jesse had been conducting a business in a residential zone and since that did not comply with the Town of Friendsville's Zoning Ordinance, the Town must ask him to relocate his business outside of the residentially

"WE LOVE THE YOUGH" is an appropriate statement for Jesse Whittemore. He has lived in Friendsville for seven years and for five of those years has had a business building kayaks. Whittemore is also a kayaker and uses his experience "running the Upper Yough" to design and construct better boats. He designs and builds boats for Roger Zbel, a member of the United States Whitewater Team, and will be constructing the boat Zbel will use in the upcoming pre-trials for the 1989 Whitewater Canoe/Kayak Championships to be held this summer on the Savage River. Whittemore, pictured above in the building he uses to construct kayaks, is holding a model kayak. In the background are two kayaks he is constructing for some of his many customers. Whittemore is facing bankruptcy, since he has been informed by the Friendsville Town Council that he must move his business to another building as he is in violation of the Friendsville Zoning Ordinance.

"LOWDOWNS AND LUXURIES OF LIFE," a series of humorous and dramatic monologues and scenes from a variety of plays, will be presented by the Garrett Community College Theatre Department this weekend. The PG-rated show will be presented Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. and at 2:30 p.m. Sunday. Admission costs are $3 for adults and $2 for students. Pictured left to right, front, are Marcie Beiler, Candy Dolan, Richard Stevens, and Sonja Yelovich, student director. In the back is Conrad Maust. Anna Harvey Celebrates 101st To Continue A Family "Tradition"

Mrs. Anna Harvey reached a milestone this month that few ever attain, as she celebrated her 101st birthday on Monday, April 3, at her home at Deep Creek Lake, where she has resided for 72 years.

A life-long resident of Garrett County, Mrs. Harvey is the daughter of the late Patrick and Lilly Mae White Rodeheaver. She was born April 3, 1888, and grew up at Sand Flat near Oakland. She was the wife of the late Sidney Harvey, who died July 1966. Currently she resides with her son, G. Earl Harvey along Gravely Run Road near Point View Inn.

Anna's six children, who are all living, are also all senior citizens, except one adopted daughter. They all reside in Maryland except Dolores Hertzog, who lives in Florida. Her other children, Vesta Enlow, McHenry; Lillian Harvey, Hyattsville; Carl Harvey, Sand Flat; and Ruth Angellatta, a resident of Dennett Road Nursing Home, Oakland.

Mrs. Harvey has six grandchildren, five great-grandchildren, two great-great-grandchildren and one great-great-great-granddaughter by adoption.

Anna is from a family with a history of longevity. Her parents lived into their mid-nineties in the 1950s when longevity was more of a rarity. One brother, George H. Rodeheaver, the eldest child of the family, lived to be 100 years and four months, and died December 7, 1986. One sister, the youngest member of the family, Mrs. Adella McIntire, is living in Fresno, Calif.

Two dinner parties were given in her home by members of her immediate family, one on Easter Sunday and the other on the Sunday before her Monday birthday. Those attending were Vesta Enlow, Lillian Harvey, Earl Harvey, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Harvey, and their two grandsons, Gary Glotfelty, Oakland and Harvey Glotfelty and wife Jamie and their two daughters Keshki and Mikia of Oakland.

Afternoon visitors and friends who called during the week were Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Klutz and son, Wesley, McHenry, Hamill Glotfelty, Bittinger and Hyattsville, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Schroyer, Accident, Mrs. Cuppett, Terra Alta, and Mrs. Clark Bittinger, Deep Creek Lake.

On Anna's 100th birthday last year she and 25 members of her family were guests at Lake Side Assembly Church where she is a charter member. The Easter Cantata and service were dedicated to her and her family. A birthday dinner with a cake, decorations and flowers was enjoyed by several hundred friends and relatives.

William Donald Schaefer, governor of Maryland, sent a citation to the "gracious lady whose youthful spirit and devotion to her family serves as an inspiration to all Marylanders."

Some of her expressions of inspiration and hope are "keep cool while the weather is hot," "hold your temper," and "hold your head up even if you die hard."

When disappointed or discouraged, she says, "When things seem to be at their worst, they could be worse," and "Maybe things will be better tomorrow."

Persons wishing to provide a home for her are asked to call 334-8274 evenings or 334-1962 during the day and ask for Carole Paugh.

Four Charged After McHenry Destruction Spree

Four students from Charles County Community College were charged with malicious destruction of property by Maryland State Police following numerous reports of damage in McHenry on April 20.

Police said Craig M. Thomas, 19, Waldorf; Michael A. Lavigner, 19, Lexington Park; Shawn P. Knott, 19, Hollywood; and John A. Klein, 18, Lexington Park, all members of the college's baseball team, were charged by Tfc. G.R. Chaney.

The four men allegedly threw a log through a phone booth at the Point Veiw Inn, beat the windows out of a Ford Escort parked at the Lakeview Exxon; destroyed a mailbox on Route 219; beat the plexiglass out of a sign at the First United National Bank and Trust; and damaged a driveway light and mailbox on Mosser Road. Much of the damage was done with a small bat, according to police.

GCC Board Convenes For Monthly Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the Garrett Community College Board of Trustees was held Wednesday, April 19.

Commencement Speaker

Wayne Hamilton, chairman of the board, announced that Dr. James Tschechtelin, director of the State Board of Community Colleges, will be the commencement speaker for GCC's graduating class of 1989.

Facilities Usage Report

Suzan Wolfe presented the board with an update on usage of GCC's facilities.

In 1987, facilities at the college were used by community groups and activities outside of the college 588 times. That number increased to 1,314 times in 1988, an increase of 123 percent.

Award for Contributions

The Board of Trustees voted to present the award for outstanding contributions to GCC to James Stevenson.

Stevenson worked in the library at GCC for six months in 1988 and did a great deal to bring computers into the library. Frostburg State University gave Stevenson a leave of absence to work at GCC. He has since returned to Frostburg State University.

The award for outstanding contributions to GCC will be presented to Stevenson at the commencement ceremonies in May.

Academic Report

Dr. Lillian Mitchell, Dean of Student Services, announced that the 11th Annual Career Day will be held on Friday, May 5. Career Day will begin at 9:45 in the gymnasium and juniors and seniors from area high schools have been invited to attend.

The theme of this year's career day will be "Lifestyles — Making Your Future Fit." Seminars will be presented for the students and there will be representatives from colleges and universities present to discuss majors and possible careers with the students.

The Sunshine Semester began on April 3 and will conclude on June 9. There were six courses offered and three of the courses enrolled 29 students for a full time equivalency of 2.03. The Sunshine Semester is an offering of special interest courses for children and adults. The classes are held on Saturdays.

The annual schedule of courses for the fall and spring semesters at the college has been completed and is available. A pre-college semester has been scheduled for July 17 to August 29.

The next regular meeting of Garrett Community College's Board of Trustees will be held Tuesday, May 16.

WCI Board Meets With Flotilla Group

A joint meeting of the Board of Directors of the 1989 World Whitewater Canoe and Kayak Championships and the Steering Committee of the '89 World's Flag Flotilla was recently held at the Penn Alps Restaurant in Grantsville. The Board and Steering Committee members reviewed the status of plans for both the World Championships to be held on the Savage River June 11-25 and the companion event, the '89 World's Flag Flotilla to be launched May 27 at St. Mary's City.

This latter event will be an epic journey by various sail and paddle craft some 300 miles up the Potomac River to bring the International Canoe Federation flag to Cumberland, where it will then be transported by wagon train to the World Championship's Opening Ceremonies at Frostburg State University on June 15.

The two events are expected to draw some 200,000 spectators during the four weeks of continuous activity that includes two World Championships on the Savage River June 17-18 and June 23-25. Tickets to these Championships are on sale through Ticketron offices, by calling 1-800-543-3041, and from local outlets in Garrett and Allegany counties. Early purchase is advised. The events will have television coverage by NBC, Maryland Public Television and a host of other television stations from the area featuring related news stories.

Deer Park Man Sentenced For Sex Offense

A Deer Park man was sentenced to two years in the Department of Corrections by Chief Judge Fred A. Thayer last week in Garrett County Circuit Court after a jury found him guilty of a third degree sex offense charge.

Richard L. Tasker, 49, was charged in connection with incidents which occurred last summer involving an eight-year-old female.

A pre-sentence investigation had been ordered for Tasker during a March 9 trial. He was represented by John R. Toston.

In a separate case, Mitchell B. Viragh, 28, Friendsville, was sentenced to six months in the Garrett County Jail after he pled guilty to charges of driving a motor vehicle on a suspended out-of-state license and driving without current tags.

The judge then suspended the sentence, placing Viragh on six months supervised probation and fining him $300 for the first charge. He received a $50 fine for the second charge.

A charge of operating an unregistered motor vehicle was not prosecuted.

Viragh was charged by Tfc. R.J. Resh following an October 8, 1988, incident in Friendsville. He was represented by Toston.

The judge sentenced Melvin J. Jones Jr., 55, Frostburg, to 60 days in the Garrett County Jail for a charge of driving while under the influence of alcohol. The sentence was then suspended, and Jones was placed on one year supervised probation and fined $500. Jones pled guilty to the charge.

A charge of driving while intoxicated was not prosecuted. The charges were filed following a September 2, 1988, incident in Grantsville.

In another case involving a jury, the judge ordered a presentence investigation for Clarence E. Crosco, 41, Oakland, after he was found guilty of a third degree sex offense charge. He was found not guilty of child abuse, and charges of fourth degree sex offense and assault and battery were dismissed. His bond was continued.

The charges stemmed from incidents involving an eight-year-old female over a two year period.

Crosco was represented by Michael A. Noonan.

A pre-sentence investigation was also ordered for Richard A. Miner, 21, Grantsville, after a jury found him guilty of false imprisonment, fourth degree sex offense, assault with intent to murder, and robbery. His bail was revoked.

Miner was found not guilty of burglary, third degree sex offense, and robbery with a deadly weapon.

The charges were filed following an October 29, 1988, incident in Swanton. He was represented by Gary Hanna.

Several Injured In Area Motor Vehicle Mishaps

Several persons were injured in local motor vehicle accidents over the last week.

A single-vehicle accident occurred Saturday on the Dorsey Hotel Road, Grantsville.

According to Maryland State Police at the McHenry detachment, Moya N. Fash, 18, of Grantsville, was operating a 1987 Ford Tempo, and was traveling south. An unidentified vehicle ran Fash off onto the right shoulder of the road, causing her to lose control of the vehicle and strike a ditch on the left side of the road.

Both Fash and a passenger, Tonya D. Ferguson, 18, of McHenry, were taken to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by a private vehicle, where a spokesman reported that she was treated and released.

The mishap was investigated by Tfc. D.W. Broadwater.

One person was injured in a collision between two recreational vehicles on Friday.

Police said Bryan W. Barnard, 7, of Swanton, was driving one vehicle in a driveway, and was followed by another vehicle operated by Alicia DeWitt, 7, also of Swanton. When Barnard slowed to turn left, DeWitt struck his vehicle in the rear, causing it to overturn.

Barnard was taken to Garrett Memorial by a private vehicle, where he was reportedly treated and released. Neither DeWitt nor Barnard's passenger, Eric DeWitt, 4, of Swanton, were injured.

The mishap was investigated by Tfc. L. Rosage.

No injuries were reported in a two-vehicle accident involving a Garrett County Sheriff's Department vehicle last Sunday.

Police said Park Brenneman, 50, Elyria, Ohio, was driving west on alternate U.S. Route 40 in a Jeep Cherokee, and was attempting to make a left turn into a private driveway.

Deputy Russell Drenning, 35, of Grantsville, was also traveling west, and sideswiped Brenneman's vehicle on the left side. Drenning's vehicle then continued across the road, striking an embankment and a utility pole.

The incident was investigated by Tfc. R.T. Wilson.

An Owings Mills man was charged with driving while under the influence of alcohol following a single-vehicle accident Saturday on U.S. Route 219.

Police said Michael J. Stevens, 36, was operating a 1983 Honda Accord, and was attempting to back into a private driveway to turn around. The vehicle missed the driveway and ran into a reflector pole, culvert, and flower bed.

Besides the DWI charge, Stevens was charged with negligent driving and driving with a revoked license. He was not injured.

A portion of the program will involve response to various questions submitted by the general public.

Persons are invited to submit their questions, which may be directed to one or both panels, by mailing them to the League of Women Voters of Garrett County, P.O. Box 115, Oakland.

90 And Going Strong . . .

She comes into the newsroom every day to inquire about a date or the spelling of a name, to point out awkward sentence structure, or perhaps to verify the accuracy of a particular statement. This is part of her job as proofreader for this newspaper.

It is usually taken for granted by her fellow employees that she will be there at her desk each day, to scrutinize about 2,500 column inches of news copy and 4,000 to 5,000 inches of advertising copy for each issue of The Republican, using her blue pen to identify errors. The quantity of her work has increased significantly in recent years because of the growth of the newspaper. Although she probably misses a few more errors now than she did several years ago, relatively few escape her still-keen eye. Despite the stress level involved in all faces of newspaper production, she never fails to get the job done, week after week.

She walks at least a quarter of a mile to work and navigates the 29 stairs into the office several times each day.

It is hard for us, and indeed for her, too, to believe that Elsie Sincell will celebrate her 90th birthday this Saturday. Although this writer pleads guilty to nepotism in bestowing praise upon this fine lady (she is his grandmother), no one can argue with the fact that the number of 90-year-olds still active in the workforce is extremely slim. In fact, we don't know of any others, at least not locally. Comedian George Burns comes to mind on the national scene.

We wish to emphasize that Elsie's position here at The Republican is not as a "figure head." She puts in her time just like everyone else in the office and the work she does is tedious and exhausting, even for a person half her age. She remains totally dedicated to the task at hand and continues to strive to correct every mistake before it is published.

She is kind and caring toward her fellow workers, never forgetting a birthday and always showing concern for those with illness or other problems.

So often, nice words about a particularly special person are not written or expressed until that person is gone from this earth. That is unfortunate. We thought a 90th birthday anniversary would be a much better time to do so. Of course, we will probably do it again when she observes her 100th.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I am writing concerning a situation that is happening in Friendsville. The situation involves a rafter by the name of Jessie Whittemore and the Mayor and Town Council of Friendsville.

Jessie has worked in the Friendsville area, building his Kayaks for over five years, and now the town council is putting him out of his business, and his home.

On Thursday, April 20, I made a call to the Mayor of Friendsville, Spencer Schlosnagle, to see if he could give me some answers to this problem, only to get the run-around.

1. How could a building that has been commercial for as far back as 100 years now be uncommercial? Mayor's answer: Zoning law.

2. Why has Jessie been allowed to work there for over five years and just now they are bringing this up? Mayor's answer: No reply.

3. How can certain people have a business in the non-commercial area of Friendsville and get away with it and others can't? Mayor's answer: They have exceptions.

4. Has the Mayor any say at the council meetings of Friendsville? Mayor's answer: no.

5. Why should the taxpayers pay for his position as Mayor if he has no say in the decisions made? Mayor's answer: no reply.

6. Was this incident caused only by the fact that there were some problems concerning putting a laundromat in town and a "war" between some residents? Mayor's answer: no reply.

These were only a few questions asked. I received no straight answers from the Mayor.

What kind of Mayor and Town Council do we have? A council that can make a rule, or take a rule away, whenever they like to satisfy themselves? Or a council that will not do anything for you unless you have the right last name?

After I got off of the phone from talking to Mayor Spencer Schlosnagle, I realized that I did not get one answer from the Mayor that made any sense about this problem. I called the Mayor thinking that I would get some intelligent answers from him, but I received the answers that a kindergarten child could have given me.

Is this the kind of Mayor that we need for the town of Friendsville? A Mayor that can give us no answers, a Mayor that has no say as to what goes on at the town meetings? According to this, why do we need a Mayor at all if he has no say in what goes on in this town? Why not just let the town council run the town and eliminate the job of Mayor?

If there are any decent people left in the town of Friendsville, please speak up concerning this problem, or just maybe in the near future the council will change another law and you could be the next person run out of business.

Jessie, please do not give up without a fight. You have a lot of friends, who will try to do anything to help you.

You deserve better.

A Friend,
Lisa Coddington

To the Editor:

The hearing process is now complete in the Lucas vs. Garrett County Board of Education hearing for a school bus stop or extension. We are patiently waiting a decision by the State Board of Education.

We and the Board have filed memorandums in lieu of closing statements at the hearing.

The Board's statement is full of errors and "misrepresentations." One such "error" says that the speed limit on Rt. 38 is 25 mph and that "crossing State Rt. 38 is done without danger from oncoming traffic because of excellent sight distance, low speed and little traffic . . ." and that there has only been one traffic accident in or near Kitzmiller since 1984.

We're sure anyone of the citizens in Kitzmiller would tell you that the speed limit on Rt. 38 is 35 mph, speeding vehicles down 38 are frequent and we personally know of 10 accidents, whether reported to the State Roads or not, that have occurred on Main Street or the intersection of Main and Rt. 38 since 1984. We are not quite sure why the Board chose the State Highway Administration to get their information and not the State or County Police. Perhaps they thought that everyone calls the State Highway Administration when they have an accident.

We thought it interesting to note that the Board's memorandum ended with this statement:

"Although it is an inconvenience for parents to require their children to walk to school or for parents to deliver their children to school, the standard set by Garrett County's rules and regulations should not be bent for these reasons. Fairness to all students and parents requires compliance with these standards and in this case that must be done."

The Board has, on many occasions, insinuated that we are trying to shirk our responsibilities as parents by asking for a bus stop as a "convenience." Yet each time confronted with this allegation, it is denied. This closing statement is proof of their insinuations.

But the critical word in this statement is not convenience but FAIRNESS.

FAIRNESS: Is it FAIR for only 207 students in the county to be required to walk while the other 4,823 are provided bus transportation?

Is it FAIR to transport high school students 2,600 feet to the school while denying transportation to elementary school students who must walk 5,247 feet?

Is it FAIR to be worried about setting a precedent while ignoring reasonable safety concerns.

We ask you — what is FAIR.

Many people, including the Board members, feel that Kitzmiller is an ideal community for living, education, and transportation. This is not to say, however, that there are no hazards present in this community.

It is rumored that, when (and if) we do have a bus for our children, that they will not be riding the bus that the other students ride, but that they will have to ride a bus that takes them to school before 8 a.m. and brings them home after 4 p.m. We hope that Mr. Sines would not be so spiteful to do this.

Normally, you would expect the community and its leaders to come together in the face of clear and present danger to its smallest members who are just venturing out into a less than perfect world. While the community of Kitzmiller has done just that, for some unknown reason, that continues to baffle and hurt us deeply, the Garrett County Board of Education refuses to.

Dr. Ryscavage, during his recent visit to Kitzmiller Elementary to discuss the upcoming referendum, stated that one of the things they want to do is add corridors to connect classes at Southern High School so the students won't have to be exposed to the weather. What is their reasoning for this, a costly project when they won't even provide bus transportation to keep elementary students from the same exposure?

We would like to close by stating that we are very much in favor of the proposed renovations to the high schools. We support the Board fully in this matter. We only wish they were as supportive of our concerns.

To the Editor:

It is with a great deal of pride and satisfaction I announce, on behalf of our membership, that we will be going public with the "Crime of the Week" starting in May.

Through the tireless efforts of a few talented members and some very generous organizations, we are able to take the first step, in paving a road, to enable citizens and police officers to travel in harmony in an attempt to solve crimes in which all leads have been exhausted.

Please be reminded that the "Crime of the Week" may have happened some time ago but is yet unsolved.

If our announcement jogs a memory, and you can be of assistance, call 334-1975. Your information will be written in our log book and you will be assigned a number. You do not have to give your name. If enough evidence is obtained to make an arrest, your number will be printed and you will be asked to call Crime Solvers again to claim the reward. Payments are made as you stipulate.

We have made the effort, others have given financial support but we need your participation to be successful.

To the Editor:

I have been watching closely, as are most of the residents of the small community of Kitzmiller, Maryland, the protracted, seemingly mean, petty and at times, devious deliberations of the Garrett County Board of Education, and its myopic transportation officer, as they denigrate, distort and deny the bonafide petition of concerned mothers fighting for the safety of their small children. There are seven in all, ranging from kindergarten, through first and second grades, and one solitary third grader. For some reason, unknown to the residents and voters of the area, these elected and appointed officials have apparently chosen to disregard the facts at issue here, and the very tender ages of the children involved. At a time when the Board and its superintendent of schools are attempting to impose a Bond Issue on the backs of the county taxpayers that includes hundreds of thousands of dollars to provide enclosed walkways between buildings to preclude middle and high school students having to walk three or four hundred feet outdoors in inclement weather, very small children are being told to walk a mile in all weather, despite the constant presence of serious safety hazards along their line of forced march.

As a concerned citizen of the community, whose children are grown and raising their own elsewhere, I have no ax to grind in this matter; however, I wish to state for the public record my complete and unequivocal support of the mothers of Kitzmiller, in their up-hill battle agains entrenched bureaucratic favoritism and "good ol' boy" politics replete with deviousness a hint of cover-up.

In 58 years of wandering through "tis vale of dross and tears," I have lived as an adult in 13 different communities, covering six states and two foreign countries. Until this sad situation, I have never been ashamed of the elected and appointed local officials of my community. I haven't always been happy with them, but until now I've tended to give them the benefit of the doubt for at least trying to do what very often is a thankless task. In this instance the shame is well deserved. The majority of the Board of Education, and its transportation officer, have used their petty interpretation of their own arbitrary rules, and their mean spirited disregard of obvious safety deficiencies to deny seven small children the safety and convenience of a bus stop and transportation to school.

I am outraged that a shortfall of 33 feet (approximately the length of one school bus), of the required 5,280 feet (one mile), is being used to deny seven small children a bus stop, despite the existence of three serious safety hazards, any one of which could reasonably be expected to warrant a relaxation of the rules and a granting of a waiver; especially in view of the tender ages of the children involved, and the dubious quality of other waivers issued by the Board and its transportation officer, Mr. Sines . . . officially and unofficially.

Instead, the Board and its transportation officer have chosen a course of convoluted logic, denying that 1,192 feet of missing sidewalk alongside a river with a ten-foot precipitous drop to the rocks and water below, in the area of the missing sidewalk and at places less than six feet from the road, constitute a safety hazard. And, of course, the crossing of a state highway on their way to school, is something pre-school, first and second graders do all the time. Such thinking borders on criminal neglect!

AS I write this, the Board, through their lawyer, is in the process of rewriting history as it relates to the facts in this case that took two courageous mothers all the way to Baltimore and a hearing at the State Board of Education in their effort to get information from the local Board that by all rules of logic should have been in the public domain in the first place. The revised version of history now stipulates that it was available to them all along, but not at public expense; they would have to ferret out the information themselves. Mr. Burnett, the Board's lawyer, presented his revision during the hearing in Baltimore on March 16, 1989, apparently unaware the mothers had offered to do just that many months earlier, and were flatly denied that opportunity by the Board. That denial lead directly to the request by the mothers for an impartial hearing in Baltimore, during which the valiant mothers represented themselves against the revisionists, and are presently awaiting the final decision of the hearing examiner.

A cry is developing here in Kitzmiller, that goes something like this, "THROW THE RASCALS OUT!" With a little help from our friends, perhaps we can push it up out of the valley, and clear across the county. Think about it!

skills practiced by the original settlers of the area.

One exhibitor, Dale Jeffrey, of Wagner's Sugar Camp, will actually set up a mini-sugar camp on the banks of the river, using implements handed down from his grandfather. In addition to making syrup and sugar, he will give away samples and sell his products. "Maple syrup, unique to America, is always fascinating to European visitors," stated a WCI spokesman.

Another unique display will be provided by Big Brothers/Big Sisters of the Alleganies, a group of senior citizens who make, demonstrate and sell old-time wooden toys. Also, Gary Whiteman will be making and selling leather products such as those worn by the first settlers.

Potters, basket weavers, makers of folk dolls and other wood-crafted mementos will also participate. An unusual participant on June 17 and 18 will be Glen Barnes, a renowned artist who does limited edition drawings, "in the mountain spirit."

Whitewater organizers are negotiating with the only known Native American maker of old-style birch-bark canoes, who may come from St. Ingace, Michigan, to demonstrate his skills. This will graphically illustrate the Indian origins of the contemporary canoe, and will complete the migration of a sport which grew up in Europe and now returns to its origins for the '89 World's.

zoned area.

Jesse applied for an extension of this order in the middle of April. He then received a letter dated April 20 that members of the town council voted, unanimously, that the requested extension was denied and that he had been given ample notice to relocate his business.

The Zoning Board of Friendsville, in the meantime, has approved a request by Terry Spear, a member of the Friendsville Town Council, for a laundromat/car wash to be built on Morris Avenue and Chestnut St., which is just diagnally across the street from the hotel-turned-boat-building business.

The approval for the laundromat/car wash was apparently granted in May, 1988, but was appealed by a citizen of Friendsville. The application was re-submitted and approved and then appealed again by the same citizen.

The citizen who is appealing the application for the laundromat/car wash also owns the building rented by Jesse Whittemore. He asked that his name not be mentioned in a newspaper article.

Spencer Schlosnagle, mayor of Friendsville, said that for four or five years, Whittemore conducted his business and there was no problem; but then certain issues and individuals changed all of that.

"Citizens called the state police, complaining about the boaters changing their clothes. Other complaints were brought to our attention, about parking, water and other issues," Schosnagle said.

"We've told him (Whittemore) that if (the owner of the building) would apply for a public hearing, there would be no problem with the building being approved for commercial use. It has been commercial before; there would be no problem with it being commercial now," explained Schlosnagle.

Whittemore maintains that he had been told by members of the Town Council that he could apply for a special exception to the zoning ordinance to continue his business.

Near the end of March, he received a letter dated March 16, 1989, and signed by Burnett, informing him that his application for a special exception was being returned "as there is not presently in existence a commercial designation for the property. . .

According to Kent Gandee of Gandee and Partners, Inc., the architects for the completed Northern High School and the proposed Southern High School projects, the lifespan of the high schools is 40 years with normal maintenance. It is expected that the bond debt would be repaid in one-half of that lifespan, or 20 years. At an interest rate of 7.11 percent, payment on the principal and interest would be $679,000 to $685,000 per year for 20 years to repay $7 million.

The Maryland Department of Assessment and Taxation for Garrett County reports an assessable base of $450,455,793 for 1989-90. It would require approximately .152 percent of this assessable base to cover the annual payment. That figure, (.152 percent) is also the expected tax increase for each taxpayer to share the cost of a $7 million investment. As the assessable base increases, the percentage will decrease.

"Taxpayers can calculate the approximate increase in their tax bill by multiplying the assessed value, not the market value, of their property by .152 percent or .00152," the Committee spokesman said. "If a parcel of real estate is assessed at $10,000 (market value of $23,364), the tax increase will be $15.20; if a parcel of real estate is assessed at $50,000 (market value of $116,822), the tax increase will be $76.00 (See Garrett Referendum Fact Committee ad on page A-15 inside for further calculations).

The Assessment office has reviewed its records and determined that the average assessed value of a residential property with improvements that is not on Deep Creek Lake is $17,775 (market value of $41,530). The tax increase for this property would be $27.02.

For further information on this, or any other aspect of the referendum question, persons are invited to contact the Garrett Referendum Fact Committee through its co-chairs Joyce Bishoff (826-8687) or Mary Lou Stemple (334-3030). Speakers can be scheduled for your group or organization by contacting Betty Vance during working hours at 334-3926, 826-8490 (Accident) or 895-3236 (Grantsville).

Hill To Direct 400-Voice Choir For Whitewater

The sound of music will echo throughout the Frostburg State University Campus the evening of June 15 at Opening Ceremonies of the 1989 World Whitewater Canoe and Kayak Championships. The music will come from a 400-voice chorus under the direction of Paul Hill. The Whitewater Chorus being, organized by Hill, will include numerous Western Maryland residents.

Founder and conductor of the Paul Hill Chorale and the Washington Singers, Hill has been busy making music in the Nation's Capital since the 1950's. In 1971 his young chorale was selected to perform in the inaugural concert at the Kennedy Center Concert Hall. His ability to inspire choirs has taken him onto podiums in 28 states and five European countries. He has prepared and conducted choruses for the Philadelphia Orchestra, the Royal Ballet, the Washington Opera, and the American Ballet Theater. Since 1981 he has been the conductor of the Charlottesville (Va.) Oratoria Society and conductor coordinator for the Kennedy Center's annual "Messiah Sing-Along" a post he has held since 1973. No stranger to large festival choirs, he recently conducted a 1000-member chorus in the Anaheim Convention Center.

Hill said he is nearing his goal of four hundred voices for the Whitewater Chorus. Residents of the Western Maryland area who are interested in joining the chorus may call Nancy Learey in Garrett County (301) 334-8836 or Mark Steiner in Cumberland (301) 777-7182.

"Chorale music is a very enervating, unifying and uplifting hobby and profession and the people who sing know they get something special out of it," Hill said.

On occasion, a site may opt to make a substitution in the menu. Senior citizens who wish to eat at one of the "Eating Together" sites are asked to call the individual site to check the menu for the day and to make reservations.

For telephone numbers of individual sites, persons may call the Area Agency on Aging at 334-9431.

"THE HAMMER" — Roger Zbel, pictured above, stands in front of a kayak called "The Hammer", which is an exclusive design of Jesse Whittemore, a boat builder living and working in Friendsville. Zbel, as a member of the United States Whitewater Team, used "The Hammer" in the 1988 Pre-World's Whitewater Championships, held last year on the Savage River. Whittemore will be constructing Zbel's boats for the pre-trials for the 1989 World's Whitewater Canoe/Kayak Championships to be held on the Savage River this June. Whittemore has had a business building kayaks in Friendsville for five years, and is now facing bankruptcy because members of the Friendsville Town Council have determined that he is conducting a business in violation of a residential zoning ordinance. Elsie Sincell To Begin 91st Year; Has No Plans For Retirement

by Sandra Cusack

She works four days a week and walks to work on the nice days. She has done many different jobs and seen quite a few changes at her place of employment.

This may sound like a typical scenario for many people, except for one thing. The lady in question will celebrate her 90th birthday this Saturday, April 29.

Elsie Louise Hanst Sincell, who has lived in Oakland since 1920 when she married Donald R. "Mose" Sincell, has worked at The Republican Newspaper for nearly 60 years and has no intention of retiring now.

"I don't think much about quitting. I just take it day by day. Working helps me to keep an open mind. I'm meeting new friends and I'm still learning," she said.

After marrying into the family that had operated the local newspaper and publishing company since 1890, Elsie began her career in the business on a part-time basis in the 1920s and assumed a full-time position in 1943 when her son, Robert, graduated from high school. She still works nearly four full days each week as the proofreader for The Republican, walking to work on most days and climbing the many stairs of The Republican office often several times each day.

"I've done many things at the office; whatever needed doing, I've probably done it," Elsie said. "We used to have to do a lot of things by hand: we called it 'idiot's delight.' We had to stuff the papers by hand as well as fold them by hand. I used to set type on the linotype machine as well."

She served as the front-office manager for several years, where she handled everything from bookkeeping to billing to subscriptions to taking classified ads.

Born April 29, 1899, in Philadelphia, Elsie was the only daughter of the seven children of Henry and Rose Faber Hanst. When she was six years old, the family moved to Kingwood, W.Va., where her father managed the West Virginia Northern Railroad.

She was graduated from Kingwood High School in 1917 and went on to attend the Maryland College for Women in Lutherville. In 1918, Elsie's family moved back to Philadelphia, residing there until 1920 when they moved to Oakland.

Elsie met her future husband when she was just a little girl. While attending a kindergarten class at the Presbyterian Church in Kingwood with her brother, Charles, one Sunday, she was quickly noticed by the young man seated next to Charles. "Who's that little girl?" Donald Sincell asked Charles, who informed him she was his sister. Apparently it was love at first sight, because Donald, better known as Mose, said he would be "over to play" after Sunday school was over.

Mose and Elsie were married October 16, 1921. The wedding day was the same as her parents' and his parents' anniversary, and happened to be the birthday of the presiding minister. Their son, Robert, would be married to Hannah Grace Wagoner, of Springfield, W.Va., on the same day in 1948.

The two moved into a house in Oakland, where Elsie has lived ever since. They also had a daughter, Eleanor, who married Robert J. Hesen, now deceased. Eleanor, a retired teacher, resides in Hampstead.

After being together for nearly 58 years, Mose died in 1979. Although she still "misses him terribly," she says she receives great joy in life from her son and daughter, her seven grandchildren, and her "even dozen" great-grandchildren.

"My family is very supportive. I would be lost without them," said Elsie.

Elsie's involvement in numerous community and church-related activities over the years has no doubt also played a significant role in her ability to stay young. She is a 60-plus-year, member of the Oakland Chapter of the Eastern Star and a supportive member of the Loar Auxiliary of Garrett County Memorial Hospital, the Guild of St. Mark's Lutheran Church, the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival, and the American Association of Retired Persons.

She was the organist at St. Mark's Lutheran Chruch for 50 years and a congregational tribute was given to her in 1974 for her dedicated service. The tribute included installation of a trumpet stop in the organ at the church. George Scheffel made a small replica of the organ pipes at the church as a present for Elsie, which she has kept in a place of honor in her home.

"I wish I had kept a list of all the weddings that I played for," Elsie said. "I played for one couple's wedding in 1936. When Emerick and Sue Dusick celebrated their 50-year wedding anniversary in August, 1986, they asked me to play for it. There have been so many other couples, I've just lost track of them all."

At 89, Elsie says she still enjoys coming into the office four days a week. She continues to read thousands of inches of news and advertising copy each week and occasionally will come to the office early in the morning if the volume of copy is particularly heavy.

She also "looks after" her fellow employees and remembers little things, like keeping track of everyone's birthday, and making sure that each one gets a card, signed by all of the employees.

"My goal is to live to the year 2000 or 2001: then I will have lived in three centuries, the 19th, 20th, and 21st, if the Lord is willing," she said.

At the rate she is going, she will likely be among those to greet the year 2000. She might even go out and celebrate, if she has her proofreading all caught up at the office.

Ruth Enlow Library and the outlook for the future.

The Ruth Enlow Library System is one of the finest in the state, second only to Howard County. There is a great need for monies for upkeep and care of the buildings throughout the county, as well as two additional staff members at the Oakland library. Accident and Grantsville also need added space.

The recommendation was that the county commissioners have a regular walk-through of all county buildings in regard to maintenance and upkeep.

Paul Shockey, Garrett County Roads Department administrator, also spoke to the jury, noting that he feels the department is doing more with less.

During the inspection tour, Linda Kohut stated that the department is trying to purchase some new Mack tandem dump trucks by fall. The recommendation was that the department knows what is being purchased.

The Grand Jury noted that the hospital is in excellent condition. Free mammogram examinations are being given at the request of a physician, and the Wellness Together Program is well done.

The jury recommended that at least two parking spaces be set aside for clergy near the entrance, and that a future study of the entire parking situation be completed.

At the Board of Education, the group found all in good condition. In their recommendation, they noted that it was previously recommended that members of the Grand Jury use name tags, and that they support this recommendation.

The Grand Jury expressed its thanks to those public officials who appeared and provided information. They also extended thanks to Judge Fred A. Thayer, James L. Sherbin, state's attorney; Lisa Thayer, assistant state's attorney; Bob Henline; Aloise N. O'Neill, forelady; Glenn Unger Jr., doorman; Mary Aspinall Elliott and Larry Schlossnagle, clerks.

Notes were made by the following committee members: Carol Ruble, Andrew Mitchell Baker, Glen Unger, Beverly Bowser, and Larry Schlossnagle.

Fifty Golden Years Of Community Service

Mission Statement: Business and Professional Women promotes full participation, equity, and economic self-sufficiency for working women.

The Garrett County Business and Professional Women's Club was chartered in 1939 under the leadership of President Rose Gisriel and 21 other charter members. Among these were Kathryn Helbig, Alverta Dillon, Ann Dilgard and Gladys "Happy" Nordeck. One of the club's first objectives was to help women be eligible for jury duty.

During the early 40s members rolled bandages and packed kits for the Red Cross, collected books for men in the armed services and sponsored parties for underprivileged children.

During the 50s objectives shifted toward community projects. Sizable donations were made to the Garrett County Memorial Hospital building project, the proposed Ruth Enlow Library, the Garrett County Historical Society for the museum, and a commitment for the upkeep of the hospital grounds. Busy members also sponsored the Garrett County Summer Playhouse, contributed to the annual Oakland community Christmas treat, and participated in charity drives. In between, they found time to host the 1954 state BPW convention.

More visibility was forthcoming in the 60s as members began attending more state functions. In 1966 Phyllis Trickett was elected state president of the BPW, while Mildred Wucik assumed the state corresponding secretary duties. Local emphasis was geared toward youth programs, projects and activities. With both time and money, members supported Girl and Boy Scouts, the volunteer Candystriper program at Garrett County Memorial Hospital, the state's only Nike club to recognize outstanding scholastic achievement, youth conferences, and scholarships to female high school graduates. Eligible girls and boys were given financial support to attend Girls' and Boys' State programs. All these activities led to many plays, minstrels and variety shows to help provide needed funds.

ERA all the way was the cry of the 70s as BPW objectives changed on the state and national levels. Legislation started to become one of the focus issues, and that trend continues today. In 1970, Mildred Wucik was elected state president. Scholarships for mature women who wish to further their education took prominence, as did Woman of the Year recognition of BPW club members who were doing an outstanding job in the club, church, workplace and community. Employers who were responsive to women were also recognized in the latter part of that decade. Individual development classes were instituted to help women gain confidence in public speaking, and able young women were recognized in the Young Career Woman Program.

The 80s have brought the most sweeping changes nationally, on the state level, and thus on the local level. BPW is now encouraging women to work toward equal education, more women in politics, political candidate responsiveness to club goals; reproductive freedom, employer responsiveness, comparable worth, pay equity, ERA, and shortening the wage gap between the genders. A political action community is very active in supporting candidates who embrace these goals for women, along with child care, insurance and social security changes which are needed for real equality.

Over the years, voter registration, a monument at the courthouse, community parades, the community feud, National Business Women's Week, food booths at the county fair and Autumn Glory, scholarships for women, picnics, teas, award presentations, trophy sponsorships, attendance at state and national BPW functions, and many other activities have brought public awareness of the club and its members. The state convention will be held again in this county in 1990.

We would like to thank everyone for past support, and hope that the next 50 years will be as challenging, heartwarming, and personally fulfilling as the first 50.

U.S. Representative Beverly B. Byron (D-MD) testified before the House Appropriations Interior Subcommittee Tuesday, identifying projects for funding in the Sixth District. The Congresswoman zeroed in on six key programs including funding requests for the Appalachian Trail, the Antietam National Battlefield, the Cooperative Fish and Wildlife Research Unit, the Abandoned Coal Mine Lands Reclamation, the Chesapeake Bay Gateways Study, the Rivers and Trails Conservation Assistance Program, and the purchase of the Georgetown Branch Railroad Right-of-Way.

"Each program I spoke about today is fundamentally important to preserving the historical and environmental integrity of the Sixth District," Byron said. "However, some of the projects, like the Appalachian Trail, the Chesapeake Bay Gateways Study, and the Rivers and Trails Conservation Assistance Program, will be beneficial to other areas of the state and the nation as well."

The programs are outlined below:

—Appalachian Trail — a request for $15 million from the National Park Service and for $3 million from the U.S. Forest Service to acquire the last 100 miles of land that would complete the trail.

—Antietam National Battlefield — a request for $110,000 for personnel and materials to provide for the upkeep of historic structures at the battlefield.

—Cooperative Fish and Wildlife Research Unit — a request for $200,000 to establish a special unit of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service at the University of Maryland's Appalachian Environmental Laboratory (AEL) in Frostburg, Maryland to provide technical and professional training essential for studying a broad range of fish and wildlife problems.

—Abandoned Coal Mine Lands Reclamation — a request for a minimum of $2 million to address the serious health, safety, and environmental concerns associated with abandoned coal mine lands in seven states, including Maryland.

—Chesapeake Bay Gateways Study — a request for a one-time $300,000 appropriation for this study that would identify land that needs to be preserved in order to protect the Bay's natural heritage and to ensure public access.

—Rivers and Trails Conservation Assistance Program — a request for $5 million for technical assistance in identifying and maintaining river and trail resources including the Rails-to-Trails initiative and the National Trails Inventory. The Conservation Assistance Program draws on cooperation between federal, state, and local governments and the private sector.

—Georgetown Branch Railroad Right-of-Way — a request for $6 million from the committee and another $6 million from the Park Service for the purchase of a 4.6 mile tract of land along the C&O Canal within the District of Columbia border.

GCTA President Participates In NEA Conference

Jim Raley, president of the Garrett County Teachers Association, attended a three-day national conference on Education Employee Advocacy and Student Needs in Denver April 7-9, sponsored by the National Education Association.

Over 300 NEA leaders from throughout the nation participated and heard addresses from NEA President, Mary Hatwood Futrel; Carl Rowan, nationally syndicated columnist; and Robert Chanin, NEA General Counsel.

The conference paid special attention to the influence that professional union organizations, such as NEA, play in education reform. The NEA President noted that student success depends on teachers and other education employees who are motivated, dynamic, and fully trained and credentialed. Professional working conditions for teachers, as well as sufficient resources for learning, are central to the creation of environments that nurture excellence. They also provide a structure through which standards for the profession can be strengthened.

The conference theme was "What Serves Learners Serves Education Employees." NEA, with over 1.9 million members, is the nation's largest professional employee organization. Raley was one of five teachers from Maryland who attended.

Lakers Improve To 21-17 By Winning Nine Of Eleven Contests

It has been a busy, but successful, week for the Garrett Community College Lakers, who played 11 games this past week, winning nine of them and losing only two. The results left the Lakers with a 21-17 record and they will continue their busy schedule today when they host CCAC Pittsburgh.

Coach Lawrence Nesselrodt's team split a doubleheader with Charles CC last Thursday afternoon in McHenry, winning the first contest 15-1 and dropping the second, 5-4. They then swept a twinbill from visiting CCAC-South on Friday, 4-3 and 1-0; topped the visiting Frostburg State University jayvees in a single game on Saturday, 13-7; won both ends of a doubleheader at CCAC-Boyce on Sunday, 8-3 and 12-6; took a pair of games from the West Virginia Wesleyan junior varsity on Monday in McHenry, 9-6 and 21-0; and split a twinbill yesterday with CCAC-South, winning the first game, 12-0, and dropping the nightcap, 10-7.

John Smith went the distance in the first game against Charles last Thursday, fanning 10 batters, walking just one, and yielding only four hits.

Cajetan Stepanic led the Lakers' hitting by going four-for-four, scoring three runs and recording three RBIs. Mike Harbaugh finished with three singles and three RBIs, Jeff McIntyre rapped two singles and a double, and Tony Warner added two singles and two RBIs.

The big inning for the Lakers was the second when they scored nine runs.

Charles took a 2-0 lead in the first inning of the second game and Garrett's Darryl Dupert answered with a solo homer in the bottom of the inning to make it 2-1.

Charles added one run in the second and two in the fourth to stretch their lead to 5-1.

A two-out single by GCC's Scooter Browning in the bottom of the inning scored Stepanic, who had singled earlier, and Dwayne Woodring followed with a triple to make it 5-3. Harbaugh then smacked a solo homer in the fifth, but the Lakers could get no closer, despite having men in scoring position in both the sixth and seventh innings.

Both teams finished with nine hits.

A two-out, two-strike single by Warren Hook scored the winning run for the Lakers in the first game on Friday against CCAC-South, while Carman Moon and Chris Thompson combined for a three-hit shutout for the Lakers in the second contest.

Garrett took a 3-2 lead in the bottom of the first inning of the opener after South's Steve DerVanick ripped a two-run homer in the top of the inning. Woodring led off with a walk, stole second, and came home on a triple by Warner. Dupert followed with an RBI single and later came home on a squeeze bunt by McIntyre.

The Lakers added another run in the fourth and held off a South rally in the seventh to preserve the win.

Bucky Riggleman tossed six and one-third innings for the Lakers, allowing six hits, and Thompson came in to get the final outs and halt South's rally attempt.

Stepanic paced Garrett's hitting with a double and a single.

The only run scored in the second game was in the bottom of the sixth inning when McIntyre drew a walk, Craig Clevinger was hit by a pitch, and Hook lined his single that scored McIntyre. The Lakers loaded the bases in the fourth and fifth innings, but were unable to score.

Moon tossed the first six innings, striking out five and walking three, before Thompson came in to pick up his second save of the day. Thompson had runners at first and third in the seventh, but struck out the final batter to preserve the win.

Brian Randolph took the loss on the mound for South, despite giving up only five hits, two of which were singles by Hook.

Against the Frostburg State jayvees on Saturday, Dupert and Smith each smacked home runs and Thompson earned the win on the mound for Garrett.

The Lakers recorded three runs in the first inning and four in the second to take a 7-3 advantage, with Dupert recording a two-run blast in the second. A three-run round-tripper by Smith came in the seventh inning.

Woodring and Stepanic each finished with three singles and McIntyre and Riggleman had two RBIs apiece.

Scott Stephenson hit a homer and Brent McKenzie smacked two singles for FSU.

Thompson finished with 11 strike-outs.

Bill Cassella upped his personal record to 5-1 on the mound in the first game against CCAC-Boyce on Sunday in Monroeville, Pa., as he scattered seven hits, struck out four, and issued no walks in the 8-3 win.

The Lakers scored four runs in the second inning behind singles by Harbaugh, Warner, and McIntyre and a three-run double by Stepanic.

After scoring a single run in the fifth on another RBI single by Warner, Dupert led the Lakers' sixth with a three-run blast, his sixth home run of the season.

Paul Wilson went the distance in the second contest for the Lakers, while the GCC offense pounded out 11 hits.

Riggleman finished with a double and a single, Woodring and Stepanic each finished with two singles, and Harbaugh recorded an RBI double. Dupert added a single to extend his hitting streak to 12 games.

Dupert made it 13 games in a row on Monday when he hit a home run in the sixth inning of the first game against the West Virginia Wesleyan jayvees. However, the highlight of that contest was a grand slam homer by Riggleman in the seventh after the Lakers came back from being down 6-0. Harbaugh also stroked a home run, his sixth of the season, to lead off the fourth inning.

Thompson, who relieved Brian Dillon in the fourth inning, allowed only two hits and struck out eight in just two and two-thirds innings to pick up the win and even his record at 2-2.

The second game, which was shortened to five innings because of the 10-run rule, featured not one, but two Laker grand slams, as Hook smacked one during the seven-run first inning and Warner followed with another in the 10-run second inning. Steve Ennis added a three-run blast for the Lakers in the third.

Carman Moon yielded only two Frostburg hits and struck out eight batters to give Coach Nesselrodt his 100th win in his five-year coaching career at Garrett.

Woodring led the Lakers' hitting in the second game with a double and three singles, McIntyre doubled and singled, Harbaugh singled twice, and Riggleman doubled, as Garrett finished with 15 hits.

Smith produced another fantastic prformance on the mound in the first game yesterday against CCAC-South, limiting the home team to just two hits, striking out nine, and allowing only two walks, while the Laker offense pounded out 10 hits in the 12-0 win.

Warner went two-for-two for the Lakers, with one of his hits being a two-run home run in the first inning, while Harbaugh smacked a double and a single. Woodring scored three runs and McIntyre also recorded a homer, a one-out solo shot in the third.

The hitting by the Lakers continued in the second game, but four errors in the first two innings of the second game, plus another error and four walks in the fifth led to their 10-7 defeat.

The Lakers led 5-4 in the third inning, but Rubinsak put South ahead for good in the bottom of the fourth with his two-run homer. The home team went on top 10-5 before the Lakers added two final runs in the seventh inning.

Warner again paced Garrett's hitting, finishing with four singles, while Harbaugh rapped two doubles and a single for three RBIs, and Clevenger added a double.

Der Vanick hit two doubles and a single, while Vogt and Talarico each recorded two singles for South.

Rams Rally To Whip Vikings, Split With Indians, Top Cavaliers

The Southern Rams pushed their season record over the .500 mark this past week by winning three of four games and will face a tough test this afternoon when they host Keyser.

Jim Bosley's defending area champions recorded an exciting win over visiting Petersburg Friday, 10-9, after being down 9-1 going into the bottom of the fourth inning. Then they split a doubleheader with visiting Berkeley Springs on Saturday, winning the first contest 10-4 and dropping the nightcap 4-0, as Derek Unger fired a no-hitter for the Indians. The Rams then edged host Central Preston on Monday, 5-4, when Bobby Horner came home for the winning run in the seventh inning on a sacrifice fly by Shawn Nesselrodt. The Rams are now 5-4 on the season.

Against Petersburg on Friday, the Vikings scored a run in the top of the second to take a 1-0 advantage, but Southern John Stem answered with a solo home run in the bottom of that frame to knot the score.

The top of the third was a disaster for the Rams, who committed six errors and allowed eight runs, five of which were unearned. Mark Rohrbaugh and Bryant Rexroad each rapped two-run doubles for the Vikings in that inning.

Southern narrowed the lead to 9-4 by scoring three runs in the fourth, as Kevin Green led off with a single and Dave Uphold, Brian Sines, and Jack Fitzwater all reached on Petersburg errors. Green and Uphold scored on the ball hit by Fitzwater, as the ball was thrown over the second baseman's head on a double play attempt. Sines then scored when Horner reached on a fielder's choice.

The Rams cut the margin by three more runs in the fifth as Nesselrodt reached on an error, Jamie Colaw walked, and Green followed with a two-run double. Green then came home on a single by Sines to make it 9-7.

With one out in the seventh inning, Uphold, Sines, Fitzwater, and Horner all drew walks to score one run. Sines then came home with the tying run on a wild pitch and freshman Brett Rice squeezed Fitzwater home with the winning run.

Fitzwater, who relieved Rice on the mound in the third, gained the win.

The Rams needed just two innings to score all 10 of their runs in the first game against Berkeley Springs on Saturday, recording three in the second frame and seven in the third to put the game away.

Horner led off the second with a walk, Marshall Pike reached on an error, Uphold advanced both runners with a bunt, and Nesselrodt followed with a two-run line-drive single. Colaw then smacked a double to bring home Nesselrodt.

Three errors by the Indians and a pair of walks aided the Rams in their seven-run third inning, while Rice and Sines each came up with two-run singles.

The Indians came back to score one run in the fourth, two in the sixth, and one in the seventh. Rice finished with four singles and Nesselrodt hit three, while Scott Williams paced Berkeley's offense with two doubles and a single.

Pike went the distance on the mound for the Rams.

A two-run single by Shannon DuVall in the first inning on Monday gave Central Preston a 2-0 lead over the Rams, but Southern came back to record four runs in the third, as Horner singled and came home on a two-out double by Rice. Nesselrodt followed with a single to put runners at first and third and Colaw rapped a three-run homer.

The Cavaliers scored a single run in the fourth when DuVall tripled and scored on a sacrifice fly by Chad Reeves. Then they tied the score in the fifth when Jason Corbin smacked an RBI single.

Horner's run in the seventh proved to be the game-winner as Rice retired the side in the bottom of the seventh to record his third win in four starts this season. Rice scattered seven hits, walked three, and struck out four.

The game today is slated to begin at 4:15 at the Southern field and the Rams will then host Valley on Friday, also at 4:15.

Northern Girls Sweep Salisbury, Lose To Hyndman

After dropping their first five games of the season, the members of the Northern High girls softball team finally got on the winning track by sweeping a doubleheader from Salisbury, 21-8 and 20-10. Their victory celebration was short-lived, however, as they were hammered in a slugfest with Hyndman, 32-16, leaving their season record at 2-6.

In the first game against Salisbury, Jennifer Birkby picked up the win on the mound as she scattered four hits, walked eight, and struck out six.

Freshman Becky Leight and Cara Wachter led the Huskies' hitting, with Leight going three-for-five, including a two-run double, and Wachter recording a three-for-three afternoon, including a triple. Freshman Audra Speicher and Birkby each scored four times, as the Huskies recorded runs in every inning, including eight runs in the third and seven in the fourth.

Singles by Birkby, Christy Jones, and Leight in the first inning of the second game gave the Huskies a 3-0 lead; however Salisbury responded with three of their own in the bottom of the inning and took a 5-3 lead in the bottom of the second.

Northern then erupted for eight runs in the top of the third, as Rebecca Fratz led off with a single and Wachter drove her home with her second triple of the day. Speicher then laid down a perfect bunt, Birkby followed with an RBI single, and Karen Wilhelm drove home two more runs with a single. Tracey Teets followed with another run-producing single.

Salisbury came back to score four runs in the bottom of the inning to narrow the gap to 11-9, but Northern added two runs in the fourth when Michele Beeman led off with a single, Fratz walked, Speicher singled to drive home Beeman, and Fratz scored on a bases-loaded walk to Wilhelm.

After Salisbury loaded the bases in the fourth with one out, Birkby relieved Teats on the mound and, after walking in a run, she retired the side.

The Huskies added five more runs in the fifth, generated by seven walks and hits by Wilhelm and Jones.

Teats, who gave up just three hits, walked eight, and struck out six, was credited with the win, while Birkby received the save.

Against Hyndman the Huskies fell behind 1-0 in the first inning when Reed singled and came home on a double by Lehman. But Northern rallied for four runs in the bottom of the inning on two walks, an RBI double by Jones, and RBI singles by Leight and Beeman.

Hyndman tied the score at 4-4 with three runs in the third inning and Northern kept pace by recording three runs in the bottom of the inning.

The next three frames were all Hyndman's, as the Pennsylvanians scored three more runs in the fourth, five in the fifth, and eight in the sixth to take a 20-7 lead. Northern bounced back to narrow the gap to 20-16, however, by scoring nine runs in the bottom of the sixth. Big hits for the Huskies in that rally were by Wilhelm, Laurie Stanton, Wachter, Beeman, and Leight, who hit a double.

The roof caved in on the Huskies and Coach Bob Yunker in the seventh as Hyndman scored 12 runs on only two hits. Northern yielded nine walks and committed two costly errors in that final frame.

Huskies Fall To 4-5 With 11-3 Loss To Valley

The Northern Huskies dropped an 11-3 decision to Valley Monday afternoon in Accident to see their season record fall to 4-5; however they will attempt to rebound this afternoon at home against Salisbury.

Pat Dick opened the game with a solo home run for the Black Knights which set the tone for a long afternoon for Coach John Helmick's Huskies, as the Knights scored six runs in the first two innings.

After Dick's homer, Rusty Haggerty doubled and scored on a single by Jeff Johnson. Jack Snyder followed with a walk and he and Johnson came home on a single by J.J. Wilson to make it 4-0.

The Huskies came back with a pair of runs in the bottom of the first when Tom Savage rapped one over the fence following a walk to John Sherbin.

The Knights made it 6-2 in the second when Dick singled, moved to third on an unsuccessful pick-off attempt, and came home when Haggerty reached on an infield error. Jim Lauder then singled to score Haggerty.

A double by Snyder in the fifth inning followed by a single by Wilson gave Valley a 7-2 advantage. Steve Grogg then singled to put runners at first and second and Brad Green followed with a three-run blast to make the score 10-2.

The win was the tenth in 12 starts for the Black Knights.

Laps For Lungs Raises $1,000

Laps for Lungs, a swimming event to benefit the American Lung Association of Maryland, raised more than $1000 from supporters in Allegany and Garrett counties over the past two weeks.

In Garrett County, Jimmy, Lee and Nancy Railey of McHenry and James Hill of Cumberland swam in the Laps for Lungs event at the Wisp Resort on April 22. The event was also held at Frostburg State University and Allegany Community College on April 15 and 16.

"The Laps event and a Ski-In last March are two events we hold at Wisp to support programs of the lung association such as their summer asthma camp" stated Wisp Program Director, Brad Howarth.

Glen Besa, program coordinator for the American Lung Association of Maryland in Allegany and Garrett counties, explained, "Events like Laps for Lungs and our annual Christmas Seal campaign support association programs throughout Maryland. We are particularly excited about the Asthma Camp being held July 10-14 on the Frostburg State University campus."

The Asthma Camp is a one-week camp experience for children with asthma ages six through 10. There is a registration fee of $40, however, financial assistance is available. The camp is co-sponsored by Memorial Hospital of Cumberland and Camp Bobcat.

For more information about lung association programs, including the Asthma Camp, persons may call (301) 777-7317 or, in Maryland, 1-800-222-9974.

its 19-day trip the next day. From that point, however, the participating vessels will be colonial river flatboats, barges, canoes and other paddle craft. A total of 800 paddle craft are expected to join the flotilla at some point between Washington, D.C., and Cumberland.

Various national and world paddle sports champions will carry the official flotilla flag for the remainder of the 320-mile route, featuring the various paddle sports as the waters change from "blue" to "white" water.

It is expected that 160,000 spectators will watch the flotilla navigate the waters of the Chesapeake Bay and the Potomac River. At the end of each day, the flotilla participants will be feted by local communities and canoe clubs at designated camp sites in state parks maintained by the Department of Natural Resources. The Department of Transportation is providing trail signs to the camp sites. The flotilla will reach Cumberland, its final destination, on June 14.

After arrival at Cumberland, the flag will be taken to the opening ceremonies of the 1989 international competition by wagon train. The opening ceremonies for the international whitewater championship competition will be held on June 15 at Frostburg State University.

The flotilla is organized by the American Canoe Association, the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin, the Department of Natural Resources, and Whitewater Championship, Inc., in cooperation with the C&O Canal National Historical Park.

Denver Welch, from the Garrett County Sheriff's Department, were called. Officer Richard Tower, Department of Natural Resources police, and Officer Zimmerman, Potomac State Forest police, were also called.

The four officers were then led back to the scene by Newhall. After a search, the wadding from the shotgun was recovered.

McQuin, a life member of the Kensington Volunteer Fire Department and deputy chief of the fire department for over 20 years, described Baker as a stocky, 55 year old man, around five feet, ten inches tall and dressed in camouflage.

McQuin was treated and released from Garrett County Memorial Hospital. Officers Tower and Zimmerman are continuing the investigation.

Chief Deputy Harland Tichnell is investigating a breaking and entering which occurred at the Blakeslee Recreation Center on the Blakeslee Road.

David Westron, of David Westron Construction, Burlington, W.Va., reported that someone threw a rock through a sliding glass door at the recreation center, then entered the building and removed a saw and air compressor. The two items are valued at $1,010. The cost of the sliding glass door is estimated at $300.

The investigation is continuing.

Roger Roderick, Deer Park, reported on April 18 that someone placed sand in the engine of his Ford farm tractor.

Roderick had apparently used the tractor several times over the winter and noticed that there was something wrong with the engine. After taking the tractor to a mechanic, it was found to have sand in the engine. The engine will have to be rebuilt at a cost of $600. Deputy R.P. Shaffer is continuing the investigation.

Southern Garrett County High School was visited in March, 1988, by the Middle States Association of Colleges and Schools. This association determines a school's accreditation. In other words, it determines whether or not a school may issue valid diplomas to its students.

In order to keep Southern's accreditation, the committee recommends that we do the following:

AGRICULTURE
- The greenhouse and agriculture mechanics facilities be renovated and enlarged to better serve the students.
- Immediate repairs be made to the greenhouse ventilating system insuring a successful operation of the facility.

ART
- More in-class storage space for on-going student projects.
- The kiln be properly ventilated with an adequate exhaust system. Possible relocation of the kiln because of health risk.
- Traps be added to the sink areas in both art rooms.
- Improvements will be made to the electrical outlets in both art rooms.

BUSINESS EDUCATION
- The business electives be made physically accessible to handicapped students.

DISTRIBUTIVE EDUCATION
- The school store should be relocated providing additional space to enhance and display an expanded inventory to serve needs of students and staff.

HOME ECONOMICS
- The home economics facilities be renovated and enlarged to allow expansion of offerings to better serve the students.
- A ventilation system be installed in the kitchen area and that electrical outlets be upgraded to current approved standards.

INDUSTRIAL ARTS
- The industrial arts facility be renovated and enlarged to provide space and equipment for more course offerings. Immediate attention needs to be given to the purchase and construction of lumber storage racks, and an exhaust system in the finishing area.

MUSIC
- Plans to renovate be provided for an adequate room for the chorus program.
- Facility be provided for small group rehearsal and/or individual practice room(s).
- The existing storage room be renovated to include better lighting, security, shelving and heated.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION
- Equipment be stored in appropriate areas.

SCIENCE
- Basic safety features which are urgently needed to insure student and teacher safety (exhaust fans, first aid equipment, fire extinguishers, storage of hazardous chemicals), be purchased for several classrooms.
- Renovation of science classrooms include new lab facilities with gas, water, proper ventilation, and storage areas.
- The science department play a major role in approval of final renovation plans and that adequate space be provided for teacher preparation and storage of equipment.

SPECIAL EDUCATION
- Consideration be given in renovation plans for the provision of well equipped handicapped lavatories for each self contained classroom.
- The kiln be removed from the SPH classroom.
- Consideration be given in the renovation plans for the placement of the C.P.A. classroom near "Mainstreamed Classes" of students.

TRADE, TECHNICAL AND INDUSTRIAL
- Additional master switches be installed in lab areas where needed.
- Adequate exhaust ventilation be provided in carpentry lab and other areas where hazardous fumes are created.
- Adequate area for welding be provided in machine shop.
- More storage space be provided in all trade, technical and industrial labs.
- Masonry be provided with an individual classroom.

STUDENT SERVICES
- Renovation plans include a large conference room for group counseling, ARD teams, and other meetings.
- Renovation plans also include a small conference room for special testing, special services, and interagency team meetings.
- An adequate records room be established for safe storage of all student records.

SCHOOL FACILITIES
- Smoke detectors and a sprinkler system be installed for safety.
- The walkways between buildings be covered to protect those passing between buildings.
- General building maintenance be improved.
- Adequate ventilation be provided in assembly areas such as the gym, locker rooms and cafetorium.
- Restroom and other facilities be brought into compliance with handicap laws.
- Maintenance items such as repainting, repairing broken or missing floor tiles and repairing lockers (which can be repaired) be performed with EXPEDIENCE.

SCHOOL, STAFF AND ADMINISTRATION
- Repair and maintenance of the building remain a priority even though renovation is planned. Special attention should be given to safety problems, asbestos removal, classroom repairs and general building maintenance.
- School maintenance take immediate steps to improve unsafe fire and safety conditions that exist in several areas of the school in the trade and industry department (guards missing on machines, safety lines on the floor, proper storage of flammable materials and proper storage of equipment and trash), in the science department.

CONCLUSION: To maintain Southern's accreditation, these improvements must be made, and the only way they can be made is through renovation.

Oakland Police Note Incidents

Two local incidents were reported by the Oakland City Police Department this week.

Two Aurora, W.Va., women were charged with trespassing on April 16.

Beverly Wiles, 30, and Dinah Hebb, 26, were charged by Sgt. Roger Lewis when they refused to leave Pizza Hut at closing time. They were taken to the Garrett County Jail and released on their own recognizance.

A theft was reported at Wards Packing Store on Second Street last Thursday. According to Chief John K. Sines, who is investigating, someone used a key to open a soda machine, then removed $75 to $100 in coins.

Sines noted that two similar thefts occurred in the area on the same night, and businesses with soda machines should be cautious.

The Academy also announced its fifth term honor roll this week. The list includes: Elaine McDowell, Jennifer Stanton, Tom McDowell, Amy Naugle, Megan Stanton, and Michael Folk, all High Honors, and Alvin Naugle, Honors.

The next stated meeting will be May 2.

CRIME SOLVERS

The Garrett County Crime Solvers case of the week involves a breaking and entering theft which occurred on November 24 or 25.

According to police reports, someone entered the Keyser's Ridge Trading Post on Alternate Route 40 west of Grantsville. An investigation revealed that 17 long guns were stolen, and total loss and damage reached $3000.

All leads in this case have been exhausted, and Crime Solvers is seeking the help of the public. Rewards of up to $1000 are available for information that leads to the arrest and charging of the responsible party. The caller will not have to testify, and may remain anonymous.

Anyone with information should call Garrett County Crime Solvers at 334-1975.

Correction Noted

In a story that appeared in last week's issue of The Republican concerning contributions of $3,600 by Oakland Lodge No. 192, Ancient, Free, and Accepted Masons, to various local organizations and charities, it incorrectly stated that $200 each was donated to two Boy Scout troops and to two Girl Scout troops in Garrett County. It should have stated that $200 was presented to the Boy Scouts to be divided equally between two troops and $200 to the Girl Scouts to be divided between two troops (northern and southern ends of the county).

The article also incorrectly stated that the Masonic Scholarship Program is open only to sons and daughters of Masons. In fact, the program is open to all students, regardless of whether or not there is any Masonic affiliation in their families.

Kayak Builder

Although (the owner) had requested of the Town council the next step for zoning and been informed it was necessary to file an application for Special Exception, the town council was in error. Since the amended zoning classification had extinguished at the end of one year a special exception application is not possible."

"Then I got that letter that just floored me," said Whittemore. "Five years of business, and all of a sudden they're kicking me out because some people want to build a laundromat and it is being fought by the owner of my building."

Jesse is also a kayaker. He designs and constructs his boats from his experiences running rivers and spends many hours kayaking the section of the Youghiogheny River known as the "Upper Yough."

Roger Zbel, a member of the United States Whitewater Team and a resident of Friendsville, uses only boats that have been built by Jesse.

Whittemore will be constructing Zbel's kayaks for the pre-trials for the wildwater team, which will be held in May for the upcoming 1989 World's Canoe/Kayak Whitewater Championships. If Zbel makes the wildwater team, Whittemore will use all his knowledge and skill to construct one of the lightest and fastest boats for Zbel.

"I test my boats out before I sell them. And any time I find anything that I can improve, I try to improve it. The 'Upper Yough' is a great river to test my boats, since it is one of the most challenging and exciting rivers in the east," Jesse said.

"I really hate the idea of having to leave town. But I rent the building and I rent the equipment I use to build my boats. The equipment is so expensive and I just can't afford to buy new. If I have to leave my building, I pretty much have to leave this area and all my friends to seek work elsewhere," he said.

"I feel that the Friendsville Town Council members are showing favoritism. The guy that is building the car wash is on the Town Council, and two of his relatives are also on the Council.

"I'm going to go bankrupt. This problem is ruining my life. The fact remains that I'll have to leave town and they'll still be here, doing what they want," Whittemore said. "I just want to live my life and build boats."

Whittemore is consulting an attorney to see if the order to "cease and desist" with his business can be deferred or delayed. If the attorney is unable to assist him, come Monday, Jesse Whittemore will be out of business.

Phi Theta Kappa Induction Banquet Held At Garrett

Thirty-nine Garrett Community College students were inducted into Phi Theta Kappa, National Junior College Honor Society, at a banquet in the college cafeteria Tuesday evening. The event marked the initial meeting of the newly formed chapter of the honor society on the McHenry campus.

To be eligible for induction, students must have completed at least 15 credit hours with a minimum grade point average of 3.5. As a national organization, Phi Theta Kappa provides science fairs, national conventions, scholarships, career advising, and regional peer group meetings. Inductees have a lifetime membership in the organization.

At the dinner, students being honored were greeted by Dr. Steve Herman, GCC president, and Dr. Lillian Mitchell, academic dean. Following a candle lighting and induction ceremony, each was presented with a certificate of membership, and the pioneer charter containing their names was unveiled. This document will be displayed at the college in perpetuity.

George McDowell, advisor to Phi Theta Kappa who planned the banquet, closed the induction ceremony. A highlight of the dinner was the cake containing the Phi Theta Kappa logo and GCC colors made by the students in the cake decorating class taught by Sue Harris.

Building Trades Class Luncheon Set For Monday

Local contractors are invited to join staff and students of the JTPA building trades program for a unique luncheon on Monday, May 1. The luncheon will provide an opportunity for students to demonstrate the thoroughness of the training which has been offered by GCC in cooperation with the Western Maryland Consortium. Local employers are encouraged by GCC officials to take advantage of the occasion to learn more about the students work and training and to consider them for employment in the building trades.

Students, who range in age from 19 to 55, began their studies by learning basic math for carpenters, building trade terms, blueprint reading and retail selling fundamentals. After "hands-on" learning in frame carpentry, they specialized in either masonry, wiring or finish carpentry. Throughout the 18-week, 630-hour training program, they have been learning building techniques by constructing a small building and a gazebo which are now for sale. During the luncheon, contractors will be able to inspect the building and the construction site and meet with instructors and students. They will also view a video which provides an overview of all phases of the training.

"Now that most students have demonstrated competencies in all areas, they are ready to join the local work force as carpenter helpers, masonry helpers, and electrician helpers," a GCC spokesman said. "They also are prepared to function in retail sales associated with the building trades and in the manufacturing of building materials, as well as, remodeling, and maintenance positions."

While some of the students have already been hired, a number of qualified applicants are still seeking immediate employment. Employers who would like to review resumes and learn more about the students capabilities are encouraged to call Sandy Major at 387-6666, ext. 169, to make reservations for the luncheon or obtain additional student information.

GCC Wildlife Club Has Spring Break In Florida

Although heading for Florida every year on Spring Break has become the thing to do for many college students, not many students go for the same purpose as the members of the Garrett Community College Wildlife Club.

This year seven GCC students travelled to the Sunshine State with Assistant Professor of Biology Kevin Dodge and Dr. Charles Hager, instructor of anatomy and physiology. Students who made the trip were Lori Meddings, Julie Truax, Cheryl Wilt, Shawn Craver, Dave Foreman, Eric Savage, and Eric Warnick.

Traveling in the college van, towing a U-Haul trailer, they camped at state and national parks and visited wildlife sanctuaries and other areas where they observed many species of wildlife in their natural habitats.

On the way down, the group camped at Lake Okechobee and visited Merritt Island National Wildlife Refuge, then drove through the Florida scrub and Seminole Indian area to Corkscrew Swamp, a bald cypress swamp owned by the National Audubon Society. Here they saw snakes, lizards, alligators, owls and other birds of prey.

At Sanibel Island, they visited the John N. "Dean" Darling National Wildlife Refuge to observe heron, egrets, roseate spoonbills, and more alligators. On the island, they also enjoyed the beach.

At Everglades National Park they rented bikes and rode through a sawgrass prairie and along the Anhinga Trail where they saw snake birds nesting. From Flamingo Campground they canoed on Buttonwood canal where they found a dying barn owl and took it to a ranger. One of the fun activities at this location, according to Dodge, was a kite flying contest. They flew two kites all night long, tied to the van.

When the group reached the Florida Keys, they took a chartered boat to Looe Key National Marine Sanctuary and went snorkeling on the coral reef where they saw barracuda, rays, and a five-foot nurse shark. In the Keys, they also spent some time digging water holes for the key deer whose habitat is being diminished by development.

Of the trip, Dodge stated, "Everything went very well. Everyone got along fine, and the weather was perfect. It was an opportunity for the students to observe kinds of wildlife they had never seen before, and a good learning experience. We saw over 125 different kinds of birds."

Cheryl Wilt agreed that the trip was very successful. "I saw so much and learned a great deal," she stated, "while having a tremendous time. I am now looking forward to the trip next year."

Why Patz is No. 1

- Durable Patz hook-and-eye link chain. Progression forging builds extra strength into hook-and-eye link contact points. Final heat treating increases hardness, strength and wear resistance.
- Four-tooth sprocket drives every link behind the hook--the link's thickest and strongest point.
- Chain flexibility for various layouts.
- Select 2" flites for solid manure or 4" high flites for slurry manure. ¼-inch-thick flites are welded to Patz links. ½-inch-thick wear shoes extend flite life.
- Three drive unit sizes match your gutter length and allow expansion.
- Corner wheel top-and-bottom flanges guide the chain around the corner. Corner wheel assemblies remove easily for service without concrete breakout.
- Heavier XH link available for extremely long pulls.

GCC Student Of The Week

This week's Garrett Community College Student of the Week is Clyde Fike of Friendsville.

A sophomore at GCC, Fike is enrolled in the psychology and history programs and plans a career in teaching and counseling. He has been elected for a second term as treasurer for the SGA (Student Government Association) and is involved in all the committee's activities. He is a peer tutor and has received the Maryland State Scholarship.

Clyde and his wife, Awilda, are the parents of four sons: Jay, Steve, Jeremy and Mike. In his spare time he likes hunting, fishing, gardening and sports. He is an active member in the Church of God at Bruceton Mills, W.Va., and coaches Little League baseball.

When asked to comment on GCC he said, "GCC provides a relaxed atmosphere and personal interaction between students and teachers. It is a good place for any non-traditional student to start his education again because GCC tries to meet the needs of the students and they treat you like a person and not a number."

The Division of Continuing Education of Garrett Community College announced this week there are still openings for a course entitled: "Developing Your Family History," beginning May 3, for four sessions. Each session will meet at the McHenry campus on Wednesdays from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m., with a brown bag lunch at noon.

The class will be divided into a period of general information and a "hands-on," period in which individual research and organizational problems can be addressed. Topics to be covered include: use of primary and secondary resources, books, forms and biliographies, research and compiling of historical records, writing accurate and historical facts and documenting special history records.

For additional information and registration, persons should contact the Division of Continuing Education at 387-6666, ext. 169.

GCC Schedules Several Summer Biology Courses

Bird watching will be a popular activity for students taking either of two biology courses being offered this summer at Garrett Community College. The summer schedule lists a total of four biology classes available during the summer semester.

BIO 291 — Birds of Garrett County, a course offered for one credit or no credit, will meet from 8-12 Saturday mornings for seven weeks, beginning May 27. According to Kevin Dodge, assistant professor of biology who will instruct the course, the class will take field trips to local areas where students will learn to identify birds in their natural habitats by sight and sound. Emphasis will be on common breeding birds, such as the scarlet tanager, indigo bunting, eastern phoebe, and red-eyed vireo. Dodge advises all students to bring binoculars.

The second bird identification course, BIO 293, is a three credit course that involves greater depth of study and a more rigorous approach to the subject. Students in this course will meet at an arranged time and will be required to do a summer project.

Another biology course with the same number will focus on identification of vascular plants, such as ferns, conifers, and flowering plants. This class will also meet by arranged time.

In addition to these three specialized biology courses, a basic biology course BIO 100 — Bioscience, is being offered Monday and Thursday evenings, starting May 22. Designed for non-science majors, bioscience is a four credit course that satisfies the lab science requirement in most academic programs and provides a good refresher of basic fundamentals.

Anyone desiring further information about any of these biology courses may call Dodge at 387-6666.

TWO SMALL BUILDINGS AND A GAZEBO built by construction classes at Garrett Community College are now for sale, according to Sandy Major, project coordinator for JTPA. The buildings can be seen in the shop area of the college any day or evening. The two buildings, each 12' X 24', (one of which is pictured above) have finished cedar exteriors, insulation, windows and doors. Interiors will be finished according to customer's plan. Ms. Major suggests that they might be used as hunting cabins, business offices, or beauty shops. One of the buildings was built by the credit class in Building Construction taught by Russell Alexander; the other was built by the JTPA class taught by Sheldon Dearden. Prices for these two buildings are $5,500 and $5,900, not including plumbing or kitchen fixtures. The gazebo is 12 feet in diameter, of wolmanized lumber, with a cedar shake roof. It was constructed by the JTPA class. Sale price for the gazebo is $2,200. All three structures will be sold on a first-come basis. Anyone desiring further information may call Ms. Major at 387-6666.

eligibility to the Senatorial Scholarship Program."

The nomination pointed out her GCC theatrical credits which include the female leads in "Blithe Spirit" and "Androcles and the Lion," and her athletic accomplishments as a member of the GCC volleyball team and a marathon runner. The daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Stephen Yelovich, Accident, she plans to transfer to Frostburg State University next year to major in physical education and continue her athletic and dramatic pursuits.

The nomination of Beth Hurley for excellence in teaching pointed out the innovative teaching methods and diversified class activities she employs in her history and humanities courses that fill her courses to overflowing each semester. "She is known for the personal interest she takes in each student, working individually whenever necessary, encouraging and motivating her students to persist, and fostering in each a sense of personal achievement and self-confidence," the document stated.

In his nomination of Wayne Hamilton as the trustee honoree, Dr. Herman stated, "His reputation throughout Garrett County and the State for leadership, wisdom, and foresight added prestige and credibility to the college. In his quiet, unassuming manner, he asserted a steadying influence, helping to galvanize community support for the college. He guided college plans and procedures that achieved institutional and financial strength; he involved himself directly and actively in restructuring Garrett's compensation program; he supported curriculum overhaul; he facilitated the construction of GCC's community center; and he helped guide the college to a ten-year reaffirmation of accreditation. With his own special brand of gentle humor, he acted, as always, selflessly, with tireless dedication to the college he helped to found over twenty years ago."

The nomination of Cissy VanSickle as alumni honoree read, "Parent, student, and professional, Cissy VanSickle epitomizes the community college success story. A 1983 graduate with honors from Garrett Community College, she will be completing her bachelor's degree this year at West Virginia University. Recognizing her special talents, GCC appointed her Director of College Financial Aid. In this capacity she quickly became a favorite of students. With tireless devotion she reaches out to students and to her community in a spirit of service. Students always say that Cissy 'goes the extra mile.' She walks that same extra mile for her community, offering free financial aid counseling services and seminars, reaching out to the middle and high schools, and encouraging parents to seek her assistance and guidance. Cissy VanSickle makes a difference in lives in Garrett County. Without her personal investment and concern, far fewer Garrett Countians would pursue a higher education."

Stir in tomato sauce, vinegar and molasses, simmer together for 1 minute. Add tomato mixture to lentils and heat through. Serve in tacos or tostados, over corn bread or with corn tortilla chips. Yield: 3 cups.

FRUIT

Fruits are juicy, vitamin-packed and temptingly sweet. They make ideal desserts as is or when used in simple recipes. They are rich in fiber, natural sugar, vitamins A and C, and iron. Most fruits contain no fat (with the exception of avocados and olives) and provide needed carbohydrates. Many fruits also contribute potassium to the diet. They are better unpeeled than peeled, and in their natural state rather than in juices.

DOUBLE FRUIT PARFAITS

2½ cups fresh pineapple cubes
2 kiwi fruit, peeled, sliced
1 cup fresh strawberry halves
1 banana
½ cup orange juice

In a large bowl, combine pineapple, kiwi and strawberries. In blender or food processor, combine banana and orange juice, process until smooth. Pour banana mixture over fruit, mix gently. Cover, chill several hours to blend flavors. To serve, spoon fruit into parfait or other stemmed glasses. Yield: 6 servings.

STRAWBERRY-BANANA FREEZE

2 small ripe bananas
½ cup evaporated skim milk
½ teaspoon vanilla

DESSERTS

Desserts should be eaten only occasionally and not as a frequent ending to a meal. Healthier choices would be fresh, baked or poached fruit, fruit compote, sherbets and sorbets, fruit ices, fruit in meringue shells, angel food cake, simple fruit tarts.

1 banana, cut in half lengthwise
¼ cup plus 2 tablespoons vanilla low-fat yogurt

SORBET

¼ cup low fat yogurt
2 egg whites
3 cups frozen fruit cut in chunks
1-3 teaspoons sugar
1-2 teaspoons lemon or lime juice

Place yogurt, egg whites, and juice in food processor, blend briefly. With processor running, gradually add frozen fruit until sorbet is formed (2-3 minutes). Yield: 6 servings.

POULTRY

Chicken and turkey are high in protein and low in fat. The white meat is lower in fat than the dark meat. When cooking poultry, remove the skin and all visible fat. Bake, roast, poach, microwave instead of frying. Be sure to drain well. Saute or stir-fry in a non-stick pan with no stick cooking spray in place of added fat. Fry small chunks quickly and with other ingredients. Small broilers and fryers have less fat, stewing hens more. Duck and goose have much higher fat content.

ORIENTAL CHICKEN

6 chicken thighs
¼ cup dry sherry
¼ cup low salt soy sauce
¼ teaspoon of chinese 5 spice powder or ¼ teaspoon all spice

Remove skin and trim fat from chicken thighs. Mix marinade ingredients. Pour marinade over chicken and bake covered at 350 degrees for 1½ hours. Turn pieces occasionally. Drain and serve over brown rice. Yield: 3 servings.

RICE

Rice is rich in carbohydrates, low in fat and, particularly if brown or whole grain, high in fiber. Rice can be served under meats or vegetables, as side dishes, mixed with casseroles, or served cold with leftover fruits or vegetables.

FRUITED RICE MOLD

1 teaspoon unflavored gelatin

Put in oil sprayed casserole dish. Spread shredded swiss cheese on top. Bake in 350° oven until cheese is melted, about 20 minutes. Yield: 12-14 servings.

SALADS

Salads have come of age for lunch, dinner, even leftover for breakfast. Both fruit and vegetable salads are high in fiber, low in fat and rich in Vitamins A and C. They can contain seafood, meat, or poultry to serve as a main dish for dinner.

GARDEN SLAW VINAGRETTE

3 cups shredded cabbage
1 cup grated carrot

Drain pineapple, reserve ½ cup juice. Stir ½ cup juice and lemon juice into apricot mixture. Chill until consistency of unbeaten egg whites. Add pineapple, apricots, and banana to gelatin mixture, stirring gently. Spoon mixture into mold. Chill overnight. Turn out onto leaf lettuce and garnish with mandarin oranges and banana slices dipped in lemon juice. Yield: 8 servings.

SEAFOOD

Fish and shellfish are a wise choice among animal protein foods because they are quite low in fat. They are an excellent source of protein, vitamins and minerals. Be sure to bake, broil or poach fish rather than breading and frying. Use herbs and spices to season rather than the usual butter or oil. Some low-fat suggestions for seafood are: baked or poached white flesh fish, without added margarine or butter, broiled or steamed shrimp, tuna packed in water, raw oysters, pink salmon, crab, flounder and cuttlefish, scallops and abalone. Of the new varieties of fish now available pollack (Boston bluefish), squid (calamari), monkfish, and blue mussels are all low in fat and calories.

Spray a large saucepan with no-stick cooking spray. Heat over medium heat, then add wine and all vegetables except onion. Saute, stirring frequently until vegetables are tender but still crunchy, about 3-5 minutes. Add scallops, dill, and green onion. Cook until scallop flesh turns opaque, about 5-10 minutes. Serve over brown rice. Yield: 4 servings.

SHRIMP MORNAY

Remove shrimp and vegetables with a slotted spoon, set aside. Boil liquid, uncovered, for 5-10 minutes or until reduced to ¼ cup. Combine milk and cornstarch, add to liquid. Cook and stir until thickened and bubbly, cook for 2 minutes longer. Stir in cheese until melted. Remove from heat, cool. Cook linguine in boiling water until al dente, for about 5-7 minutes, drain. Divide linguine among 4 shallow individual baking dishes. Combine shrimp, carrots, onion, sauce and peas, spoon mixture over linguine. Cover. Bake in 375° oven until mixture is hot, about 45 minutes. Hitched To Nothing . . . Going Nowhere

Back in the days when trains moved America, three high-powered executives entered a fancy railroad car, got comfortable, and proceeded with their conference that involved high finance.

The porter approached them and asked that they move to the next car. They refused. Three times the porter returned and tried to persuade them to move, but to no avail. They told him in no uncertain terms they were staying in that car and absolutely would not transfer.

"Okay, have it your way," said the patient porter, "but this car ain't hitched to nothing and it ain't going nowhere."

Life gives choices, and it is so easy to choose fancy and comfortable surroundings, even to be involved in great conferences and conversations, but living with a lifestyle that "ain't hitched to nothing and ain't going nowhere."

Life's journey depends not only on WHAT WE DO, but also on WHAT WE'RE HITCHED TO.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE MYSTERY OF GOD'S WILL

April 30, 1989

Background Scripture: Ephesians 1:1-14.
Devotional Reading: Romans 8:26-29.

Proponents of "The Big Bang Theory" of the origin of the universe believe that the cosmos is still expanding from that first big bang of creation, the outer limits of the universe speeding away from us at an astronomical speed. It is as if the universe is coming apart, disintegrating.

Whether or not "The Big Bang Theory" is accurate, many people also see much the same thing happening to our human society. Technology, ideology, nationalism and other forces seem to be constantly pulling our world further and further apart. Society, like the universe, appears to be disintegrating. Lots of the things that used to seem to hold it together no longer seem effective or even viable any more. The family, the church, the neighborhood, the local school—none of these seem able to stop the process of disintegration.

THE PLAN REVEALED

This is hardly a new or novel concern. People have been worrying about the disintegration of society for almost as long as there has been a society. Many times when people have assumed that society was finished, we have discovered that in the pattern of dissipation there is also the seeds of some new cohesion. When the Jews were carried into the Babylonian captivity, they thought their society was doomed. But, in Babylon, they founded some new institutions—including the synagogue—that became the basis for an even stronger Israel than before.

In Ephesians, Paul sets forth a different view of the world. Regardless of what the world may be doing astronomically, it is not "coming apart" because God has created it with a plan and purpose that is totally different from that. People have long wondered what is God's intention for his great creation, and, according to Paul, in Christ the mystery of God's will has been revealed once and for all. "For he has made known to us in all wisdom and insight the mystery of his will, according to his purpose which he set forth in Christ as a plan for the fullness of time..." (1:9,10).

TO UNITE ALL THINGS

On the micro-personal scale we interpret God's will as a plan to save us as persons: "in him we have redemption through his blood, the forgiveness of our trespasses, according to the riches of his grace..." (1:7). On the macro-universal scale, however, we see God's redemptive love working on a higher, more comprehensive level: "to unite all things in him, things in heaven and things on earth" (1:10). The mystery of God's will is no longer a mystery, for it is obvious that just as through Christ he unites us to himself, so his intention is to unite everything in his love and grace.

Frostburg State "Sky Busters" Video Encourages Interest In Astronomy

"Is the night sky a starry maze where you can't tell the Dipper's handle from the Princess' leg? You can recognize celebrities such as Jon Bon Jovi and Pat Sajak, but you can't name the brightest star group in the current month's sky. Don't hide in the closet! Don't reach for an aspirin — Just call in Sky Busters! — Frostburg State University's stellar team to zap away your ignorance about the night sky."

Sky Busters, a monthly video update on the night sky and all its glory, is produced by Dr. Bob Doyle, director of the FSU Planetarium, and a group of students dedicated to the project.

Currently, Sky Busters is distributed through the Allegany County Board of Education Instructional Media Center in Eckhart. However, Doyle hopes the video will gain wider distribution, possibly to nearby school systems, as it continues to be improved.

Improving the video is one of the professor's main goals for the project he began two years ago. When the first Sky Busters was produced in early 1987, it was accomplished using just a series of posters and people. However, now, the video is made using computer equipment and of course, people. Doyle estimated that it currently takes three computers and at least 100 computer screens to create the 30-minute video. In addition, before its video production, Sky Busters actually began as an audio presentation.

The program is incorporated as part of the regular FSU Planetarium show, which can be seen each Wednesday evening and Sunday afternoon from September through May. The programs are open to the public and are free. April's program is on the "Springtime of the Universe" and will run through April 30. The Planetarium season wraps up with the final production "Music Beyond Space and Time" on May 3, 7, 10, 17 through the end of the month.

New to this year's Sky Busters production is the addition of music — original keyboard compositions written specifically for the video. Chuck McCormick, a senior physics and computer science major from Frostburg, and Brian Andrews, a freshman from Cockeysville, write and perform the music. McCormick also is the announcer for the programs.

Sky Busters presents a month by month look at the sun, the moon, the planets and the stars. Doyle cites the wrap-up Cosmic Quiz as one of the video's most important features. When he created the framework for Sky Busters, he felt it needed to include a "test" so the viewer could measure what he learned about the month's night sky.

Cosmic Quiz is hosted each month by "the enchanting Zorita" and helps the viewer figure out their "space rating — wizard, master, etc. down to space chump." Tammy Wolford, a science major from Garrett County, has been fulfilling the role of Zorita for more than a year.

Other students who regularly appear in Sky Busters include Chris Chambers, a senior political science student from Kensington, who hosts the moon segment; Frostburg resident Christina Nattras, a junior modern foreign language major, who hosts the sun segment; and although the host for the planet segment varies Carol Detrick, an Earth science major from Cumberland, is filling that spot. Doyle, who is also responsible for writing the scripts, gives the star presentation for each video.

McCormick, Andrews and Browning are also responsible for the actual technical production of the video. Deer Park resident Paul Browning, a sophomore math and computer science major, wrote the computer production program, while Robert Sommerville, a freshman computer science major from Laurel, sets up the "Print Shop" program used for the computer graphics.

Doyle explained that the idea for the Sky Busters video originated from his weekly newspaper column he has written for 13 years. He felt creating a news program on astronomy spiced with humor could be a way to interest more young people in the mysteries and wonders of our universe and beyond. Doyle also makes regular visits to local schools with his portable planetarium in an effort to increase interest in astronomy.

Record Number Of Tax Returns Received April 18

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein reported that a record 367,000 state income tax returns arrived in Annapolis on Tuesday, April 18, the day after the deadline for mailing 1988 tax returns. "That's the largest amount of mail we've ever received in a single day," he said, noting that 461,000 tax returns arrived between April 18-20.

The state expects about 2.1 million 1988 income tax returns to be filed.

Income Tax Division employees are opening the mountain of last minute mail, depositing checks and sorting and processing the tax returns in a massive effort that will continue for another month.

"Taxpayers who filed at the last minute and are due refunds will probably receive their checks in about four weeks," Goldstein said.

As of April 18, the State Comptroller's Office has mailed 937,470 refund checks, totaling $263.8 million. The average check amounts to $281.

Garrett County BPW Club Plans Anniversary Event

The 50th anniversary celebration and year-end reports were the order of the day for the Garrett County Business and Professional Women's Club at the April 13 meeting. Over 60 guests and members are expected for the anniversary dinner, scheduled for this Saturday, April 29, at Will O' the Wisp, Deep Creek Lake.

Attending the 60th anniversary gala for the Maryland BPW Federation April 8 in Hagerstown were local organization president Mildred Wucik; Phyllis Trickett, state past president; and Bea Crosco, local membership and ways and means chairperson.

Eleven new members were added to the roster in 1988-89, bringing the total to over 40 for Garrett County BPW.

The search for a recipient for the club's scholarship to a mature woman who wishes to further her education is underway. Sara Jane Kuhn, scholarship chairman, has placed forms at Garrett Community College for those interested.

On April 16, several members went to the Salem Children's Trust near Grantsville to present awards to the five young ladies who participated in a club project this winter. A course expounding on today's "choices" for young women was presented by a variety of members, with 16 taking part in visiting the home on Sundays to talk about their own experiences and work on projects for the girls.

New offficers will be installed by state officers at the April 29 anniversary celebration. Dues of $28 for the 1989-90 are due by May 1 to treasurer Peggy Jamison.

Featured in Don Haddad's "Suite for Tuba" will be Ijamsville senior music student John Mitchell. Nick Ellis, senior music major from Fulton, will perform the "Rondo" from Hummel's "Trumpet Concerto," Euphonium soloist Chris Zembower, a junior music major from Short Gap, W.Va., will be featured in Gordon Jacob's "Fantasia." All soloists will be accompanied by members of the FSU Wind Ensemble.

In addition to the featured solos, other program selections range in style from contemporary band composition to impressionism.

The concert is open to the public, free of charge.

Children's Lit. Festival Set At Frostburg State

Noted children's author Jean Fritz, as well as authors/illustrators Steven Kroll and Chris Conover, will be the featured speakers for the 1989 Children's Literature Festival, May 5 and 6, at Frostburg State University.

The annual festival brings together administrators, teachers, librarians, parents and students to glean ideas from the top speakers as well as fellow professionals in the field of children's literature.

Fritz, recipient of the prestigious Laura Ingalls Wilder Award and numerous other honors, has produced over 20 pieces of quality children's literature from her home in Dobb's Ferry, New York. Best known for her works of historical fiction, Fritz was the only child of missionary parents and spent her first years in 1920's China pondering just what it meant to be an American. She arrived in the United States at the age of 12 and discovered the real knowledge that she longed for was largely missing from the uninspiring history classes and dry textbooks she encountered. So she did historical investigating on her own and the results included many books including such titles as George Washington's Breakfast, The Cabin Faced West, and Homewick, My Own Story.

Also at the festival will be Steven Kroll, the author of over 30 children's books, who has written such titles as Is Milton Missing? That Makes Me Mad and The Biggest Pumpkin Ever.

Chris Conover is gaining prominence in the literary field as both an author and illustrator of children's books. Two of her most recent works include a fanciful adaptation, Froggie Went A-Courting and The Adventures of Simple Simon, an amusing story that earned inclusion in Booklist Children's Editor's Choice.

Storyteller Kendall Haven will also participate in the festival and participants will select from a choice of ten informative small group sessions directed by professionals in the field.

A first this year for the seventh annual Children's Literature Festival will be including a program for children. Two concurrent presentations, one by Kroll and one by Conover, will be offered at 4 p.m. Friday of the two-day conference. These sessions are for children, in kindergarten through grade three and from grade four through six.

For more information, persons should contact Dr. William Bingman, FSU School of Education, 689-4420.

Frostburg State Dance Company Slates Recital

The Frostburg State University Dance Company is making final preparations for its annual spring recital, "Dimensions In Dance '89," scheduled for performances this evening, April 27, and Friday, April 28, at 8:30 p.m. in Compton Auditorium on the University campus. Admission is free.

The company is under the artistic direction of Claudia Palumbo and Carole Wiedebusch, faculty members in the FSU Department of Health, Physical Education and Recreation.

This year's show will incorporate the theme, "Dance Through the Ages." Faculty and student choreography will highlight distinct styles of dance from the past and present-day, new innovations in dance.

Included in the program is a fast-paced Can Can, which historically made its appearance in 1893 in the famous dance hall, Moulin Rouge. A stirring patriotic piece representing the war years will reflect the Precision dance style. Both pieces are choreographed by Stephanie Getty and Daphanie Getty, who are both dance minors at FSU.

Senior Kristina Reeves will portray the fiery, expressive ballerina of the Romantic Era, Fanny Elssler, in a solo with Spanish flair and music. Other historical periods represented in dance forms will include a Greek dance utilizing tambourines and a Primitive.

The rhythmic tap style will be sounded out by Stephanie Bean, who will represent the artistry of Gene Kelly. Freshman Stephanie Jeffries will perform a tap piece a cappella.

Faculty pieces include a modern ballet, choreographed by Claudia Palumbo, utilizing the partnering talents of students Julia Cowan and Michael Auer. Janeen McKillip and Beth Campbell, also FSU students, complete the quartet of dancers.

The show will also feature "Dream Within A Dream," created by Carole Wiedebusch, a modern, thought-provoking number which reflects dream-related phenomena. Music will be a collage of works by Genesis, Vollenweider and others. Wiedebusch will also perform a solo to a selection from Andrew Lloyd Weber's "Phantom of the Opera" and a duet which promises to excite both the dancer and non-dancer alike.

S.M.S. Students To Participate In Summer Centers

Six students at Southern Middle School have been accepted as participants in the Summer Centers Program, sponsored annually by the Maryland State Department of Education. Students who show promise in terms of personal qualities and academic achievement are considered for the Summer Centers Program.

Lorrie Filsinger, Jenny Hesson, Christi Lumpkin, Maria Massi, Sarah Paugh and Keela Pike have been selected, while other students considered for the programs include Angie Comfort, Tammy Eisentrout, Jonathan Finkel, Candice Parker and April Paugh.

Lorrie Filsinger will attend the Introductory Experiences in Leadership Program at Washington College in Chestertown from July 30 to August 5, where she will focus on individual skill development with communication skills, leadership roles and styles, presentation skills, generating ideas, finding facts, planning projects, planning roles of group members, and organizing and conducting meetings and will make applications through "hands-on" experiences with group activities.

Jenny Hesson will participate in the Creative Writing and Music Program at Washington College from July 23 to August 5, which will introduce her to musical sounds and composition techniques; involve creating, performing, and evaluating musical compositions as well as interpreting and criticizing contemporary compositions; and involve writing poetry and stories relating to the composition of music.

Christi Lumpkin has been accepted for the International Studies Program at the University of Maryland Baltimore County, Catonsville from June 25 to July 7, in which she will develop a general understanding of such global problems as nuclear proliferation, arms control, international debt, population growth, and human rights; study the linguistic, and cultural, and diplomatic tools used to address these concerns in international negotiations; act as a representative team member of a foreign country, develop national and international policies and implement the policies through computer-assisted simulated negotiations; and exercise journalistic talent as correspondents for the international press.

Maria Massi will participate in the Music as a Creative Language Program at Goucher College in Towson from July 9 to July 22, in which she will explore intuitive and technical aspects of music composition through listening, discussion, reading and creative exercises, develop criteria for judging her own work, and make applications through "hands-on" experiences with any available tools, such as a synthesizer or computer, relevant to her compositional goals.

Sarah Paugh and Keela Pike will attend the Critical and Creative Thinking Historical Explorations Program at Washington College from July 9 to July 22, where they will research, interview and visit the people and places of the historic Eastern Shore of Maryland, and will develop an appreciation of problem solving methods used by past and present day historians while conducting historical research on a topic of interest with emphasis on life in an 18th century town.

Census Bureau Seeks Employees

The Census Bureau is looking for nearly 5,000 temporary employees in Maryland to serve as clerks, enumerators and office managers during the 1990 Census. Senator Paul Sarbanes and Senator Barbara A. Mikulski said that some of these jobs are available immediately.

"The Census provides an opportunity for Marylanders to earn good wages while assisting in an effort of national importance," said Sarbanes. "Census results are used by all levels of government, business and civic leaders to make responsive and responsible plans for the future.

"The Census counts a lot. And if we want Maryland to count with the Federal government, we have to start organizing now to get our count out. I would heartily encourage Marylanders who want to help their country and could use the part-time work, to consider applying for one of these jobs," added Mikulski.

At a meeting with the Maryland Congressional Delegation, officials from the Census Bureau said that the district offices recently opened in Annapolis and Towson are in need of clerks and enumerators effective immediately. These positions are compensated at rates from $5.00 to $6.00 per hour. Additional offices are expected to open this October in Wicomico, Montgomery, Prince George's and Washington counties as well as two Baltimore City locations. Each of these offices will employ six management-level staff plus hundreds of clerks and enumerators.

Marylanders interested in applying for work in Garrett County should contact the U.S. Bureau of the Census, Hampton Plaza Complex, 300 East Joppa Road, Towson, Maryland, 21204; telephone (301) 938-8383.

Byron Supports Base Closings

U.S. Congresswoman Beverly B. Byron (D-MD) supported the Base Closing Commissions recommendations today by voting against a House Resolution to disapprove the recommendations of the Commission on Base Realignment and Closure as submitted to the Defense Secretary on December 29, 1988. The measure was defeated 381-43.

"As a member of the House Armed Services Committee and Chairman of the Subcommittee on Military Personnel and Compensation, I strongly believe that there are several bases in this country and abroad that need to be closed," said Rep. Byron. "I believe that the Commission has done an adequate job in analyzing and selecting these installations for closure or realignment."

The commission's recommendations affect 145 domestic military installations. Under the commission's plan, 87 bases would be closed completely, 5 would be closed in part, and 53 would experience a change, either an increase or a decrease in activity. The commission predicts the total annual savings to be $693.6 million.

"I am one of a few Members in the House who would profit from the commission's recommendations. Fort Detrick's Army Medical Research and Development Command is recommended to receive around 100 military and 86 civilian personnel from the Letterman Army Institute of Research in San Francisco. The proposal is for Fort Detrick's Medical Command to help support programs in animal care, pathology, drug screening, toxicology, blood research, and environmental physiology. Although I support the commission's recommendations, I am concerned with the costs involved in realigning this particular facility. The Army is projecting the cost of to be around $76-$100 million for the realignment to Fort Detrick. It is also my understanding that the Presidio of San Francisco where Letterman Army Institute is located would be turned over to the Department of the Interior, National Parks Service. I hope that some type of medical facility will remain at the Presidio," said Rep. Byron.

Also in Maryland, Fort Meade is considered for partial closure. The range and training areas, including the airfield (approximately 9,000 acres south of Maryland Route 198) are recommended for closure and disposal. A commission has been set up in Anne Arundel County to determine how to best to use that land.

The Base Closing Commission also recommends the closure of the portion of Ft. Holabird occupied by the Criminal Records Center of the Criminal Investigation Command. Relocation to Ft. Belvoir will consolidate split functions, thereby improving mission effectiveness and efficiency. The commission also recommends closure for the former Nike site at the Aberdeen Proving Ground. This land is licensed to the State of Maryland for the use of the Army National Guard and is used for training and support of the Field Operating Activity.

New 4-H Building To Be Dedicated At College Park

The second week of May will see old-timers recalling 75 years of accomplishment by the Cooperative Extension Service. But 43,630 Maryland youth will be looking ahead when a new building, housing the Maryland 4-H Center, is officially dedicated May 10 at the University of Maryland in College Park.

Built at no expense to the university, the $829,000 one-story structure is the culmination of a 15-year effort by adult volunteers to provide a permanent headquarters for the Maryland 4-H Club Foundation, plus offices and meeting rooms to be used by state 4-H faculty of the University of Maryland's Cooperative Extension Service. A large conference room will accommodate 100 persons, theater style.

Formal dedication ceremonies will begin at 11 a.m. on May 10 in front of the new building, near a plaque honoring the memory of Florence Arabella Crook Blaisdell, a former Howard County resident who loved children.

Principal speakers will be introduced by F. Grove Miller of North East, a Cecil County dairy farmer and longtime president of the Maryland 4-H Club Foundation. Dr. John S. Toll, chancellor of the University of Maryland System, will give welcoming remarks.

Dr. Toll will be followed by Peter F. O'Malley of Mitchellville, a Prince George's County attorney, and James R. Moxley Jr., of West Friendship, a Howard County developer. O'Malley is chairman of the state Board of Regents, and Moxley chairs the building committee of the Maryland 4-H Club Foundation.

Three administrators from the University of Maryland's Office for Agricultural Affairs and Cooperative Extension Service also will make short presentations and assist with a ribbon-cutting ceremony. Several state and national political leaders are expected to participate.

Members of the state 4-H Teen Council will escort visiting dignitaries to their seats and stage the release of 200 helium-filled balloons. Jonathan White, 17, of East Baltimore, president of the Teen Council, is expected to read a congratulatory letter from President George Bush.

A dozen members of The New Beginning, Maryland's official 4-H entertainment group, will provide music during the dedication and a reception afterward.

The new 6,000-square foot Maryland 4-H Center is located at 3740 Metzerott Road, just off Universary Boulevard in upper Prince George's County. College Park Woods separates it from the University of Maryland System's headquarters in the Wilson H. Elkins building at 3300 Metzerott Road, Adelphi, Md. The Avrum Gudelsky Veterinary Center for the Virginia-Maryland Regional College of Veterinary Medicine is under construction near the new 4-H building.

Amy F. Leber, resource development coordinator for the Maryland 4-H Club Foundation, reports that original funding for the new building was provided by a state bond bill passed by the Maryland General Assembly in 1984 and by sale proceeds from the Blaisdell family farm in Howard County.

Volunteers have solicited private donations for furnishings. Their accomplishments exemplify the reasons for observing National Volunteer Week (April 9-15 in 1989).

Organized in 1959, the Maryland 4-H Foundation conducts and coordinates fund-raising activities with grant proposals and a volunteer network of adult boosters. The foundation supports 4-H youth activities and programs throughout the state. It also underwrites college scholarships and award trips for outstanding or deserving 4-H members.

LOCAL LEGION MAKES DONATIONS TO HANDICAPPED CHILDREN — Proctor Kildow Post 71 recently donated $400 to the handicapped children of Garrett County. The money was raised by Janice Wolf, Eloise Ratliff, and Debi Dixon. They sold Easter eggs that were constructed of poster board, designed, and then displayed at the post lounge. Donations were presented as follows: Joan Uphole, a teacher at Southern High School, received a $100 check for the Severely Profoundly Handicapped; Robert Crowe, a teacher at SHS, received a $100 check for the Trainably Mentally Retarded; and Jackie Stuck, a teacher at Northern Middle School, received a $200 check for the Continum Personal Adjustment Class. In the above photo, left to right, Debi Dixon, fundraising chairman, is shown presenting checks to Robert Crowe and Joan Uphole. Also pictured is Art Refosco, SHS principal, and Janice Wolf, designer of the Easter eggs that were sold. In the photo below Jackie Stuck (left) accepts a check from Debi Dixon.

Brochure On Record-Keeping Now Available

A free brochure providing guidelines on organizing financial records is now available from the Maryland Association of Certified Public Accountants (MACPA). The brochure, "Keeping Financial Records," is being introduced during National Consumers Week, April 23-29.

"None of us is exempt from the responsibility of organized recordkeeping," said Robert L. Bovitz, chairman of the American Committee. "In today's world, individuals must keep tax, personal and consumer records. Each consumer has his or her own system of recordkeeping, but simplicity and consistency are two important elements of any system. Your chances for a recordkeeping system that works effectively are greater if you keep the system simple and consistent," he continued.

"Keeping Financial Records" is produced by the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants in cooperation with the United States Office of Consumer Affairs (USOCA). Consumers are offered general suggestions on recordkeeping and guidelines on what documents they need to retain and how long to hold onto them. Besides citing which documents are needed for tax purposes, the brochure also discusses the importance of organizing personal and consumer records.

Forestry Boards Meet To Discuss Moth Program

Representatives from the forestry boards in the four western counties of Maryland met April 14 at Greenbrier State Park in Washington County to continue their efforts to try to establish a cost share program to help private woodland owners defray the costs of spraying their woodland for gypsy moth. John Forman, chairman of the Garrett Forestry Board, represented the Garrett Board on the committee.

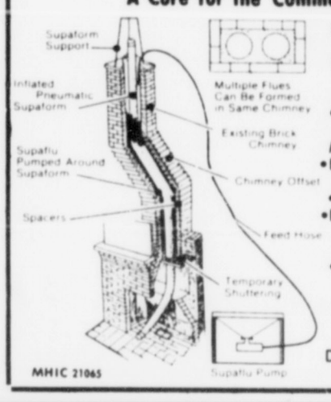

Dr. Charles Puffenburger and Bob Tichenor from the Maryland Department of Agriculture and Jim Roberts, state forester, Maryland Forest, Park and Wildlife Service, attended the meeting and explained how the present Gyspsy Moth program is funded. The Board members asked questions about how they could help get increased funding to allow more privately owned woodland to be sprayed.

The Forestry Boards have already contacted all of the senators and delegates in the western region asking them to support the Board's efforts in the legislature. All of the local legislators have responded favorably, so the Boards are planning to sponsor a legislative tour, to show the legislators first hand the damage done by gyspy moth.

The Board members also discussed the need to keep private landowners informed, and it was decided to hold information workshops in each county. "The threat of gypsy moth is a very serious threat to the oak forests in Maryland, and woodland owners are going to be faced with some very hard decisions," a MFPWS spokesman said. "The proposed workshops will hopefully give landowners the information they need to make good management decisions."

"Adopt-A-Dump" Program Noted By Commissioners

The Garrett County commissioners have designated this Saturday, April 29, as "Adopt-A-Dump" Day in Garrett County. The commissioners issued the decree in conjunction with the Maryland Association of Counties (MACO).

"Garrett County is an area of great beauty," the commissioners stated. "Unfortunately, parts of Garrett County are marred by unsightly illegal dump sites. Adopt-A-Dump Day is a great way for citizen groups in Garrett County to become involved in ridding Garrett County of this problem."

"Adopt-A-Dump" activities in association with the Governor's Million Marylanders Program and the Chesapeake Clean-up Campaign (CCC) help improve the health of the Chesapeake Bay. Ninety-five percent of the land in Maryland drains into the Bay. "When a group cleans up a dump site near a stream, they are not only helping rebeautify Garrett County, they are also helping ensure that the Chesapeake Bay remains a great resource for Maryland," stated one commissioner.

Citizen groups will be assigned a clean-up site by Terry Spear, "Adopt-A-Dump" county coordinator for Garrett County. Information will be provided concerning proper disposal of trash. All trash will be disposed of properly at the county landfill.

Citizens and groups interested in helping by volunteering for "Adopt-A-Dump" should contact Terry Spear at 334-3988.

Civic Club Meets. Hears Talk On School Renovation

The Civic Club of Oakland held a luncheon meeting April 18 at Favorites Restaurant, Oakland. The president, Mrs. Lollie Fridinger, gave the invocation.

Mrs. Martha Jachowski, 2nd vice president, introduced Dr. Jerome Ryscavage and Clarence Stem who gave a presentation on the proposed renovations at Northern and Southern high schools and facts pertaining to the referendum to authorize the sale of bonds to fund these projects.

Mrs. Jachowski gave a short report, with a diagram, indicating the number of volunteer hours given by the club members and number of members in each category. Total number of volunteer hours is 6,580 in 26 organizations, including work for the Civic Club.

Officers elected were Roberta Anderson, recording secretary, and Ann Grant, treasurer. Installation of these new officers will take place at the Club's May meeting.

Mrs. Fridinger informed the membership that Mrs. Frances Riley, former president, had been nominated for Maryland Federation of Women's Club's "Outstanding Club Woman." All nominees will receive a certificate of nomination at the State convention April 24 with the winner to be announced at that time.

The recipient of the club's Hugh O'Brian Youth Foundation (HOBY) is Molly Ramsey, a student at Northern High School.

Upon the approval of the membership contributions to the following community organization will be made: Garrett County Memorial Hospital, Garrett Lakes Arts Festival, Habitat For Humanity, House of Hope, Literacy Council of Garrett County, Garrett County Chapter of the American Red Cross, The Ruth Enlow Library, Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad, Cooperative Extension Service 4-H, Boy Scout Troop #31, The Maryland Salem Children's Trust, Hospice of Garrett County, Garrett County Arts Council, and Greater Oakland Business Association (GOBA).

In addition to the above, a memorial scholarship was established in the name of a former club president, Helen Baumgartner. The Club has sponsored a Patience Grant Memorial Scholarship at GCC for a number of years.

It was announced that Mrs. Fridinger and Mrs. Marin Day, former president, would be attending the Maryland Federation of Women's Clubs convention at Hunt Valley April 23-25.

The next meeting will be at the Will O' The Wisp, Deep Creek Lake, on May 30 at 12:30 p.m. State and district officers will be the guests of the Club. Mrs. Martha Hyson, Western District president, will install the new officers. Martin Heise will entertain with a musical program. Mrs. Faye Denison is in charge of table decorations.

Limited Number Of Seed Packets Now Available

The Department of Natural Resources' Forest, Park and Wildlife Service (FPWS) announces that a limited number of free seed packets for wildlife plantings will be available from April 13 through April 28. A variety of seed-types will be offered in this statewide, public "wildlife habitat" program aimed especially at farmers and large-lot owners. Three different kinds of packets contain: 1)buckwheat, 2)wild game food sorghum, and 3)mixture of pearl and German millet. Each packet will plant 1/16 acre. Planting instructions are included. Quail, pheasants, sparrows, finches, buntings and towhees are among the wildlife that will benefit.

Quantity is limited; therefore packets will be distributed on a first-come, first-served basis. One individual may obtain one each of the three different packets and no more. Persons obtaining wildlife seed packets must provide their name, address and telephone number of FPWS. Service staff will make random property checks during summer months to insure that seeds were used as intended.

Wildlife seed packets may be picked up at the Garrett Soil Conservation District Office in the Garrett County Courthouse, Room 355, in Oakland from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Wildlife seed packets have been distributed to the public by FPWS for the past two years. The Farm Game Advisory Committee, which designed the Seed Packet Program, encourages Maryland landowners to plant for and maintain wildlife habitat throughout the state. This citizens committee provides advice to FPWS about ways to promote habitat management for traditional wild farm game animals, quail, rabbits, pheasants and doves, on private land.

Management Of Medications To Be Program Topic

Adults over the age of sixty make up approximately 11.5% of the population of the United States, yet their medication use accounts for 25-30% of total U.S. drug expenditures. Their risk of adverse drug reactions is almost double that of adults 30 to 40 years of age. Health care professionals must be increasingly aware of the signs of medication problems in older adults and be able to seek creative solutions to these problems.

It is for this reason that Allegany Community College's Center for Continuing Education and the Cumberland Area Health Education Center are cosponsoring a continuing education program on "Medication Management for Older Adults: Problem Solving Strategies." The program will be held on Tuesday, May 9, from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the Center for Continuing Education, Allegany Community College, Willowbrook Road, Cumberland. The program is endorsed by the Allegany/Garrett Pharmacy Association, the Washington County Pharmacy Association and the Maryland Gerontological Association.

The course is designed to assist nurses, pharmacists social workers, dieticians, health educators, nursing home staff and other health professionals to understand the ways that medications are metabolized in overview of the aging process and medications, common drug problems among the elderly, psychoactive drugs and older adults, diet and medications and new technologies for medication management and patient education.

Presenters will be Madeline Feinberg, Pharm., B.S.; Kathleen Gondek, M.S., and Beverly Yachmetz, Pharm., B.S. from the University of Maryland School of Pharmacy. Local panelists are Eugene Makela, Pharm. D., Former Director of Clinical Pharmacy Services at the Thomas B. Finan Center and recently appointed to the faculty of the West Virginia University School of Pharmacy; Patrick C. Healy, M.P.H., R.D., Chief Clinical Dietician, Memorial Hospital and Medical Center; and John Balch, Pharm., B.S., Owner, Bedford Road Pharmacy in Cumberland.

Six continuing education credits will be awarded to pharmacists who complete the course by the Maryland Pharmacy Continuing Education Coordinating Council. The Maryland Board of Examiners of Nursing Home Administrators has approved the course for six hours of continuing education credit. In addition, Allegany Community College will award 0.6 CEU's to all other persons completing the course.

The Cumberland Area Health Education Center is cosponsoring the program under a grant from the Department of Health and Human Services, Bureau of Health Professions, Area Health Education Center Division. The grant entitled, "Rural Initiatives in Preventive Care for Older Adults," provides training for health professionals on ways that they can incorporate preventive health care strategies into clinical practice with older adults. The Cumberland Area Health Education Center is part of the Maryland Statewide Medical Education and Training System through the University of Maryland at Baltimore.

The fee for the program is $20.00 which includes all course materials, lunch and processing of continuing education credits.

For more information, persons should contact Kathy Powell at (301) 777-9150 or Donna Walbert at (301)724-7700. Registration deadline is May 1.

Unclaimed Funds Ads Generate 2,300 Inquiries

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein said the Unclaimed Property Section of his office received more than 2,300 inquiries last week as a result of advertising 19,975 names of apparent rightful owners of unclaimed bank accounts and other money.

The ads, which are also running in newspapers this week, are attempting to locate owners of approximately $13 million in unclaimed funds. "If you see your name or the name of someone you know, there are instructions at the top of the advertisement telling you how to contact our office," Goldstein said.

The comptroller noted that the unclaimed funds being advertised are bank accounts, wages, security deposits, uncashed checks and the contents of safe deposit boxes which have been unclaimed for five years. Banks and other companies are required by Maryland law to notify the Comptroller's Office of those accounts.

If the funds remain unclaimed, the money is transferred to the state. "However, that doesn't mean the money is lost to its rightful owner," Goldstein said. "Under Maryland's custodial law, the rightful owner or legitimate heir can claim the funds at any time in the future."

Prime-time soap fans get set for trivia quiz

By John Haakenson

By now, half the world knows the answer to television's most famous question—"Who shot J.R.?" (For cave dwellers and polar ice-cap explorers, it was Kristen, Sue Ellen's sister.)

But there are other questions that can be asked about Dallas, television's longest-running, prime-time soap opera. Here's a little quiz for all the folks who plan their Friday nights around that CBS monster hit, and also for those Dynasty fanatics:

1. What do J.R. Ewing's initials stand for?
2. Which of these Ewing women did not marry into the family—Sue Ellen, Lucy, Ellie, Pam, or all of them?
3. Sue Ellen had a sister who had an affair with J.R. Who portrayed the sister?
4. Bobby Ewing had a half-brother named Ray, Cliff, J.R. or Jock?
5. Who was the second actress to play Miss Ellie?
6. Which of the following had a fatal heart attack while having sex with Alexis Carrington—Cecil, Jeff, Mark, Adam, the Philadelphia 76ers?
7. What did Fallon and Kirby have in common?
8. Name the actor who originated the role of Stephen Carrington on Dynasty.
9. Who was the first black actress to be a regular on Dynasty?
10. Blake's majordomo was named John, Paul, George, Ringo or Joseph?
11. Heather Locklear played Stephen's vile wife. Her name was Bobby Jo, Sarah Rose, Sammy Jo, or Joe Ed?
12. Kirby's real father was which—Blake, Joseph, Durwood or Grant?

Larry Hagman as J.R.

TV Q&A

Hands held the secret for Roy Thinnes' character

By Polly Vonetes

Q: I'm a big fan of Tracy Nelson, who plays Sister Steve on Father Dowling Mysteries. Can you please give me her address? Does she have a husband and children? —C. Bessette, Palmer, Alaska.

A: Tracy Nelson was born on Oct. 25, 1963, in Santa Monica, Calif. She is the daughter of the late Rick Nelson and actress Kris Harmon. She was married in July '88 to actor William Moses. They have no children. Write to her c/o Father Dowling Mysteries, NBC-TV Audience Services, 3000 W. Alameda Ave., Burbank, Calif. 91523.

Q: The short Mexican that played the gang leader in Hill Street Blues and then in Colors*—sorry I don't know his name—is it true he died in a car accident last year? —Mrs. S.R. Lemmons, Cabot, Ark.*

A: Trinidad Silva, who portrayed gang leader Jesus Martinez in Hill Street Blues and "Frog" in Colors, was hit by a drunken driver Aug. 2, 1988. Silva, 38, was killed instantly. His wife and 2-year-old son suffered minor injuries.

Q: I grew up at Rockford, Colo., and during the 9th grade in high school I met and had a crush on a girl from a neighboring town. Her name is Twila Thorp. I have seen her name on movie credits and a couple of weeks ago her name was mentioned on Johnny Carson's show. I have exhausted all means of locating her. Can you help? How many girls have the name Twila Thorp? —Duane Renfrow, Montrose, Colo.

A: Oh, Duane. There is nothing I would like to do more than to help you find the girl of your dreams. I don't know how many girls are named Twila Thorp—I couldn't find any. I did find a Twyla Tharp who has a dance company and is a popular choreographer. I suggest you write to her c/o American Ballet Theater, 890 Broadway, New York, N.Y. 10003, unless you are sure of the spelling of her name.

Roy Thinnes

Q: We have a small wager riding on this one. Roy Thinnes starred in a series called The Invaders. The question we have is: How could he tell an invader from an earthling? I say that the little finger was missing from one of the hands of each invader. —Elizabeth Rockwell, Anchorage, Alaska.

A: Indentifying the invaders was tricky. Their hands were used in identifying them but not because of missing fingers. Sometimes they would have slightly mutated hands, such as a little finger jutting out awkwardly.

Partners against crime

The following partners had a single goal—to investigate crimes and put the bad guys behind bars. Still, these working pals were strikingly dissimilar. Consider the combinations: neat - messy; man - woman; black - white; married - single. As different as they were, however, they worked together like perfect cogs in a wheel to accomplish the mission. And they had fun along the way, which should count for something. Grab a friend and see if the two of you can pair these well-known partners.

Chevy Chase starts month in 'Funny Farm'

By Stoney Black

An urban couple find themselves trapped in a New England community from hell and two California babes determine the course of their sexual lives in this bi-coastal week of brain-jellying fun. Need we further proof that this surely is a kinder, gentler America?

Norman Rockwell on a bad acid trip could never have envisioned the less than utopian town into which Chevy Chase and Madolyn Smith have moved. Redbud has all the charm of fun-filled Libya, and it's enough to send anyone to the Funny Farm, premiering Saturday, May 6, on HBO.

With a prize-winning adventure novel looming inside his head, Andy Farmer (Chase) resigns his job as a sportswriter and heads for the tranquility of the country. But the house of his dreams contains a corpse, a snake-filled pond and a phone that literally costs by the call.

Meanwhile, on the West Coast, Lea Thompson and Victoria Jackson have a decision to make. Shall they live the celibate lives of nuns or carry on their disease-seeking habit of Casual Sex?

Will they find meaningful, significant others? Will they succumb to carnal lust? Will Erica marry again? All these questions, except maybe one, will be answered when HBO and Showtime premiere Casual Sex? on Monday, May 1.

Hart Honored

Mary Hart has been selected as the recipient of the first-ever Special Achievement Award by Circus Fans Association of America. The announcement was made by Dale Riker, National Secretary of the 62-year-old organization, which is dedicated to recognizing the artistry and creativity of circus performers worldwide.

The award stems from Hart's starring role in ABC's Sunday night series Great Circuses of the World. Commenting on the award she said, "I am grateful to Circus Fans Association of America for this award. Having spent three months learning to walk the high wire for Circus of the Stars, I think I really understand and appreciate the discipline and expertise circus performers need to have. As a kid I dreamed of running away to join the circus, and as an adult with Great Circuses, I now have a chance to do so."

No Reflection

Actor Jim Byrnes, who plays wheelchair-bound Lifeguard in the series Wiseguy, is handicapped in real life. Byrnes, who wears prosthetic legs to get around, said, "People come up to me all the time and ask, 'How do they shoot the opening credits to the show so it looks like you don't have legs?' " Byrnes answers good-naturedly, "It's done with mirrors." He notes, "Some people don't realize that I'm really disabled."

HOROSCOPE

April 30 through May 6

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20)
A new friend gives you a new lease on life. Responsibilities increase at home, but for the good of all. Money worries subside in the next week.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20)
Exercise is an absolute must this week. Take advantage of the great weather and get outside. Fresh air and exercise will lift low spirits.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22)
Take advantage of a cash windfall and spend a little on yourself. A new haircut, or some added pieces to your wardrobe are a must.

LEO (July 23 - August 22)
A new attitude will send you on a spiritual high. Don't let negative people dictate your life. If they can't say anything nice, ignore them.

VIRGO (August 23 - September 22)
An associate at work could be a trustworthy friend. A special dinner this week will bring back old memories; perhaps of a long lost love.

LIBRA (September 23 - October 22)
Send in that sweepstakes entry, you never know. Friends will ask you on a special weekend, go and have a great time. You need to be careful in the car this week.

SCORPIO (October 23 - November 21)
Be sure to lock windows and doors at home. No need for paranoia, but it would be best to take precautions. A relative's health improves.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 - December 21)
Saving money will prove fruitful later on. Be wary of authority figures that offer you lots of money. It could be a hoax.

CAPRICORN (December 22 - January 19)
Things are not as bad as they might look. You will find happiness where you least expect. A friend needs assurance that his secrets are safe with you.

AQUARIUS (January 20 - February 18)
An unexpected guest will have you dancing in the aisles. Take time out for a great movie and some popcorn this week.

PISCES (February 19 - March 20)
Money, money, money—if you would save it, you would have it. Set up some long-term goals and things will be better soon.

ARIES (March 21 - April 19)
Be kind to strangers this week. One could give you an unexpected windfall later on. An elderly person needs your attention immediately.

JoBeth Williams, no stranger to roles with heavy social content, tackles another such role in My Name Is Bill W., Sunday, April 30, on ABC.

JoBeth Williams co-stars in 'My Name Is Bill W.'

By Linda Sparkman

JoBeth Williams was born and raised in Houston, Texas, where her father, an opera singer, instilled in her a love for the arts.

After graduation from Brown University (with the intent of doing graduate work in English), her passion for acting took over and, leaving academia behind, she joined the prestigious Trinity Repertory Theatre in Rhode Island. Work in other regional companies followed, and after a year's stint on Guiding Light, she made her film debut as the lady lawyer in Kramer vs. Kramer.

In 1982, after appearances in other films, two important performances brought her to major national attention: the role of the terrified housewife in Steven Spielberg's Poltergeist and the part of the lady sheriff in Endangered Species.

On television, Williams has accepted lesser roles in works which make a social comment, such as Kids Don't Tell and The Day After. She earned Emmy nominations for her performances in Adam and the miniseries Baby M and starred in Adam: His Song Continues and Murder Ordained.

Sunday, April 30, Williams co-stars in ABC's My Name Is Bill W., the story of Bill Wilson and Dr. Bob Smith, co-founders of Alcoholics Anonymous. Williams plays Bill's wife, Lois, who stood by him even through his alcoholism.

Although Williams is not limiting herself to socially conscious works, this particular project meant a lot to her. "I really hope that when this airs, it will have an impact on people; that it will help people find courage in their own lives," she said. "When you see what Lois, Bill and Bob went through, and how they survived, and what they ended up giving to humankind—I think it's inspiring. They chose to remain anonymous for all their lives, but now their story can be told—and I think it deserves to be told—because what they did has had such a far-reaching effect on so many millions of people."

TIME OUT

Kentucky Derby, gymnastics among week's unusual sports

By Jeff Thompson

The Kentucky Derby and international gymnastics are among some of the more unusual sports events airing on the networks this week.

ABC presents the first event of thoroughbred horse racing's Triple Crown with live coverage of the 115th Kentucky Derby from historic Churchill Downs in Louisville, Ky. on Saturday, May 6.

In 1989, ABC Sports will present live coverage of all three legs of the Triple Crown for the fourth consecutive year. The other two events—the Preakness Stakes from Pimlico Race Course in Baltimore, Md., and the Belmont Stakes from Belmont Park in New York—air May 20 and June 10, respectively.

Additionally, racing fans will want to tune to ESPN, where specials prior to each race will feature not only the news pertaining to the events, but all of the attendant pageantry associated with them as well.

Also on ABC will be a one-hour live gymnastics showdown between teams from the USA and the USSR. The event is being held in Columbus, Ohio.

Basketball playoffs are beginning on CBS when that network presents live coverage of the two first-round NBA playoff games in a double header slated for Sunday, April 30.

Math Scholarship Winners Include Oakland Student

Top finishers in the fourth annual Allegany Community College Mathematics Scholarship Contest, which recognizes achievement among area high school students, were recently honored at the college. A Southern High School student was the top finisher in the event, which featured more than 100 high school juniors from a dozen schools in Maryland, Pennsylvania and West Virginia competing for scholarship awards by writing a math test earlier in the month.

The first place winner was Sanjeev Magoon, Oakland, of Southern High School. Andrea Heithoff of Allegany High won second place and Jeff Shoemaker of Salisbury-Elk Lick High School was third.

Others among the top 11 finishers were: fourth, Dave Hijab of Bishop Walsh High School; fifth, Brian Creps of Bedford High; sixth, Sheldon Maust of Northern High School; seventh, Ahalya Nava of Bishop Walsh; eighth (tie), Justin Nave of Allegany and Dan Neil of Bedford; 10th (tie), Jenny Biller of Frankfort and Robbi Wilson of Fort Hill.

Allegany High School took top honors in team competition.

As the top three finishers, Magoon, Heithoff and Shoemaker were awarded ACC scholarships for $1,000, $500 and $250, respectively. They also win, as do the others, $100 scholarship awards for study at ACC.

The 11 may use their scholarships before their high school graduation, as early placement students, or after, as regular college students.

In an awards ceremony, Dr. Donald L. Alexander commended the 11 students for their achievement. "Our nation needs to develop math talent," said Alexander, who encouraged the students to continue building upon their skills.

Garrett County Students Attend Chemical Program

The Garrett County Sheriff's Department, through funding received from local businesses and civic organizations, provided Garrett County students in grades 3, 4, and 5 with Creative Safety Products' Officer Phil Chemical Awareness Program last week.

This year this program replaced the Maryland Alcohol and Drug Abuse program which has been previously used for grades 4 and 5. Chief Deputy Harland Tichnell was the coordinator of this event for the Garrett County Schools.

The Officer Phil program is an advanced presentation that attacks drug and alcohol abuse from a decision-making standpoint. While indicating to the children that there are many ways to make a decision, the character, usually a robot or ventriloquist, shows them that the best way to make a decision is to evaluate and weigh all the available information pertinent to a situation.

In addition to the animated presentation, each child also receives a "Say No To Drugs" workbook and an "I Am Special" calendar. The workbook features a poster contest that can result in a $100 United States Savings Bond winner.

This positive approach had its origins in Hackensack, N.J., in 1975 when Charles Congello, founder of Creative Safety Products, decided to act on his dream of developing a program dedicated to children and their well-being.

The firm offers two basic Officer Phil programs. One, for younger children, stresses such things as proper school and play behavior, and what to do when approached by strangers.

Creative Safety's other program, the one used in Garrett County Schools, deals with chemical awareness and is usually presented in four steps: discussion that identifies the problem; fact-sharing that outlines the problem; a plan of action to meet the problem; and conveying a positive image to children and urging them to be the best they can be.

The company uses a cast of animated characters to carry its message. They include Officer Phil, the main character; Li'l T.C.C., a talking Volkswagon; K-2-4, a space-aged robot; and Dreamchaser, a baby dinosaur.

A talented group of magicians, technicians, and ventriloquists use these animated characters to make a lasting impression on children.

The Creative Safety firm used talking space robot K-2-4 in most of their chemical awareness programs at Garrett County schools.

Joseph Ruglovsky, vice president of Creative Safety Products, states, "by appealing to the fantasy and play world of the youth, Creative Safety is able to give young people important information on chemical abuse, decision-making, values and responsibilites."

Heck's Gains New Support From Vendors

West Virginia-based discounter Heck's, Inc., hosted an informational meeting for its vendors on March 21 and 22 to discuss how the company is "Shaping Up for the Future."

The regional discount store chain, which has been operating under Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection since March 1987, filed an amended Plan of Reorganization in U.S. Bankruptcy Court in March. The plan calls for Heck's to emerge from bankruptcy in August 1989 and to return to profitability in 1990. During April, voting materials will be sent to creditors and shareholders. Confirmation hearings have been set for May 23, in time for Heck's 30th anniversary promotional celebration.

"Shaping Up for the Future" was the theme for the meeting, according to John Isaac, Heck's chairman and CEO, because the meeting was designed to "show our suppliers that our plan will get Heck's out of bankruptcy and keep Heck's out of bankruptcy."

The company's chief financial officer Maarten Hemsley added, "Emerging from Chapter 11, we will have a strong balance sheet and expect good operating results, so our vendors can continue to ship to us with confidence."

The attending vendors represented almost 100 companies that will account for more than 70 percent of the merchandise Heck's will sell this year, Hemsley said.

Both Hemsley and Isaac said this type of showing from the company's vendors is indicative of continuing support from Heck's suppliers. "They're enthusiastic about Heck's turnaround, or they wouldn't have come," Isaac said.

In addition to visiting a remodeled Heck's store, vendors toured the distribution center and viewed the new systems center, expected to be completed in May.

Heck's return to profitability will be aided by financial advice and an $8 million guaranty from The Hallwood Group, a New York-based investment banking firm specializing in company turnarounds. At the meeting Hallwood president Brian Troup said Heck's will have more than $50 million in net assets and only $24 million in long-term borrowing. He predicted Heck's will expand its operations by concentrating on regional discount retailing.

Heck's currently operates 55 stores in seven states, including one in Oakland, and has more than 2,600 employees. Hemsley said those stores will generate more than $220 million in sales this year. He confirmed that all store closings under the reorganization plan have been completed.

State, County Jobless Rates Rise In February

Between January and February, seasonal conditions caused Maryland's estimated unemployment rate to increase from 4.0 percent to 4.2 percent, although job recalls increased employment opportunities in the state, according to statistics released by the Maryland Department of Economic and Employment Development (DEED).

Meanwhile, Garrett County's jobless rate increased from one full percentage point, 9.7 percent in January to 10.7 percent in February. The February 1988 rate, however, was 12.5 percent.

Since February 1988, employment opportunities increased by 50,200 jobs across the state, particularly in the services and government industries, while the unemployment rate dropped by 0.7 percentage points, from 4.9 percent to 4.2 percent. This expansion helped reduce the number of residents unemployed by 16,400 workers and helped to support the 57,265 additional workers who found work during that time.

In January, Maryland's unemployment rate, at 4.0 percent, ranked eighth lowest nationally and was second to Delaware's 3.4 percent in the mid-Atlantic region.

Seasonal conditions during the month caused layoffs in construction and among holiday hires in the trade sector. The layoffs caused a drop of an estimated 12,849 persons from the employment rolls. However, that decrease was absorbed by a drop of 10,642 persons from the labor force, which left an unemployment increase of only 2,207 persons.

"The improvement in employment opportunities during the month were due primarily to the reopening of schools following mid-winter breaks," said J. Randall Evans, secretary of DEED. "Recalls were evident also in related industries such as educational services and local transportation services while other employment opportunities rose in electronic equipment and in business and health services," he said.

Of the four regions within the state, Western Maryland experienced the most significant improvement. Since February 1988, employment has grown by 3,493 persons as the labor force remained virtually static, increasing by only 917 persons and unemployment declining by 2,576 persons.

Over the months, however, the reduction in Western Maryland's unemployment rate, from 8.0 percent to 7.6 percent, was due largely to a labor force reduction of 1,202 persons.

The Balance of State also recorded a slightly lower unemployment rate, dropping from 6.6 percent in January to 6.5 percent in February as a result of a declining labor force.

In the Maryland suburbs of the Washington, D.C. metropolitan area, the unemployment rates in every local jurisdiction rose, with the exception of Montgomery County where the rate remained the same at 2.2 percent.

The unemployment rate recorded for the Baltimore metropolitan area increased slightly from 4.4 percent to 4.5 percent. In that area, the rates for all local jurisdictions increased, except for Howard County which remained the same at 2.0 percent.

Statewide, the unemployment rates for all local jurisdictions ranged from a low of 2.0 percent in Howard County to a high of 12.9 percent in Somerset County.

Top Trooper Asks Youth To Avoid Alcohol, Drugs

The Maryland State Police Trooper of the Year has issued a challenge to Maryland youth to avoid alcohol and drug abuse. Appearing on the Maryland State Police Radio Program, Trooper First Class Michael J. Fischer called on graduating high school seniors to set the example.

"Prom night, which is supposed to be a night for fun filled memories, can easily turn into a night of highway horror," TFC Fischer warned. "I challenge Maryland high school seniors to make a life-long pledge against alcohol and drug abuse and to share that pledge with family and friends."

The nine-year State Police veteran was named the 1988 Trooper of the Year during graduation exercises for the 98th Trooper Candidate Class at Maryland State Police headquarters in Pikesville.

Fischer is currently assigned to the staff of the Field Operations Bureau at headquarters. The Trooper of the Year award is presented yearly to agency members who have demonstrated the ability to consistently achieve or exceed the highest standards of the police profession.

"It's important for young people to remember that what they do today will greatly influence their lives tomorrow," said TFC Fischer. "One reckless moment on the highway could lead to a lifetime of tragic memories."

Fischer is trained and certified in various speed, alcohol, and occupant protection enforcement programs. He is also a certified DWI instructor.

"The worst part of my job is having to knock on someone's door to tell them their son or daughter has just been killed in a drunk driving crash," said Fischer. "It produces a very empty feeling."

The Maryland State Police Radio Program is a weekly public service radio broadcast carried on approximately 50 radio stations in Maryland and the District of Columbia. The program is supported by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration and the Maryland Department of Transportation.

Portions of this program are also carried on the Maryland State Police Newsline, (301) 653-4275.

Darlene Seaman Becomes Bride Of Melvin Smith Jr. In July Event

Darlene Denise Seaman and Melvin Ernest Smith Jr. were united in a double-ring ceremony on July 30, 1988. The wedding took place at the United Methodist Church in McHenry with the Rev. Samuel R. Wachter officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David A. Seaman of McHenry. The groom is the son of Lois Brenneman, Kitzmiller, and Melvin E. Smith Sr., Oakland.

Escorted to the altar by her father and given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a gown of tissue taffeta and lace. The off-the-shoulder fitted bodice featured a sweetheart neckline detailed with sequins and Venice lace. The puffed sleeves were edged in Chantilly lace. Rows of Chantilly lace fell from the basque waist and extended to form a chapel-length train. The veil of sheer bridal illusion was held by a multi-pearl spray and trimmed with Chantilly lace.

Martha Glotfelty, friend of the bride's family, was the organist and Lana Brenneman, aunt of the groom, was the vocalist.

Donna Ludwig, Temple Hills, aunt of the bride, was the maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Brenda Piper and Kathleen Peterson, McHenry, both friends of the bride.

Junior bridesmaids were Jennifer Ludwig, cousin of the bride, and Danielle Sherwood, friend of the bride, both of McHenry. Theresa Serbia, cousin of the bride, was the flower girl.

The best man was Michael Ross, Oakland, friend of the groom. Groomsmen were Glenn Seaman, McHenry, brother of the bride, and Jerry Humberson, McHenry, friend of the groom. Danny Seaman, brother of the bride, was the junior groomsman.

Immediately following the ceremony, an outdoor reception was held at the home of Jerry Humberson in McHenry.

Following a honeymoon trip to Miami, Fla., the couple took up residence in McHenry.

The bride is a 1987 graduate of Northern High School, and is employed by Will O' the Wisp, Deep Creek Lake.

The groom is a 1984 graduate of Southern High School, and is employed as manager of "The Perfect Touch", McHenry.

Crystal Swauger, Robert Williams United In Double-Ring Ceremony

Crystal Lynn Swauger and Robert Wayne Williams were united in marriage during a double-ring ceremony on October 30, 1988, at the Oak Grove Church of the Brethren with the Reverend Donald Matthews officiating. Gay Rodeheaver played wedding selections prior to the service, and also served as accompanist for the vocalists. Nina Wagner sang "The Rose", and Dave Callis sang "There Is Love" and "The Lord's Prayer".

The bride is the daughter of Harold and Linda Swauger, Friendsville. The groom is the son of Twila Williams, Swanton.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents and escorted to the altar by her father. She was attired in a white satin floor-length gown with lace adorning the yoke, puffed sleeves, and chapel-length train. The yoke and stand-up neckline were accented with schiffli embroidery. A satin bow and streamers accented the back of the gown. Her headpiece was fashioned of silk flowers and seed pearls flowing to a fingertip length veil. She carried a cascading bouquet of silk white mums and royal blue miniature carnations accented with seed pearls.

Andy Fike, cousin of the bride, served as ring bearer. He wore a white tuxedo and carried the traditional lace pillow with the rings.

Cheryl Bender, sister of the groom, registered the guests. Morgan Rodeheaver and Brent Thomas were in charge of distributing programs and bird seed.

A reception followed the ceremony at the Deep Creek Fire Hall, where a buffet luncheon was served. The cake, baked by Norma Rodeheaver, was decorated with blue daisies. It featured a sparkling lighted fountain topped with the traditional bride and groom. The cake was served by Ruth Bowman and Sandy Lipscomb, aunts of the bride. Anna Marie Bowman and Sharon Custer, cousins of the bride, served coffee and punch.

Pre-wedding events for the bride included a bridal shower given by Nancy Fike, aunt of the bride, and Becky Fike, cousin of the bride.

Oakland Woman Found Guilty Of Bad Check Charges

Judge Jack Turney ordered a pre-sentence investigation for an Oakland woman found guilty of 12 counts of uttering bad checks.

Phyllis Donaldson Glotfelty, 19, was found guilty of 12 counts of uttering bad checks to area businesses. Twelve charges of theft were not prosecuted per plea agreement.

The checks were written over a period of two months, between December 10 and January 18 to businesses located in Oakland. The check amounts ranged between $15 and $75. A pre-sentence investigation was ordered.

Barbara Arlene Moats, McHenry, was fined $50 and sentenced to 11 months in the Garrett County Jail. Judge Turney then suspended ten months of the sentence and placed Moats on 24 months probation.

Moats had been found guilty of three counts of uttering bad checks to area businesses at an earlier trial and Judge Turney had ordered a pre-sentence investigation. One count of theft was not prosecuted. John R. Toston represented Moats.

A charge of illegally selling a pistol against Samuel Kevin Poland, 45, Oakland, was not prosecuted. The charge was filed by Deputy C.P. Nolan, Garrett County Sheriff's Department, after Poland apparently knowingly sold a pistol in November, 1988, to a person with a criminal record.

Charges of battery and alcoholic beverage intoxication against Timothy David Ford, 28, Oakland, were placed on the stet docket. The charges were filed by Roxanne Ford after an incident which occurred January 28. Robert C. Hesson represented Ford.

Two charges of destruction of property against Rufus Jackson Lewis, 61, Oakland, were placed on the stet docket. The charges were filed by Barbara Lewis after incidents which occurred in December.

Lewis was found guilty of one charge of battery. Judge Turney ordered a pre-sentence investigation. The charge was filed by Marvin Dean Lewis, after an incident which occurred on January 29, concerning Marvin Lewis' son.

The first bowling tournament for women was held in St. Louis, Missouri in 1917.

Debate Begins In U.S. Senate For 1990 Farm Bill

Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yeutter kicked off the 1990 farm bill debate with broad support of the "triple base" farm program concept, which is aimed at increasing planting flexibility and reducing government spending while retaining base acreage history.

"I happen to like that proposal conceptually," Yeutter told the Senate Agriculture Committee in the first official discussion of the next farm legislation. "One of our objectives should be to reduce the rigidity of our present programs," Yeutter said. "Farmers want and deserve more flexibility in what they plant and in the operation of their acreage reduction programs."

The secretary warned committee members and a packed committee room that the flexible planting program has a downside and any decisions on full USDA support of a "triple base" program would be based on a thorough examination by its commodities program division. That examination, however, cannot be completed until Richard Crowder is confirmed to lead that division, Yeutter said. Crowder's confirmation is expected soon.

Under the "triple base" plan, deficiency payments and loans would apply only to a specific percentage of permitted acres. The percentage set would be based on the needed level of budgetary savings.

A producer would have three categories of base acreage. The first category would be the permitted acres on which payments are made. The second category would be permitted acres on which no payments are made. These acres could be planted to any program or non-program crop, including soybeans. The producer would have the flexibility to decide which crop would be planted. The third category of acreage would be the idled or set aside.

An important feature of the program is that the producer would maintain his crop-base history. Another important feature is that the producer could recoup some of the lost deficiency payments through marketings of the crops planted on the category-two acreage. The government would reduce outlays by reducing the amount of acreage eligible for payments.

A downside to the program is that it allows program crop producers to switch acreage to non-program crops, increasing non-program crop acreage and possibly cutting those crop prices.

The "triple base" idea was first introduced by Rep. Charles Stenholm (D-Texas) during the 1985 farm bill debate. The idea received little support at that time. The concept is now, however, gaining in popularity primarily because of budget pressures. It is estimated the plan could have the same budgetary savings as a five percent reduction in target prices.

There is the possibility that support for the "triple base" concept may grow fast enough to affect the 1990 farm programs. A USDA analysis of "triple base" estimated approximately $800 million in Commodity Credit Corp. spending could be saved under the program. The analysis was based on limiting deficiency payments to 85 percent of permitted acreage.

The deficit reduction package agreed to by the White House and congressional leaders calls for a $600 million cut in farm spending for 1990. Some see the "triple base" plan as a means of meeting that target.

Farming In Maryland

Bernice Kepple, Farm Editor

Crop Intentions For '89 Noted

Maryland farmers intend to plant record acreage of soybeans for 1989 and also more corn, winter wheat, oats, barley and hay than in 1988. Rye and sweet potatoes will have fewer acres planted and tobacco acreage will remain unchanged from the 1988 level.

Based on intentions of farmers March 1, 1989, Maryland farmers intend to plant 540,000 acres of field corn, up four percent from 1988's 520,000 acres.

Soybean growers intend to plant a record 510,000 acres in 1989, 10 above the previous record 465,000 acres planted in 1988.

Winter wheat seeded in the fall of 1988 for harvest in 1989 totaled 215,000 acres, up 19 percent from 1988's 180,000 acres planted, and the largest acreage planted in 36 years. In 1953, 269,000 acres of winter wheat were planted.

Barley planted and to be planted is expected to total 82,000 acres, up three percent from the 80,000 acres planted in 1988.

Rye acreage seeded in 1988 for 1989 harvest at 40,000 acres is 31 percent below the 58,000 seeded in 1987 for 1988 harvest.

Oat acreage intentions are estimated at 22,000 acres for 1989, 10 percent above last year's 20,000 acres planted and the highest acreage planted since 1981 when 23,000 acres of oats were planted.

Sweet potato growers intend to plant 800 acres of sweet potatoes in 1989. This is 11 percent below 1988's 900 acres but equal to the 800 acres planted in 1987.

March Weather Summary

Temperatures averaged 43.7 degrees, which was 0.3 degrees above normal. There was no snow cover to protect plants from the periodic cold snaps. However, most freezing temperatures were mild, and no significant freeze damage has yet been reported. Precipitation for March averaged 5.01 inches over the state, 1.15 inches above normal.

Phytophthora Root Rot in Alfalfa

This is the worst year I have seen in some time for root rot in Alfalfa. I have been in several fields that lost more than 50% of the Alfalfa plants. Many of these fields appeared in excellent condition heading into the winter. Phytophthora root rot is easy to recognize. Pull up one of the plants. Root rot will remove the end of the tap root and start working its way back up the root. Also in most cases the hair roots will be absent. What can you do? About the only thing you can do is to plant Alfalfa varieties that have resistance to Phytophthora Root Rot. The fungus is soil borne and there is no practical treatment.

How Many Alfalfa Plants Are Enough?

Alfalfa is generally sown at the 15 to 18 lbs. per acre rate which will initially provide 75 to 90 seedings per sq. ft. However, about 40% of these seedings survive the first two months and about 50% of these plants will survive to harvest time. A good rule of thumb to use is as follows:

*Plants per sq. ft. first year, 11 to 18.

*Plants per sq. ft. 2nd and succeeding years, 7 to 8.

Lead Poisoning in Farm Animals

Lead poisoning is a very common cause of poisoning in farm animals. Cattle, sheep, and occasionally horses can be affected. There is marked species susceptibility to lead. In general, younger animals tend to be more susceptible to lead poisoning than older animals.

The sources of lead are abundant. Lead-containing paints are a common source. Lead in car batteries, solder, leaded windows and lead shot can also be potential sources. Automotive and certain mineral oils containing lead also seem attractive to young cattle. Linoleum, roofing felt, oil filters, and putty also contain lead. Boiled linseed oil used accidently as a laxative can also be considered a source of lead. Recently sprayed crops (lead parasiticide sprays) can cause serious losses in cattle grazing these areas. Farm animals near smelters or major highways are also at risk due to contamination of pastures with airborne lead particles.

Lead poisoning is not uncommon in April or May in Maryland. It would seem that cattle moved to pasture in the Spring have a tendency to investigate any trash in the pasture at that time. This curiosity on the part of cattle may explain the mild increase in the seasonal incidence of lead toxicity cases.

Soybeans Have Become State's Top Cash Crop

For the first time ever, soybeans were the top cash crop of Maryland farmers in 1988 with a total estimated value of $107.9 million topping the value of corn for grain by $23.3 million.

For 1989 the outlook is that soybean plantings in Maryland will set an all-time record of 510,000 acres and most likely will exceed the acreage of corn for grain.

The rise of soybeans to the position of number one cash crop and tops in acreage is plotted in figures released recently by the Maryland Agricultural Statistics Service (MASS) which is a cooperating agency of the Maryland Department of Agriculture (MDA).

An MDA staff member has estimated that corn for grain plantings in Maryland could be 445,000 acres for 1989, which, if realized, would have soybean acreage exceeding that of corn for grain in 1989 by 65,000 acres in the state.

According to Marylaid Secretary of Agriculture Vayne A. Cawley Jr. there are a number of reasons for the suge in soybeans.

"Beans lend themselves to our double cropping pattern and no-till and low till cultural practices," Mr. Cawley says, "in that a farmer can get two cash crops per year from the same fields. Soybeans double-cropped after wheat and barley is harvested, do will here.

"We have a big wheat planting of 215,000 acres and 82,000 acres of barley planted last fall so that's almost 300,000 acres available for late season soybean crops this year.

"But the two chief reasons for switching to soybeans probably involve money and droughts. Beans for many months have looked like a better money crop than corn according to future markets.

"Soybeans have also proved tougher in drought conditions in that they have made a money making crop despite the worst nature could throw at us in 1986, 1987 and 1988.

"In early July of 1988 our corn crops were dying and farmers wondered if they would be able to plant their late season soybeans. They gambled and planted them, we got some rain and soybeans averaged a yield of 31 bushels to the acre despite the drought, up almost nine bushels per acre from 1987.

"Corn on the other hand yielded only 65 bushels to the acre in 1988, down 13 bushels from 1987 and way off our 100-bushel per acre yields in normal years.

"Those beans last year toughed it out and brought the first profit to many a Maryland grain farmer's pocket in three years. No wonder soybeans are becoming the leading crop for Maryland.

"Wheat and barley yields were good last year as were prices. Farmers responded by increasing wheat and barley acreage for this year by 37,000 acres which have helped set the stage for our record soybean plantings this year.

"We are very fortunate also to have an eager buyer for both soybeans and corn in Maryland in the form of the huge poultry industry in Delmarva. Considering that Delmarva produces about 10 million four-pound chickens each week. Each chicken needs about eight pounds of corn and soybean based feed to grow out, so we have a very good customer for beans and corn," Mr. Cawley said.

FOOD FOR AMERICA — Under the guidance of Oakland FFA Advisor Steve Kisner and FFA Alumni Member Connie Hoalcraft, Oakland FFA members have been traveling to local elementary schools telling the story about the origin of the foods we eat. Recently, third graders at Broad Ford, Dennett Road, Crellin and Loch Lynn Elementary Schools have heard members Richard McCrobie (above), Elaine DeBerry (below), Randy Lucas and Dave Tracy explain where food comes from. Above, McCrobie distributes resource books to the students that teach about food in a way that is fun. The children were also given stickers of ducks and lambs. McCrobie said the students asked some very good questions, and that the FFA members were surprised and pleased to find that most students in this area have a very good idea about the origin of their food. Below, DeBerry points out to one third-grade class the parts of a "disected cheeseburger," and tells them what is involved in growing and producing the ingredients that go into each part of one of their favorite foods.

Heritage Trust Act Opposed By Am. Farm Bureau

Proposed legislation to enable federal, state and local governments to acquire $1 billion worth of land annually represents a "direct assault" on landowner's private property rights, the American Farm Bureau Federation told a House Interior subcommittee last week.

California Farm Bureau President Henry Voss, testifying on AFBF's behalf, said the American Heritage Trust Act of 1989 (H.R. 876) would "result in the confiscation of private lands from farmers and ranchers."

The measure, similar to one which was passed by the House Interior committee last year, would establish a trust fund that would generate $1 billion in interest annually for land acquisition and recreation projects. The fund would be established through federal oil and gas leasing revenues, motorboat fuel taxes and sales of federal real estate.

Voss said the measure would increase federal spending and is not "self-financing" as proponents have claimed. He said the Office of Management and Budget estimated last year that the bill would hike federal outlays by $1.2 billion in fiscal 1990.

"We fear that this (bill) will result in widespread confiscation of agricultural land by federal, state and local government agencies against landowners' wishes at a price determined by the government agency, not the landowner," Voss said.

"Open and undeveloped farms and ranches are prime targets for takeover by (this) act," Voss explained. "People who have farmed and ranched all of their lives on lands farmed and ranched by their parents will face the chilling prospect of losing their livelihoods so that others may play."

In addition, said Voss, the sheer magnitude of land purchases that the legislation would cause would increase the property tax burdens on remaining landowners for financing schools and other services. "Economic impact would be especially dramatic throughout the West which already has a high percentage of public lands, a restricted property tax base and limited opportunity for economic growth," Voss noted.

Farm Bureau is among 38 groups that oppose the land acquisition bill.

Herbicides Poast and Fuselade 2,000 Label Update

During 1988 spring and summer numerous new registered use for Poast and Fuselade 2,000 were issued for vegetables and small fruits. These two herbicides do a good job on controlling grasses. Remember that oil concentrate or surfactant should be added as labeled. The following crops have received approval: asparagus, broccoli, brussels sprouts, cabbage, carrots, cantaloupe, cauliflower, celery, cucumbers, eggplant, garlic, lettuce, mustard greens, onions, peppers, potatoes, pumpkins, raspberry, rhubarb, spinach, squash, strawberry, tomato and watermelon. Make sure you follow directions on label and check the limits on days to harvest.

Pursuit on Beans

Pursuit has been registered for use on snap beans, lima beans and green peas for weed control for the 1989 season. A single application (preplant incorporated or preemergence) at a rate of 2 or 3 fluit oz/acre for lima or snap beans and a rate of 2 fluid oz/A for green peas. The pre-harvest interval of 60 days for lima beans, and 40 days for snap beans and green peas.

Weed Control in Strawberries

Poast will be useful to control volunteer grain from straw mulches. After harvest Sinbar at 4 to 6 oz/A should be applied for broadleaf control during the summer. Devrinol should not be applied after harvest. Research has shown that Sinbar at 1.5 oz/A can be applied anytime during the summer for effective control of small weeds as an alternative for Tenoran, which is not manufactured any more.

Sarbanes Urges Full Funding For Bay Clean-Up

Senator Paul Sarbanes has called on the Senate Agriculture Appropriations subcommittee to provide full funding of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's conservation programs in the Chesapeake Bay area.

"The conservation programs of the Soil Conservation Service (SCS) and the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) are an important part of the continuing joint Federal, State and local effort to clean up the Chesapeake Bay," Sarbanes stated. "Despite recent improvements, pollution from agricultural activities remains a contributor to the problems of the Bay. These Federal agencies provide key technological assistance and training essential to reducing soil loss and agricultural nutrient pollution in the Bay."

Sarbanes noted that last year the committee provided for 41 additional SCS positions in the Bay-area states. These SCS personnel provided technical assistance to about 39,000 Bay area farmers, producing conservation plans for about 1.2 million acres. Implementation of these plans will result in 2.5 million tons of soil being saved. The SCS estimates that this reduction in soil erosion will significantly reduce phosphorus and nitrogen pollution in the Bay, as well as provide significant benefits for the farmers who implement these plans.

Advance-Payment Hike Announced By Pres. Bush

Farmers participating in 1989 farm programs will be eligible for an additional 10 percent in advance deficiency payments, President George Bush announced last week.

"We are announcing additional advanced deficiency payments for farmers who sign up for the 1989 wheat, feed grain, rice and upland cotton programs," Bush said. "This will mean an additional 10 percent of projected deficiency payments, or a total of about $850 million for American farmers." According to Bush, the announcement was made "to help America's farmers after last summer's drought."

The president and Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yeutter made the announcement during the first live USDA telephone news conference between a president and U.S. farm broadcasters.

When asked about more aid assistance, Bush said, "I wouldn't say this will be all that can be done" for producers who have lost crops to the drought. "I do think that because farmers are still experiencing these dry conditions in the Midwest and in other parts of the nation that this program will help, he added.

Earlier this month, Yeutter toured three drought-affected Kansas farms. Accompanying Yeutter were Kansas Senators Robert Dole and Nancy Kassebaum, Rep. Pat Roberts, Gov. Mike Hayden and state Agriculture Secretary Sam Brownback.

The announcement, however, did not come as much of a surprise. The increase in the advance deficiency payments means a shift in federal spending of $850 million from the 1990 fiscal year to 1989. This means a reduction in 1990 spending and, therefore, a budgetary savings for next year. The savings will make meeting the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings deficit target $850 million easier.

The additional advance deficiency payments will be available to eligible producers of wheat, feed grains, rice and upland cotton. This brings available advance payments up to 50 percent for wheat and feed grains, and up to 40 percent for rice and upland cotton.

The additional payments will be issued after May 15 in the form of commodity certificates. Under the 1989 farm program signup, which ended April 14, wheat and feed grain producers were allowed to request 40 percent of their projected deficiency payments; upland cotton and rice producers were allowed to request 30 percent. For these requests, an estimated $3.13 billion in advance payments will be paid in cash. Only those producers who requested advance payments under the 1989 signup are eligible for the additional advance.

During the news conference, Bush also announced the creation of a "top-level" working group aimed at better use of federal resources for rural development. The group will be chaired by Yeutter and will report to the White House Economic Policy Council. It also will include representatives from the departments of Treasury, Commerce, Labor, Health and Human Services, Housing and Urban Development, Transportation, and Education. Representatives from the office of vice president, office of Management and Budget, Council of Economic Advisors, Small Business Administration and White House Office of Policy Development also will be involved.

"Events such as last year's drought reinforce the need to develop and diversify the rural economy in the years ahead," Bush said. "The working group will ensure that the needs of rural America are met by better use and more efficient coordination of federal resources."

The group will evaluate existing federal rural development programs and resource distribution; develop policy options for improving coordination and implementation of these federal programs; explore options for increasing state, local and private sector involvement in rural development; and determine ways for the federal government to play an enchanced catalytic role in this area; as well as ease and generate increased economic activity.

GM Recommends Use Of Ethanol In Gasoline

New owner's manuals written by the nation's largest automobile manufacturer approve of the use of ethanol in gasoline.

General Motors is recommending the use of properly-blended, so-called "oxygenated" fuels, beginning with 1990-model cars and trucks.

"This policy will have a very beneficial impact on ethanol production, which in turn benefits our corn growers," said Dean Kleckner, American Farm Bureau Federation president.

Ethanol produced from corn has been used as a gasoline supplement and octane enhancer for more than a decade but suffered from misinformation and misconceptions.

"Rumors were spread that ethanol would damage engines. But that's been proven totally false as evidenced by motorists themselves who have driven over 500 billion trouble-free miles on ethanol blended fuels," Kleckner said.

The farm leader estimated that ethanol production currently requires 360 million bushels of corn, the output of a little more than three million acres.

"A Department of Agriculture study said this alternative use for corn adds between seven and 14 cents a bushel to the price a farmer receives for his crop," Kleckner said.

In a letter to Roger Smith, General Motors chairman, Kleckner said, "This is an extremely positive step that will enhance the nation's environment and national security. We appreciate the good leadership you have exhibited."

ACP Announces Help Available For Conservation

Farmers who have determined conservation needs on their land may want to review the list of Agricultural Conservation Program (ACP) practices available at the office of the Garrett County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

William F. DeWitt, an official of the agency, said producers may sign up between May 1 and May 31 for one of the annual practices or install long-term conservation practices on their farm.

"The ACP provides both technical and financial assistance to help farmers solve soil and water conservation and water quality problems," said DeWitt. The program shares with farmers the cost of installing necessary practices to correct severe conservation problems on a farm, beyond that which would be accomplished with the producer's own resources.

Cost-share funds are available for the following practices: spring developments, soil waterways, animal waste facilities, strip cropping, new seedings, forestry practices, diversions, and wildlife plantings.

According to DeWitt, cost-share assistance for 1988 to treat critical soil and water conservation, water quality and pollution abatement problems in Garrett County amounted to over $60,000. "Requests are considered after each sign-up period," DeWitt said, "and evaluated as to the amount of soil and/or water that can be saved and water quality improvements by performing the requested practices."

The ASCS official said farmers who have severe conservation problems that need to be solved should apply early.

"Remember, the sign-up period is May 1 to May 31," DeWitt concluded.

Conservation Plan Deadline Noted

William F. DeWitt, chairman of the Garrett County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, reminds producers who farm highly erodible cropland that they have until December 31, 1989, to get a conservation plan approved for the land.

"Farmers who do not get their conservation plan approved by the end of this year will forfeit program benefits on more than just their highly erodible acres," said DeWitt. "Loss of eligibility applies to all land that a person farms, not just highly erodible acreage."

Under the Food Security Act of 1985, anyone who farms highly erodible land must develop a conservation plan for the land and have it approved by December 31, 1989, in order to remain eligible for USDA farm program benefits. Farmers have until December 31, 1994, to fully implement the plan. USDA program benefits include price and income supports, crop insurance, Farmers Home Administration loans, Commodity Credit Corporation Storage payments, farm storage facility loans, Conservation Reserve Program annual payments, and other USDA Commodity related programs.

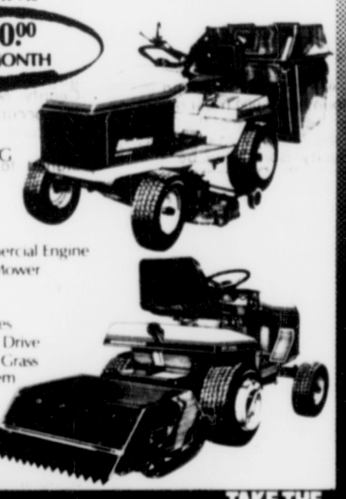

DeWitt said conservation plans allow farmers to produce crops without excessive erosion. "The plans usually include management practices such as conservation cropping systems, conservation tillage, contour farming, grassed waterways and other measures necessary to control severe erosion problems."

The ASCS official said it is important for farmers to act now if they have erodible land that needs a conservation plan, in order to have sufficient time for the plan to be approved before December.

AFB Challenges Diesel Emission Control Proposal

The federal government is studying a proposal to require emission control devices on diesel-powered farm equipment. The Radian Corporation recently completed a study for EPA on the feasibility and cost effectiveness of controlling emissions from farm and other off-highway diesel-powered equipment.

The report was strongly challenged by the American Farm Bureau Federation on the grounds that it exaggerates the emission problems and fails to adequately consider the time and place of farm diesel use.

"The stampede for a quick fix will only be compounded if you combine overstated numbers with out of date studies," charged John Datt in a message to William Reilly, EPA administrator. "More testing is needed before new laws and regulations are written covering emissions from off-highway diesel engines." Datt warned that hasty action could result in "overregulation and excessive costs" without achieving meaningful results.

USDA has estimated the emission controls would cost farmers an estimated $4.5 billion and hike on-farm fuel consumption by 150 million gallons annually due to lower engine efficiency.

According to USDA research, the Radian study overestimates the number of diesel farm engines in use by 800,000 and overstates farm diesel fuel usage by as much as 10 percent. USDA also challenges the study's assumption that farm engines emit 1.75 to five times more pollutants than the same size engines used in construction equipment. In addition, numbers used in the Radian study are based on 1982 statistics which do not reflect reduced farm acreage and reduced tillage practices.

"Better data is needed," Datt said. "The report itself repeatedly indicates that emissions data are engineering estimates only, based on very limited data."

Farm Bureau contends the vast majority of farm diesel units are used in areas that are free of air quality problems, with most of the use occurring in the spring and fall when stagnant air masses are least likely to occur.

"OH, STOP COMPLAINING WHEN I REARRANGE THE FURNITURE. DO I EVER SAY ANYTHING WHEN YOU ROTATE THE CROPS?"

SCS Offers Keys To No-Till Success In Drought Situation

"No-till offers many benefits but it can't cover mistakes, a lesson some farmers learned last year. Those who farmed by the book saw a payoff at harvest," says Dave Schertz, national agronomist for the Soil Conservation Service (SCS).

SCS officials are encouraged by 1988 no-till results that have been analyzed around the country. "When some rain finally came last summer, no-till crops did the best job of conserving and utilizing moisture. No-till corn and soybean yields were often 30 percent higher than conventional till," Schertz reports.

Schertz says that under extreme conditions there are problems for any system and mistakes magnify these problems when it's dry. "If you haven't yet done so, now's a good time to review last year's results and recheck management practices that ensure no-till success, especially weed control," he advises.

He adds that growers should not make decisions based solely on 1988 experiences. "Some experts called it the worst drought in 50 years, while others said it was the worst ever recorded," he said. Schertz also says that reports from the field indicate farmers who no-tilled for the first time last season are talking about planting deeper. He suggests watching weather forecasts and making decisions accordingly.

"If in doubt, seek advice from local, university extension specialists or other no-till experts. Or, talk to farmers with several years of no-till experience," he suggests. "Last year," says Schertz, "experienced no-tillers generally fared better than first-timers."

Extreme heat in 1988 caused some problems that couldn't be corrected, such as "baking of the soil surface," says the SCS agronomist. This could have been avoided by completely controlling vegetation that kept crops from fully using what little moisture was available, he says.

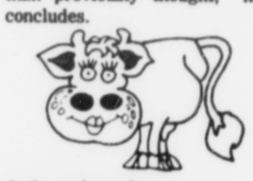

Schertz also says some farmers waited too long before applying herbicides. They sprayed just before planting or prior to crop emergence. In a drought, seeding into cover crops or sod that's not completely burned down can be especially deadly.

On soils with poor water holding capacity, moisture conservation is aided by using a burndown herbicide about two to three weeks before planting. Another weed control key is to spray when weeds are young and growing actively — generally no more than six inches tall.

No-till experts constantly stress the importance of using a burndown herbicide in addition to residual herbicides. Failure to follow that advice is a mistake that's magnified by dry weather. A lack of rainfall to properly activate residual compounds leads to weed problems and increased crop competition for limited moisture, Schertz reports.

Prior to harvest there were reports the drought had hit no-till the hardest. According to Schertz, that observation changed dramatically when, at season's end, there were many reports of success. For instance, Schertz reports that a Purdue University project tabulated net returns for 41 Indiana corn and soybean fields under various tillage systems, and the most profitable field was no-till soybeans, which averaged nearly 53 bushels and netted $259 an acre.

When weeds were properly controlled and crops were well managed, Schertz says late-season rains sparked a strong surge for no-till. "The majority of our reports were favorable. In a nutshell, no-till fared especially well and did much better at the end of the season than previously thought," he concludes.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, the Mayor and Town Council shall extend such services to the residents to be annexed hereby, as are extended to other residents of the Town of Mountain Lake Park.

AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that inasmuch as the area to be annexed is designated on the Garrett County Development Plan as Suburban-Residential (SR), with the exception of Broadford Road school complex, which is designated on said Plan as "Public Recreation," and there is no actual zoning within Garrett County which affects the area to be annexed, and consequently no specific land use definitions therefore, and inasmuch as the Zoning Ordinance for the Town of Mountain Lake Park contains a land use category designated as Suburban Residential, and inasmuch as the definitions of Suburban Residential, and Public Recreation in the Garrett County Development Plan and the definition of Suburban Residential in the Mountain Lake Park general plan are substantially the same, the Mayor and Town Council have determined that the annexed area shall be zoned Suburban-Residential (SR), under the Zoning Ordinance of the Town of Mountain Lake Park, and shall be designated as such on the official zoning map for the Town of Mountain Lake Park, there being no substantial difference between the definitions and features of Suburban Residential as it exists within the Town of Mountain Lake Park, and as it is defined within the Town's Zoning Ordinance, and development plan, and Suburban Residential as it is defined by the Garrett County Development Plan and as the definition of Public Recreation and its features as set forth in the Garrett County Development Plan, are compatible with the definition and features of Suburban Residential (SR) as it exists within the Town of Mountain Lake Park, and as it is defined within the Town Zoning Ordinance and development plan.

AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that this Resolution shall become effective on the forty-sixth (46th) day following its final enactment.

Adopt-A-Dump Day Proclaimed By Gov. Schaefer

Governor William Donald Schaefer recently announced that Saturday, April 29, is Adopt-A-Dump Day throughout Maryland.

In cooperation with the Maryland Association of Counties, the Governor's Office has organized a campaign in each county to clean up illegal dumping sites and other heavily littered areas. More than 2,000 volunteers from each county and Baltimore City are expected to participate in the event.

Governor Schaefer said, "Adopt-A-Dump is a funny name for a very serious and important program which will not only make our state look better but will improve our environment. It's wonderful that so many people and groups have come forward to help out."

The governor is scheduled to visit the Adopt-A-Dump site at the Patuxent State Park in Howard and Montgomery counties, where he will help the Izaak Walton League clean litter from the stream banks and stock the stream with trout.

Among the corporations assisting and contributing with Adopt-A-Dump Day are Giant Food, Hardees, Safeway, Southland Corporation, and several local businesses. The Beverage Industry Recycling Program has also contributed to the event.

Projects selected in the counties vary from litter pick up to tree planting and fence construction, and recycling aluminum cans and glass containers. The county commissioners in each jurisdiction selected a county coordinator to organize the program locally and coordinate it with the governor's office.

In Garrett County, Terry Spear has been named the coordinator. The site targeted for clean-up is along the Oakland-Sang Run Road between Stockslager Road and Hoyes Run Road. Volunteers may contact Spear at (301) 334-3988.

"Illegal dumping is a growing and increasingly expensive problem in the United States," the Governor said. "It causes serious harm to wildlife by destroying animal habitats and exposing animals to toxic materials. Runoff from dump sites can pollute streams and threaten water quality. Adopt-A-Dump is the first statewide demonstration of the visual and environmental effects of properly disposing of trash and litter."

WALNUT BOTTOM

There will be a special youth rally at Walnut Bottom Assembly of God Church on Sunday, April 30, at 7 p.m.
